'Tree Islands' May Sprout In Village Parking Areas

Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee soon will propose an amendment to the village zoning ordinance calling for "tree islands" in shopping center parking areas.

If adopted by the village board, the revised legislation would require automobile parking areas to provide and maintain living, hardy canopy-type shade trees.

"Tree islands," no less than 70 square feet each, would total a minimum of one per cent of surfaced parking area when any side of the lot is visible from a public street or residential land.

Parking lots either created, rebuilt or redesigned subsequent to adoption of the revised ordinance would be required to meet these regulations.

Environmental committee members stressed parking lot resurfacing would also call for island installation.

THREE TO three and one-half foot trees would be required under terms of the proposed ordinance.

Committee members believe that trees and "tree islands," along with other landscaping in open parking lots, can help control circulation of cars and pedestrians, as well as clearly identify entrances and exits.

They contend such plantings would also provide shade for people and cars, furnish open ground for drainage and snow storage as well as camouflage, soften and improve the appearance of large lots.

It is their belief that the trees would provide both environmental and aesthetic benefits, require little ground space, and constitute a "positive asset to any shopping, business or industrial establishment."

In another area of proposed local legislation, a sedimentation ordinance is being prepared for eventual presentation to the village board.

Volunteers Call, But More Needed For Project Help

Calls continue to The Herald from volunteers for Project Help, a joint environmental experience to be conducted in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates next month.

Coordinated by Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee and Hoffman Estates' Environmental Concerns Committee, the activity will take place in both towns on the first three Saturdays in May.

Scout groups and their leaders, Jaycees, village officials, housewives, professional men and women and students are among those who already have pledged Project Help.

Although 192 persons have called to volunteer since The Herald's recruitment campaign began last week, heavy additional signups are needed to reach the established goal of 400 workers.

The Project Help schedule calls for roadway cleanup in both villages May 6; shrubs and trees to be planted in both communities May 13; miles of creekbed in the neighboring communities to be cleared May 20.

RESIDENTS OF both villages are encouraged to offer services for the Saturday of their choosing but workers will be assigned to areas of need regardless of their place of residence.

Sturdy, old clothing, heavy protective gloves and boots are a few suggestions for appropriate Project Help apparel.

Organizers of the program also suggest that volunteers bring sack lunches and prepare for as many hours of work as necessary demands.

May 6 and 20, volunteers will meet at the north end of Golf-Rose Shopping Center parking lot. Crews will assemble at the Schaumburg High School parking lot, Schaumburg Road, May 13.

Exact times for meeting will be announced later, when all plans have been finalized.

Each week workers will be dispatched to specific areas; activities will be supervised and directed by Jaycees in both towns who have offered to serve as "strawbosses."

In a separate phase of Project Help, merchants and businessmen in both villages are being asked to contribute to the effort.

Weekly awards are being planned for outstanding commercial cleanup and beautification program to be recognized by leaders of Project Help.

RESIDENTS OF both communities wishing to enlist in Project Help are asked to call The Herald at 394-2300, Ext. 256.

Names of all volunteers, groups, schools and businesses represented in the Project Help work force will be printed daily in The Herald.

The most recent volunteers include the leader and 21 members of Schaumburg Boy Scout Troop 395. They are Leader Morrie Bellair and scouts Karl Benson, Kenneth Brown, Donald Daraskevich, Scott Daner, Tim and William Doyle, John and Rick Francissen, Robert Garbark, Greg Land, Kevin and Mike Morrissey, Kevin and Tim and Terry Ostick, Bill Summerfield, Jeff and Mike Thorson, Dave and Craig Weedner and Randy Young.

Book Fair April 13-14

Books, games, science kits and art craft materials will be offered for sale at the April 13 and 14 book fair in Camp-anelli School, 310 S. Springguth Rd., Schaumburg.

The book fair, to benefit the school library, will be open 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. April 13, and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 14. Parents are urged to attend during the hours scheduled for their children's classes, or in the evening. Children will be able to purchase materials either day.

Books, both paper and hard backed, will range in price from 50 cents to $10, while art materials will range from 50 cents to $5. Games will cost between $1.25 and $5, and science kits between $1.25 and $10.

To coincide with the fair, a poster contest is being held, with first and second place ribbons to be awarded in each room. The grand prize winner from each grade will receive a prize.

OXYGEN, BEING administered here to "victim" Joseph Tullo of Motorola, is vital to a heart attack victim. This procedure is one of several used during a demonstration of equipment developed by Motorola Inc., yesterday at the Howard Johnson Motor Inn in Palatine. Several area communities have initiated an emergency cardiac treatment program in cooperation with local hospitals.

Court To Hear Fireman Case Tomorrow

A hearing will begin tomorrow to determine whether the constitutional rights of David L. Carlson were violated when he was fired nine months ago from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District.

The hearing is to start at 10 a.m. before Circuit Court Judge Edward Egan in Room 2307 of the Civic Center, Chicago. Judge Egan will preside in the case under an amended petition in Carlson's suit for reinstatement with the fire district.

Carlson was fired last July. In a hearing before the fire district trustees held July 23 and Sept. 10, it was contended the dismissal resulted from misconduct. Fire district officers testified he had failed to respond immediately when ordered to go to the scene of an already extinguished fire for cleanup operations, delaying until he found someone to relieve him at a cooking task.

Carlson and his attorney, Gilbert A. Cornfield, have maintained since the dismissal he was fired because of union activities. Carlson is secretary-treasurer of Local 2061, International Association of Fire Fighters, AFL-CIO. The formation of the union was made public July 14, the same day Carlson was notified of his dismissal.

Tomorrow's court action is to look into the charge the dismissal was for union participation, to examine the hearing held by the trustees to determine if it was fairly conducted and to determine whether a fire district regulation was properly followed.

Cub Scouts Will Hold Paper Drive

Cubs in Scout Pack 395 of Schaumburg will hold a newspaper drive, April 15. The Cubs will conduct a door to door pickup but also ask residents to deliver newspapers to a container at the Schaumburg Plaza on Schaumburg Road east of Springguth Road. Newspapers should be tied or bound.

During a recent meeting, Cubmaster Herb Sumterfield told those present about two field trips, to the John Hancock Building and Shedd Aquarium. A Pan-tomime band composed of members from Den 8 entertained before the awards presentations.

The following boys received awards: In den 1, Joe Cvilkovich, gold arrow, and silver arrow; Scott Haase denner; Robert Kelly, assistant denner, gold and silver arrows and Frank Kirschner, gold arrow.

In den 7, Peter Ladas, assistant denner; Paul Lemrise, denner, and Thomas Orzada bobcat and bearbook.

In den 8, Todd Lesley and Dave Morris received bearbooks.

In Webelos Den 1, leader Doe Doyle and Bill Doyle, received three year pins, and Bill Doyle and Eric Geib received arrow of light awards.

Webelos in Den 2, Bob Feldman received the aquanaut badge and Ed Thompson the arrow of light award.

Bill Doyle and Ed Thompson were inducted into Boy Scout Troop 395 in a candlelight ceremony.

Motorola Simulates Heart Attack Treatment

by STEVE BROWN

A communications and telemetry system which developers feel could substantially reduce the number of heart attack deaths each year was demonstrated yesterday by Motorola's communications division at the Howard Johnson Motor Inn in Palatine.

The emergency treatment of a heart attack victim was simulated for local fire departments and the media. Ten area communities, in conjunction with Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights and Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove, are planning to initiate a system where hospital personnel could communicate directly with ambulance attendants to treat heart attack victims.

Several systems have been demonstrated in the area in recent months. Yesterday's demonstration included equipment developed by Motorola and Medical Research Laboratories of Park Ridge. The equipment allows ambulance attendants to transmit an electrocardiograph signal to hospital coronary care units where a diagnosis of the patient's condition can be made and recommended treatment radioed back to attendants.

THE CORONARY Observation Radio (COR) has been tested for the past 18 months at the Kramert Institute of Cardiology at the Indiana University. The equipment was explained by Dr. Gary J. Anderson who tested the COR unit. Several members of the Rolling Meadows Fire Department also participated in the demonstration.

Anderson said about 40 per cent of the 500,000 persons who die from heart attacks each year fail to reach the hospital alive.

"The COR system will lead to earlier detection and treatment," Anderson stated. He added the first hour after a person suffers a heart attack is critical to the survival. The telemetry equipment will allow personnel in the hospital to begin to collect data as soon as the ambulance arrives, he said.

A patient could receive treatment enroute, thus saving critical time, Anderson said.

THE SYSTEM WILL utilize five dedicated radio frequencies. The Federal Communications Commission recently approved the frequencies for transmission of medical telemetry only.

According to Fred Stacy, national manager for Motorola's Hospital Emergency Communications division, the frequencies will allow for the uninterrupted transmissions of information and telemetry on the patient's condition.

All of the equipment is lightweight and can be taken directly to scene of the heart attack. A 26 ounce transmitter can be attached to the victim, the ECG signal is then transmitted to a high-power unit in the ambulance and relayed to the hospital.

Motorola officials said the equipment will cost about $6,000 for the COR hospital base station and about $4,000 for the ambulance unit.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The FBI announced recovery of $499,970 in the Provo, Utah home of the sky-diving college student held for the hijacking of a jet last week. Held is Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

His ratings lagging, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine plans to concentrate his Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, according to his supporters.

The countdown has started and Apollo 16's astronauts went through their final lunar landing dress rehearsal for Sunday's flight to the unexplored highlands of the moon.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and 77 other countries have signed a treaty renouncing the use of biological weapons. Conspicuously absent was France, which has also refused to sign the nuclear test ban treaty. China also was not present at any of the ceremonies but it was uncertain whether China would eventually sign.

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The State

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

Water Plant Plans On Display

A model of the $43 million Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant, under construction in an unincorporated area of Schaumburg Township, will be on exhibit during April in the lobby of the new Schaumburg Park District, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

John E. Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, said "When completed in late 1974, this facility will be the world's largest tertiary treatment plant providing complete treatment to waste waters by means of a two-stage aeration process."

Egan said, "It will have a design capacity of 30 million gallons per day, providing full water treatment for 160,000 persons in unincorporated areas, parts of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove Village, Roselle, Inverness, and all of Palatine. The plant will meet the most stringent standards set by federal and state agencies."

The construction will include control, maintenance, pretreatment, laboratory, filter, digester and thickener buildings; three sludge pumping stations; two aeration tanks; twelve settling tanks; and chemical storage tanks.

"Uneasiness" a Factor in People's Saving

By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

The strong, periodic spurts of saving by the American public in the last few years have been explained in various ways by economists and financial counselors.

Whatever the factors they outlined, the popular summary was well presented by an Atlanta insurance man, quoted in a national financial magazine:

"It's a bad time to be out on a limb."

The same publication quoted a Seattle advertising man: "I'm saving more in bewilderment than conscious policy; I don't know how to read the signs."

The summarizing word provided by a university survey research bureau was "malaise." After conducting interviews in 45 states, it concluded that people were gripped by "uncertainty, uneasiness, and misgivings."

Maybe Americans have begun to feel apprehensive about the record installment debt load they are carrying. One expert, noting that people had been "spending their heads off" for years and that installment payments were taking more than $1 out of every $5 available, suggested that they might be attempting to straighten out their finances.

It is not our purpose to make Silas Marner of all Americans or to label as spendthrifts those who make purchases for anything except the bare necessities of life. If we encourage people to save for specific goals — a new automobile, for example — we have no reason to feel sad when they withdraw their funds as the goal is reached.

But people have other things for which to save. First of all, they deserve the peace and security that comes from having a sizable sum available in time of adversity. Some experts say this should equal at least six months' family income. Our own yardstick is that this nest egg should be comparable to one year's income.

Considering the unique quality of this investment when made in a savings account with us — substantial earnings with absolutely no risk of capital — our recommendation of setting aside one year's income seems irresistible.

People also have long-range reasons for saving. Among these is the provision for retirement years. Once they have provided for immediate needs as we have suggested, there is no quarrel with venturesome couples who wish to guard against inflation by investing in growth stocks or other speculations. They should reckon, however, with the risk aspects of these ventures and ask themselves whether they are equipped, economically and psychologically, to cope with them.

Saving, as we have said before in these columns, is responsible behavior that must be encouraged at all times. Spending too, is a responsible act. The more the average person is acquainted with the national economic implications of his spending habits, the more he helps to stabilize the American economic system.

Informed sources describe the morale of Dist. 54 teachers as "murky" in light of current closed-door salary negotiations.

"If a few members of the board of education and school administrators don't open their eyes and ears soon, a strike just could be in the offing," a veteran Dist. 54 classroom teacher, who asked not to be identified, remarked recently.

The apparent lack of esprit de corps seems to stem from preliminary proposals offered by the administration as a starting point in bargaining.

Reportedly, refusal to increase the number of paid sick days, possible elimination of three personal business days allowed each year, an increase in the number of hours teachers are required to spend in school buildings each day, and demands that two additional credit hours of graduate work be reported annually (rather than every five years as is now the rule) are the chief trouble spots.

It's ironic, too, that Dist. 54, which for many years boasted a substantial list of readily available resident substitute teachers, has faced critical shortages in that area on several occasions during this school year.

Increasing numbers of "subs" are finding it just as easy to travel to neighboring districts where prevailing daily pay rates are $30 compared with $25 paid at home.

YES, VIRGINIA, there really is a Schaumburg Airport Expansion Feasibility Study Committee. After several unsuccessful attempts in the past few weeks, its members met last Thursday.

In what is believed to be the first public statement of its kind, owners of the now-private landing strip were identified as "the people who also own the industrial park across the street."

It is an obvious reference to Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park (knowledge of the word "air" being added to the park's name came only last month) which lies between Irving Park and Wise Roads. This revelation confirmed beliefs held by veteran observers for the past several years.

Although development of industrial parks along with or adjacent to an air strip is not a new concept, expansion of the field is now being discussed in conjunction with development of a transportation center in Schaumburg.

No one is certain why, but curiosity appears to be growing over whether these owners held title to the 150-acre tract on west Irving Park Road when it was annexed to the village in 1963.

Records indicate that the name was changed from Roselle Field to Schaumburg Airport in 1968. At that time principal owners were identified as Jack Pritzker, a prominent Chicago attorney and philanthropist, Marshall Bennett, of Bennett & Kahnweiler, the firm managing the industrial park, and William Lambert, who has extensive land holdings in the area.

Technically, the land is held in a 16-partner trust agreement by First National Bank of Chicago and should the small air drome be municipally acquired, names of the remaining owners could be revealed.

With Schaumburg officials being known to display a penchant for land donations (Lambert gave the village a 40-acre site on which a new civic and cultural center will be constructed), it would surprise few if the landing strip were to become a gift.

But, first it is necessary to explore feasibility of expanding the landing strip to accommodate corporate and small jet craft.

SEA President Denies Teacher Strike Rumors

President of the Schaumburg Education Association (SEA) Mrs. Felicia Cichy, yesterday denied rumors that Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 teachers are talking strike.

Mrs. Cichy said at the last SEA meeting of teachers the membership fully supported the proposed contract offered to the board of education for consideration and are waiting until April 19 to discuss how it is accepted by the board. On that date both groups will meet for the first time since the exchange.

She said individual comments of discontent are always possible but stressed the SEA negotiating team is reserving comment until proposals are considered.

She termed threats of strike as "silly" when both sides have just made a first exchange of proposals with no discussion.

The board of education negotiations package did not discuss any salary raise, but did ask for elimination of the three personal business days now allowed the teachers.

THE PROPOSAL also asked that 10 days of sick leave be allowed and that the unused portion may accumulate to a maximum of 120 days.

Other points in the board's proposal demanded elimination of sabbatical sick leave. Another item is the requirement that teachers earn a minimum of two semester hours of graduate credit every year. In the past teachers have been required to achieve five credit within five years.

Lengthening of every teacher's work day by a full hour is also proposed in the board package.

The teachers package does ask for $550 a year raise for beginning teachers and a bigger salary jump for increased education rather than tenure.

It also includes many of the items now covered in the teacher's manual and by board policy. The contract also requests teachers have a bigger say about class size, curriculum and text.

craft in the area and collect information concerning pollution caused by automobiles traveling to and from the airport.

"Most important to the Village of Schaumburg, though, is that this survey will look at how air and wind currents affect jet emissions," she added.

The other study, being conducted by the state department of aeronautics, will examine air transportation needs. It is being conducted with $600,000 in FAA funds and another $200,000 in state money, Mrs. Murphy said.

"THESE STUDIES will tell Schaumburg exactly what it wants to know and to go ahead with an independent program is, I feel, a scandalous waste of funds," she commented and affirmed to take her position to the village board tonight.

Airport committee members admitted they were unaware of either investigation described by Mrs. Murphy. They agreed to attempt to get data from both sources.

They pointed out, however, that asking consulting engineers under consideration for the local project to make presentations would "not cost a cent" until a firm is retained.

Denis Ledgerwood, airport committee chairman, promised Mrs. Murphy information received from both agencies will be given to the consultant selected and would become a point in the local study.

Airport Consultant List Dwindles To 4

by PAT GERLACH

A list of engineering firms under consideration for appointment as consultants in studying feasibility of expanding Schaumburg Airport was narrowed to four last week.

Members of an ad hoc airport study committee will invite representatives of Ralph H. Burke, Inc.; Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff; Arnold Thompson Co. and Peat Marwick & Mitchell, Inc. to make formal presentations as soon as possible.

Airport expansion is being discussed in conjunction with possible development of an area transportation center in the village.

Completion of a proposal for study procedure is a prerequisite to apply for a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) master planning grant. The grant would cover two-thirds of the cost of the investigation.

Committee members are hopeful that remaining funding may be obtained through the Illinois Department of Aeronautics, but have taken no steps in that direction yet.

However, with an eye toward federal reimbursement, village officials recently adopted an appropriation ordinance earmarking almost $60,000 for the feasibility study.

Tentative expansion plans call for enlarging the now 2,800 foot asphalt runway to a concrete strip of between 4,000 and 5,000 feet to accommodate small jets.

Cost estimates of the total project range from $2 million to $4 million with the program to be underwritten by Jack Pritzker, a prominent Chicago attorney and philanthropist.

FINANCING WOULD be accomplished through a revenue bond program creating no taxpayer burden, since the debt would be retired through take-off, landing and other fees charged by the airport.

Pritzker is one of 16 principals involved in a Schaumburg Airport land trust agreement held by First National Bank of Chicago.

At last week's meeting, airport ownership was publicly linked for the first time to Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park when Ken Wolmer, airport manager, identified his employers as "the same people who own the industrial park across the street."

Discussing the possible FAA planning grant, Wolmer emphasized these moneys come from a trust fund set up in 1970 and represent tax charged on airplane fuel and tickets purchased by commercial air travelers.

Presentations by the consulting firms will lead to eventual proposals and formal bids on the feasibility study project, and with the approval of Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegel, may be opened to both press and public.

Selection of the four firms was arrived at through consensus agreement of ad hoc committee members, George Mansfield, Bob Starczyk, Ray LeBeau and Bob Sanders, as well as chairman Denis Ledgerwood.

Ecology Unit Asking $750 For Planting

Last night the Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee was to ask the village board to approve an expenditure of $750 for trees and shrubs in conjunction with Project Help.

During May, environmental committees in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates will conduct a joint cleanup and beautification program.

May 13, volunteer workers will devote time to planting trees and shrubs in both communities.

At a cost of $175 per site, four entrances to Hoffman Estates will be marked with redwood village signs and surrounded by formal plantings as part of Project Help.

Plantings are slated for village limits at Basswood Street and Higgins Road, at Algonquin Road and Winston Drive in the Winston Knolls subdivision, rtes. 58 and 59, and Schaumburg Road at Westview Street.

Trees-including yellow dogwood, honey locust and Washington hawthorne, as well as an upright juniper and pfitzer junipers are being obtained from Charles Klehm & Sons Nursery, Arlington Heights, for each site.

In addition, 20 feet of bare root shrubs at an estimated cost of $50, are planned for planting at the present village hall site.

This planting should create a shield for public works vehicles and equipment parked at the west end of the site.

In Schaumburg, Project Help volunteers will be working in an area near Schaumburg Road and Salem Drive to create a natural-appearing landscaped tract.

Airport Study Unit Could Be Making Duplicate Work

A Schaumburg Airport expansion feasibility study could duplicate investigations being made on a wider scale Mrs. Jane Murphy, a local resident, said last week.

Addressing members of the ad hoc airport committee, Mrs. Murphy cited a $220,000 study of the O'Hare Airport area scheduled for June completion by the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality at Argonne National Laboratories.

Mrs. Murphy criticized the committee for apparent haste in attempting to select consulting engineers to perform a local feasibility study. She urged the group to wait for release of the Argonne information as well as other data to be collected in an Illinois Department of Aeronautics study soon to begin.

Explaining the O'Hare area study will involve points in Schaumburg Township, Mrs. Murphy said she believes it will also provide information concerning feasibility of expanding the local, now privately owned, airport.

"THROUGH THIS study, air pollution standards for airports will be defined and it will, I believe, show the impact of small as well as large airports on the environment since it also involves a small airstrip in Orange County, Calif.," she said.

Mrs. Murphy predicted the investigation will also determine the amount of pollution caused by jet air-

Working For A Better Community

Intergroup Relations Her 'Thing'

(This is the eighth of a series of articles acquainting area residents with past or present members of The League of Women Voters who are currently holding local policy-making positions.)

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Edmar Hoppe doesn't mind not having a lot of idle time on her hands. She considers her work with the League of Women Voters, the National Conference of Christians and Jews (NCCJ), the PTA and her alma mater, Bennington College, full-time hobbies.

"I'm very lucky to be doing those things I enjoy doing," she said referring to her volunteer services.

Mrs. Hoppe, a resident of the area for 22 years, is a charter member of the Arlington Heights chapter of The League of Women Voters.

"I had been working on a couple of other boards," she said, "and as a volunteer worker I knew that the League was interested in similar things, child welfare and legislation. I also felt a need to know about the community-at-large and wanted to meet other women with the same interests as myself.

"I THINK it is important for all individuals to be active in their community. It's a part of their privileges and responsibilities as citizens. The kind of involvement they do choose, whether politics or something else, depends upon the person."

A big portion of Mrs. Hoppe's time is devoted to the NCCJ, a civic organization engaged in a nationwide program of intergroup education to eradicate racial, religious and ethnic prejudice. It enlists people to work together to build better relationships among persons of all religions, races and nationalities.

A board member of the Chicago Region of NCCJ, Eddi (her nickname) is co-chairman of the committee which trains discussion leaders and provides them with information to present various programs to the public. She also coordinates field trips which often bring suburban children into different religious or ethnic areas of Chicago.

"I HAVE always been interested in children," said Eddi. "I took part in a NCCJ workshop concerning prejudice and how to raise a child to overcome it."

That's how Mrs. Hoppe first became acquainted with the organization. She became a discussion leader herself before being appointed to the board.

Mrs. Hoppe sums up all her work under the heading of 'community intergroup relations.'

"The one thing that League teaches you is that any worthwhile goal is not realized in a day or even a year," she said. "The League marshals its facts and hangs on after everyone else has given up. I learned that and the ability to listen to all sides of an issue.

"I THINK there could be more women in office, but I don't know if it is anyone's fault but women themselves. You have to be active and know what you're talking about in order to be elected. Women need to exert themselves if the interest is there and also the confidence," continued Mrs. Hoppe.

"I also realize that there are a lot of competent women around who can make good contributions. But I couldn't see voting for a woman just because she is a woman anymore than voting for a man simply because he is a relative of mine."

Ann Britt Weds Ensign

Miss Ann Britt and Timothy John Jamison, Ensign, United States Coast Guard, were married March 14 in a nuptial mass in St. Raymond's Catholic Church, Mount Prospect.

Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Britt, 21 N. Regency Drive West, Arlington Heights, and Timothy, son of the Marvin J. Jamisons of Denver, Colo., are both graduates of the University of Colorado at Boulder.

For her wedding Ann chose a simple, long gown of ivory silk faille deeply flounced at wrists and hemline and with laced bodice. She carried a single red rose.

Attending the bride were the groom's sisters, Sally, Nancy and Lori Jamison, who wore off-white gowns with embroidered flowers. They also carried red roses.

David L. Larson of Texas served as best man, and groomsmen were the bride's brothers, James R. Britt Jr. and Michael Britt.

A RECEPTION breakfast after the high noon ceremony was held in the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn, where congratulations to the couple were displayed on the marquee. The bride's table was decorated in her choice of red roses, there having been no flowers at the church due to the Lenten season.

After a two-week sightseeing trip along

Ens. and Mrs. Timothy J. Jamison

All area women are invited to the tea, and those wishing further information may call Mrs. Philippe J. Chouinard at 358-4950.

Subcommittee Urges Crib Death Research

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee approved Thursday a resolution directing the federal government to step up research and other efforts to combat "sudden crib deaths," a mysterious disease that kills at least 10,000 infants each year.

The resolution was introduced by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., after hearings on the disease last January showed it was the largest killer of children less than a year old.

The Mondale measure would direct the Health Education and Welfare Department to award research training grants to investigate crib deaths, and to develop and publish literature to inform the public about the disease.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I think my windows are clean until the sun shines on them. Do you have a particular window cleaning formula that you think does a good job?

—Mrs. Roy A.

We've always been happiest using 1/2 cup ammonia and 1/8 cup vinegar in 1 quart water. However, we've tried some methods sent in by readers and these have done the job equally well — one part rubbing alcohol to three parts water, 1 tbsp. dishwasher detergent in two quarts warm water or a handful of the trisodium phosphate cleaner in a pail of warm water. The important thing is to never wash windows in direct sunlight and to use a lintless cloth for drying or a crumpled newspaper or paper toweling.

Dear Dorothy: What causes tomato catsup to darken at the top of the bottle? Is the catsup edible when this happens?

—Laura M.

It's a browning reaction similar to the changes that occur on the cut surfaces of fruits and vegetables. Dark catsup may even develop an off-flavor but it is still safe for use. When corn syrup is used instead of sugar there is much less darkening.

Dear Dorothy: I've got an idea for your many readers. A gift from a thoughtful friend has proved our most useful gadget. It's a portable cooler that includes a container with a cooling refrigerator. This container is kept in the freezer until we need it. We use it on picnics, confident that none of the food will spoil, but it is most appreciated in traveling. We take along lunch and don't have to stop at a restaurant. Sometimes those stops can be interminably long. This way we get just what we want when we want it.

Next On The Agenda

WAYSIDE WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Francis Weber of Sauerland's Florist Shop in Arlington Heights will present the Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Woman's Club monthly program Thursday in the Junior High Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Weber's program will include a demonstration of the composition of a terrarium and the arranging of fresh flowers to enhance the beauty of a home.

Following the meeting, refreshments will be served by members of the decorating and Girl Scout committees under Mrs. John Langhenry and Mrs. Frank Naujokas. Also serving will be the executive board: Mrs. Robert Duffy, Mrs. Andrew Turner, Mrs. Richard Goodke, Mrs. Gerald Genovese and Mrs. Robert Baechle.

Other events sponsored by the woman's club scheduled for April include the parish wide garage sale to be held April 21 and 22, and the 20th annual spring dance to be held April 28 at Brookwood Country Club.

EXTRA CARE CLUB

"High Roads of Illinois," a travel by Illinois Bell will be presented at Saturday's program of Extra Care Club of United Air Lines. The group will be meeting at Floyd's in Carpentersville for cocktails at 12:30 and luncheon at 1.

Average 'Yuky' Diet Needs Help

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is third of a series of articles based on the new book, "The Doctors' Save-Your-Heart Diet," by Aileen Claire, NEA Food Editor, and David Hendin, NEA Science Editor, published by Award Books.)

and DAVID HENDIN

NEW YORK — Mention the need for another type of diet and the average overweight, underexercised individual will react with a dramatic, "Yu-u-uk!" However, the diet of most Americans, no matter how rich or poor they are, is just that — yuky — and needs all the help it can get.

The diet of most Americans, and individuals in most highly industrialized countries, is considered too high in saturated fats, too low in polyunsaturated fats. It is estimated the average American consumes about three times as much saturated fat as polyunsaturated fat (P/S ration of 0.3 to 1). The recommended proportion is a P/S ration of 1 to 1 or lower. Specifically, we're eating too much well-marbled fatty beef, eggs, cheese and butter and not enough fruits, vegetables and fish. It is time to bring the types of fats consumed in the daily diet in line.

Fats are necessary. The trick is to cut down on fat intake and to shuffle the type of fats we consume in such a way as to be most beneficial to each individual. To do this a person must include at least as much polyunsaturated as saturated fat in each day's forays to the table or lunch counter.

Since animal fats generally are high in saturated fat content, it simply means cutting down on or eliminating completely food notoriously high in animal fats.

Meat and potatoes men and chocolate bon-bon gals should join "high fats anonymous." Those truly concerned with their future health prospects then will learn and help these fatoholics to under-

However, it is not the aim of this book to play doctor to millions. Many persons must follow specific diets because of such a condition as diabetes. Those with severe cholesterol problems will need to follow their doctor's recommended diet and exercise instructions. For many, such a diet means a completely new world of taste sensations and a turn-around in eating habits. The decision is up to you. Is your life worth such changes?

Hawaiian Fruit Sherbet
3 bananas, mashed
1 1/2 cups skim milk
1 can frozen lemonade concentrate

Combine all ingredients and pour into refrigerator tray. Place in freezer compartment. Stir every 30 minutes until mush, about hours. Freeze until firm. Makes 4 servings.

***
Three-Way Fruit Chiffon

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar, divided
1 (1-pound) can fruit cocktail, blueberries or peach slices
6 tablespoons lemon juice, divided

1/2 cup ice water
1/2 cup nonfat dry milk powder

Mix together unflavored gelatin and 1/4-cup of the sugar in saucepan. Drain syrup from fruit into saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat, add 4 tablespoons of the lemon juice and drained fruit. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg white. While mixture is chilling, whip nonfat milk.

Pour ice water into mixing bowl, add nonfat dry milk. Whip until soft peaks form, 3 to 4 minutes. Add remaining 2 tablespoons lemon juice and continue beating until stiff, 3 to 4 minutes longer. Add remaining 1/4 cup sugar. Fold in gelatin mixture. Turn mixture into a 9-inch pie plate, put vanilla wafers around sides. Or, turn into a 6 cup mold or 1 large serving bowl. Makes 6 servings.

stand the low - saturated - fat - low cholesterol - management diet. Modifying the fat content of what you eat daily means some adjustments.

Few deletions in food for this cholesterol management diet are painful — giving up chocolate pound cake with dark chocolate icing and ice cream is far less painful, for instance, than a heart attack that continued, regular eating of such high-saturated-fat goodies may help trigger.

A low-saturated fat, low-cholesterol - management diet requires

1) Buying only lean cuts of meat and eating less meat
2) Eating more fish and poultry.
3) Reducing animal fats in the diet generally

4) Avoiding excessive use of dairy products such as whole eggs, cheese and whole milk

5) Substituting "special" margarines and polyunsaturated vegetable oils (safflower, peanut and cottonseed oil for butter, lard, hydrogenated spreads and coconut oil. (Olive oil is relatively neutral and may be used occasionally.)
6) Adding more herbs and spices to recipes to keep the taste buds tingling.

Following these simple guidelines (for many persons), doctors feel, may help reduce or avoid excessive and damaging cholesterol for men, women and children.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

There is only one thing wrong with South's four-spade bid. It happens not to make.

In rubber bridge your opponents chalk up 100 points in an IMP match, in the event that you bid the game and your opposite numbers stop at a part score, it costs you six IMPs. You go minus 100. They score plus 140 for a net of 240 which represents those six IMPs.

There is nothing to the play of the hand. Game depends on the trump finesse and the finesse doesn't work.

We have shown the hand for two reasons. The first is to show the luck in IMP matches. If both sides bid the same there is no swing. When one stops at a part score and the other bids the game a full 16 IMPs depend on the location of the king of spades.

Put it over in the East hand. The game bidder scores plus 620. The part score bidder plus 170. Then the difference is 450 or 10 IMPs.

It also shows that the game bid is a good one. The game bidder is getting odds of 10 IMPs to six IMPs on the location of the king of spades and that is exactly an even money proposition.

The hand also shows that it pays to bid

'George McGovern: The New Man To Watch'

by BRUCE BLOSSAT
Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, the Democrats' long-time presidential front-runner for 1972, has taken a steep downward plunge in his delegate prospect for the nominating convention in Miami in July. He has lost nearly half the potential he had a month ago.

The second 1972-NEA-National Observer Democratic box score gives Muskie 773½ votes, still enough for first place in the candidate lists but 509 fewer than the 1,282½ first count gave him in mid-March.

The new survey elevates Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota to second place with 490½ delegate votes, a jump of 203 from his total on the initial count. This reflects his clear victory in the important Wisconsin primary, his rising position as a real contender, and Muskie's decline.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, second the last time with 402 votes, slips to third now even though he picks up 66 more votes for 468 total. He has not yet won a primary, and is igniting no big fire.

A CONTINUING surprise is Gov. George Wallace of Alabama. First time out, he scored an impressive 220 votes. Now his prospective total is up by 71 to 291, and he could very well rise later to a point above 300. Some of his gains come out of Muskie's hide.

The rest of Muskie's dramatic vote loss goes into the limbo of the temporarily "uncommitted." This movement mirrors the confusion which besets many political figures and prospective or actual delegates. In New York, for example, Muskie earlier had 167 indicated, and the word was he could have gained much more of the state's 278 votes had he recovered from his first faltering primary showing.

But his fourth-place finishes in Florida and Wisconsin threw his supporters into bewilderment. Most have retreated behind the curtain of indecision, to await clearer signals from later primaries in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Oregon and California.

MUSKIE ACTUALLY is worse off than the figures reveal. A good part of his remaining 773½ is soft and loose, staying put only because it doesn't know where to go or doesn't want to go to Humphrey or McGovern, Muskie's present chief rivals.

Humphrey's very modest gains are a danger sign for him. Few party leaders think he is a good bet to beat President Nixon. They think he has the look and sound of the past about him. His third-place finish in Wisconsin is deemed poor. McGovern is acknowledged as climbing fast, organizing well, and campaigning doggedly. But labor and the party regulars still dislike him, see him as a dubious challenger of Nixon, don't think one primary victory makes a summer. Nevertheless, indicated victories for him

New Teaching Ideas Will Be Discussed

New Ideas in teaching, involvement of high school students, and economic issues will be discussed at the spring conference of the Illinois Council on Economic Education. Co-sponsored by the national Joint Council on Economic Education, it will be held Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Arlington Park Towers hotel.

More than 300 educators, business, labor, and agricultural leaders will be on hand to learn new techniques used in the teaching of economics. They will hear discussions of key economic issues in the state and in the nation, including state financing of elementary and secondary education. The conference is open to the public.

Hair MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

AND HERE ARE 5 REASONS WHY MORE MEN ARE CHOOSING PERMANENT
Lifelike HAIR REPLACEMENT

THE FINEST HAIR — Only the finest European, human hair is used in the Lifelike hairpiece. All hair is carefully processed, matched, and blended for each wearer. Accurate matching is guaranteed with the purchase of each custom Lifelike hairpiece.

NATURAL THROUGHOUT — the Lifelike hairpiece looks like a scalp throughout! Hairs are individually implanted and angled... just like "mother nature" does it. The result... a natural look under all conditions... combed... misted up... soaked wet... or wind blown. This characteristic makes it easy to style and comb.

NO RESTRICTIONS — Can be worn in athletic activities... while sleeping... in the shower or swimming... and generally offer no limitations for even the most active men.

TREAT LIKE YOUR OWN — Because hairs are laminated into the silicone "scalp"... root end first... the hair looks natural and can be easily shampooed. There are no knots to become tangled or come untied. The Lifelike hairpiece can be soaked in conditioners... an essential treatment for maintaining healthy hair in a "hairpiece."

SPACE AGE MATERIALS — Lifelike hairpieces are made from space age materials. The entire scalp is made of silicone and nylon. Silicone has a texture similar to flesh... and even more... it is so durable that General Electric guarantees it to maintain its properties for 10 years. Being flexible, inert and impervious to most chemicals and moisture... it provides the ideal "scalp" for the patented Lifelike hairpiece.

Gambling's The Name Of The Game, But . . .

Las Vegas: It's Not All Garish Glitter

by CLARE WRIGHT
Paddock Publications
Travel Editor

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The sweet-faced, little old lady with a flowered hat rakishly perched atop her snow-white hair had brought her lunch.

It was apparent she intended to spend most of the day with the "one-armed bandits" lined up against the wall in the corner drug store.

"She comes in here every day," said the man behind the counter.

"Always plays the quarter machines — wins a jackpot now and then."

Well, that's the name of the game here. Gambling.

And you sure can't miss the fact. Slot machines surround you every place you go. It seems — in the airport terminal, supermarkets, drug stores, hotel lobbies — everywhere.

In casinos all over the town the little white ball twirls around countless roulette wheels. Stakes from 25 cents to $2,500 are laid on the line at the craps table.

Believe it or not, however, Las Vegas is more than gambling.

It's also the entertainment capital of the world — one of the greatest places in the country for terrific eating at low prices — a marriage center for couples in a hurry — a popular convention spot — a wonderland of sightseeing tours — and a vacation mecca where there's sunshine practically every day.

WE'VE BEEN TOLD there are more entertainers and musicians playing before live audiences in Las Vegas than in any other city in the world.

Payrolls for the dancers, showgirls, stage hands, electricians and countless professional people behind the scenes, in any one show, average between $60,000 and $75,000 a week.

Stage effects are fantastic — with lavishly costumed (or uncostumed) showgirls, exquisite scenery, trapeze aerialists who seem to swing out over the audience from nowhere, and a constant array of special effects which set Las Vegas shows apart from the rest.

There are big names too. Very big.

Just drive along the Strip or through downtown "Casino Center" and count the names of top Hollywood, Broadway and TV stars on hotel marquees.

Where there aren't headliners there are creative extravaganzas like nothing you've ever seen before. At the Circus Circus, for example, a continuous string of top circus acts — aerialists, jugglers, animal acts, clowns and pretty girls — performs overhead while you play the slot machines or other games in the casino. All you pay is $1.25 admission (sometimes free). You don't even have to gamble if you don't want to — just sit and watch the acts.

At the Dunes, where the electric power bill for its eighty-foot high sign runs to $140 a day, you can watch the spectacular Casino-de-Paris revue with girls in bathtubs, galloping horses, monkeys dressed up as Indians, and a simulated Roman orgy scene, which costs the hotel $6 million a year (including $169,000 worth of feathers!).

Las Vegas tours, like its showgirls, come in all sizes. You'll find bus tours, air tours, boat tours, and tours in a rented car — day tours, night tours, short tours and long tours.

A FOUR-HOUR excursion to Hoover Dam by bus — including a walking trip through the interior of the dam — is $6 a person.

Other tours feature trips to Grand Canyon, Death Valley and Disneyland, Las Vegas city tours and nightclub party tours.

The most complete lake tour is offered by Lake Mead Yacht Tours, with daily sightseeing cruises from Lake Mead Marina, 21 miles from Las Vegas.

At the marina you board the $100,000 air-conditioned luxury yacht Echo for a 2½ hour cruise which includes a close-up look at Hoover Dam, lake landmarks like Boat House Cove, site of movie locations, and historic mines.

After lunch at Echo Bay Resort you go by bus to the Valley of Fire State Park where you feel yourself catapulted millions of years into the past as you travel through ancient Aztec sandstone formations that have eroded over the centuries into striking shapes.

"GLITTER GULCH" — Often called the most dazzlingly lit few blocks in the world, famed Fremont Street in downtown Las Vegas is a spectacle of stunning neon and millions of light bulbs. They embellish the busy clubs in high rise hotels concentrated in this popular Casino Center. It's a sight that seldom fails to leave the first-time Las Vegas visitor breathless. (Trans World Airlines Photo)

A South Pacific Paradise!

Come With Us On A Tour Of This Alluring, Picturesque Fantasyland

by CLARE WRIGHT

Surfboat racing! Polynesian dancing! Flying through the snowy peaks of the Southern Alps!

You can thrill to all of these — in dynamic living color — in Eastman Kodak Company's exciting new wide-screen spectacle, "South Pacific — Picture Paradise," to be presented at 8 p.m., next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 17-19, at Prospect High School, Mount Prospect.

This feature-length family show guides you through the picturesque settings of Hawaii, Fiji, Australia, New Zealand, Tahiti, Bora Bora, and the alluring isle of Moorea.

The free travel show is being co-hosted by American Airlines and Paddock Publications, and we are inviting you and your friends to be our guests.

THROUGH AN unusual blending of movies and color slides on a wide theater screen, you'll travel in the footsteps of the famous Captain Cook who sailed to these magical south sea islands some 200 years ago.

You'll see such fascinating lifestyles as Tahitians trading in Papeete's curious marketplace, Fijian spear fishermen working in mangrove-studded lagoons, and native Maoris cooking their meals in New Zealand's boiling hot springs.

"South Pacific — Picture Paradise" shows us the "Aloha" state of Hawaii as the fun-loving, tropical gateway to the south seas.

In contrast, New Zealand, remote and compelling, is a world in itself. You'll see why this "Switzerland of the South Pacific" stands as a living textbook on geography.

Australia holds one of the feature spots in the show, contrasting spots in the show, contrasting the rugged existence of the outback aborigine with the upbeat pace of swinging Sydney.

Kodak photographers captured on film an intimate portrayal of the Australian, how he works and plays, and the dramatic scenery that surrounds his home.

"SOUTH PACIFIC — Picture Paradise" unfolds across a giant 36-foot screen as six Kodak Carousel slide projectors, in combination with movies, create this unusual travel adventure. Through the show, a novel multi-image technique enhances the effect of the wide screen while a special dissolve control blends the many images together.

Live narration by a Kodak expert unites with a high-fidelity stereo soundtrack that features the lively music of the South Seas.

This spectacular show is both entertaining and educational. It's a wide-screen delight for the whole family to enjoy.

Admission is by ticket only. You may pick up your free tickets at any Paddock Publications office, or at the travel agencies listed in the advertisement on this page.

SHOP STOP — Straw skirts and colorful baskets are on display in open-air marketplace of Suva, capital of the Fiji Islands. Duty-free merchandise — radios, cameras, perfumes and jewelry — also is popular. You'll see many scenes from the Fiji Islands and their enchanting South Seas setting in "South Pacific — Picture Paradise," April 17, 18 and 19. (American Airlines Photo)

What Should You Order In British Pub?

Persons traveling to Great Britain for the first time sometimes wonder what they should order in a pub.

Unless you want to experiment with beer, you order pretty much what you order in an American bar: gin and tonic, beer, or whiskey and water (whiskey means scotch).

Of course, right next to you there may be a Britisher ordering gin and ginger (gingerale), gin and orange, gin and lemon and any one of a dozen other exotic concoctions.

If you want to experiment with beer, remember there are four or five basic divisions.

If you want American type beers, though it may not be chilled, you will find it is usually labeled "lager" and often "export."

LAGERS ARE usually sold by the bottle as are Guinness Stout and the other various makes of stout (a dark, thick, strong ale).

Should you want true English beer, ask for mild or bitter. There are British beers which have more, or less, hop flavor. Some people prefer them mixed and order mild and bitter. These are usually dispensed either from a small keg or, if it's a very old pub, from old-fashioned beer pulls.

Here are some interesting pubs in or near the center of London.

DIRTY DICKS, 202 Bishop's Gate, E C 2, boasts proudly that it hasn't been cleaned up in 200 years. It is literally embalmed in spider webs, cat mummies and dust. Lots of atmosphere.

THE LAMB AND FLAG, 33 Rose St., in the heart of the theater district, is a picturesque relic of Elizabethan times.

THE SHERLOCK HOLMES, 10 Northumberland St., W C 2, where you can have normal pub fare in a sort of Sherlock Holmes museum, if you don't mind the Hound of the Baskervilles staring at you from a case beside the three orange pips.

THE WATERMAN'S ARMS, 1 Glenaffric Ave., E 14 (you'll need a taxi to get to this one) offers a music hall band.

THE PROSPECT OF WHITBY, also down around the docks, is immensely popular and features guitar playing and an historic past.

Districts: Fund Center

Schools in the Northwest suburbs have taken a progressive step in establishing a public school for the mentally ill. But the school's continuing success hinges on the officials' renewed support each year.

The school and a counseling center, called the "Center For Child and Family Studies," draw from a large bloc of suburbs in Palatine, Wheeling and Elk Grove townships. Located in Arlington Heights, the mental health facilities serve School Districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57, 59 and 214.

Presently the participating school districts pay two-thirds of the cost of sending approximately 90 children to the Dwyer Elementary School and an auxiliary high school. The remaining one-third of the cost, paid on a per student basis, is picked up by the federal education office.

The number of children enrolled in the special schools each year is dependent partly on the budget status of each district. As psychologist Thomas Smith pointed out, special services are often the first to go when a school district has to cut down on costs. Consequently, the center directors are faced with uncertainty in planning from one year to the next.

We commend the school districts' commitment to mental health, but we feel they should go one step further and find a more stable means of supporting the special schools.

The school districts might, for example, use the fee method now practiced with members of the Northwest Education Cooperative. The members pay a flat fee with an additional per student fee. The flat fee gives the program budget security and flexibility.

For the sake of continuity we also propose that participation in the mental health program be extended to all districts participating in NEC, the governing body for the program. Currently High School Dist. 211 is the only district not sending students to the special schools. As a result, an elementary school student has to leave the program once he reaches the high school level if he lives in Dist. 211.

With full participation and a more secure budget, the job of the special staff will be greatly facilitated. The ones to benefit most will be the children attending the schools. Without the mental health program many would be placed in private schools for the retarded, state mental institutions, or other facilities.

As long as the special program is supported, the children may receive professional care and at the same time attend public school and continue to live at home. The program is well worth greater support.

Spring Scavenging For Status

we're nowhere on the status ladder — Wally and I can't agree on the definition of junk. He thinks my dog-eared books and old fruit jars qualify and I think his hammer handles and coffee cans full of rusty nails ought to go. I call him Hitler because he wants to destroy my books and he calls me a snob for wanting to throw out the tools of his trade. But he read somewhere that rusty nails are good for something only he can't remember what and maybe the answer is in one of my books. So we're stuck with it all for another year.

There's one perfectly acceptable way I can avoid going through another spring with a naked curb and that's to join the throngs of junkers, pick up a few things and bring them home for my own curbside. That's the nice part about the best swap shop that is suburbia in springtime — junkers have as much status as junk kees, and junking is not only socially acceptable, it's expected.

There are the eternally optimistic treasure hunters who know somebody who knows somebody who once found a $150 cut glass bowl in a curbside junk heap. There is the dedicated do-it-yourselfer on the prowl for an old television cabinet that he can make into an end table (which will always look like an old television cabinet and cause weisenheimer friends to say, "Hey, Charlie, your end table just blew a tube.")

Then there's the genuine junk dealers but they don't stand a chance. Especially in our town this year when the usual month-long junk jubilee is being telescoped into three days.

In the good old days each quadrant of town was serviced for an entire week and everybody had plenty of time to shop around. This year's three-day crash program is designed to change all that and on second thought I don't think I'll go out junking after all. It won't be safe.

Not only will there be massive traffic jams and classic donnybrooks over possession of a choice item, but everybody's tempers will be short because of the income tax — the first-day of the cleanup and I bet the village fathers never thought of that.

Come to think of it, neither did I until just this minute and now I know there won't be anything on the Meyer curb this year. How do I know what I can afford to throw away until I find out if I have a refund coming?

And I'll be darned if I'll settle for two dozen fruit jars and four coffee cans full of rusty nails — there's nothing more demoralizing than having your junk snubbed.

Viet Invasion Was Expected

by BRUCE BLOSSAT

Stories are incorrect which say the Pentagon gave no warning that a North Vietnamese offensive might strike hard at South Vietnamese territory just below the so-called Demilitarized Zone.

Weeks ago, a Pentagon official told me a principal fear of the U.S. military was that North Vietnamese regulars would execute a powerful sweep across the northernmost province which would carry them to the Gulf of Tonkin coast and possibly engulf two or three sizable South Vietnamese cities.

It is not true, as some prestigious newspapers are now saying, that the Pentagon has been focusing all its fears on the prospect of enemy assaults in South Vietnam's central highlands (Military Region 2).

Trouble has been expected there, of course, since this thinly populated area is the weakest element in that country's defenses. It is the one area where the otherwise battered Viet Cong have retained a continuing strong presence and can provide North Vietnamese regulars with important field support.

What seems more puzzling from this distance is this:

If our military could perceive the danger to the northern provinces, it must be presumed that Saigon's commanders saw it, too. Why, then, would they put main reliance there on the relatively new, inexperienced 3rd Division?

It is that division which the North Vietnamese, storming across the DMZ with tanks and artillery, have cut up badly and driven from a host of defensive fire bases.

The deployment below the DMZ of a division formed only last year suggests a serious nervousness on the part of President Thieu's government about the military stability of the more populous regions of South Vietnam from a line above Saigon on down the southern Vietnam from a line above Saigon on down the southern Mekong River delta. Obviously, the most experienced troops are being kept on station in those areas.

To the extent any substantial portion of the better units is now committed to the northern battle, they will provide the acid test of the Vietnamization program. For if they, too, should be rolled back, then the message would be plain: South Vietnam, left to its own combat ground forces, does not have the capacity to contain a really hard thrust from Hanoi.

Tomorrow . . .

EDITORIAL The players are responsible for the baseball strike — and should move to end it.

The view all along at the Pentagon has been more optimistic. It has been that North Vietnam could score some early ground gains in the north and in the central region, but that the cost in blood and arms would be heavy for Hanoi and eventually compel a halt to the offensive.

That conceivably still could be the outcome, though it is much too early to say.

Clearly Saigon is getting substantial air support from the United States in the effort to blunt the drive. Our calling into gulf waters of additional aircraft carriers is an indication we can no longer provide such assistance from in-country fighter-bombers. Only four squadrons of U.S. attack aircraft are left in South Vietnam. Saigon's own "air" is growing apace, but it does not and will not include our faster, more sophisticated planes nor any of the potent "gunships."

Nor can Saigon any longer look for big in-country ground combat from America. We have just seven "maneuver" battalions left there, against a high of 112 at the war's manpower peak. Their job is truly defensive. On the ground, Saigon is really alone.

'Majority: Pro-Abortion'

I have been reading the pro and con abortion reply letters with great interest, and I want to first commend the Herald for taking what would appear (if one only read the replies) to be the side of the minority feeling on this issue. This is the point which I wish to clarify by writing this letter; I realized long ago that to attempt a rational debate on abortion reform with one who is against abortion is a waste of time. An article in the April 3 Herald will serve here to point out the facts when attempting to determine just how the majority of people right in this asked. My point: When asked if the restrictive abortion laws of Illinois should have some change, 69.6 per cent said yes, 23 per cent said no, and 7.4 per cent had no opinion. This poll produced the same results as many others I have seen published.

This is all to say, in essence, that we are hearing from only one-fourth of the community when we hear the cries of "Murder!" Quite tragically, it is this small, but vocal and very vehement, segment of the people who are heard most often and loudly by our legislators every time abortion reform bills are debated. These are the few who leave their homes and families, armed with their fetus pictures, to display their force in Springfield. How long are we going to have our private lives ruled by a minority? The majority of us want Illinois to revise its archaic abortion laws (where not even rape or incest or fetal deformity are legal reasons for abortion)! Abortion has been in existence since man, but when are we going to treat it with understanding and with realistic laws?

'Residents Oppose Mixed Races'

Why are the people of Arlington Heights afraid of FHA 235?

I would like to put my two cents worth of words in for FHA 235. (Just the program.)

This is a program for low income families who cannot afford to buy a house on a regular FHA or conventional basis. The homeowner pays for the house and the government pays most of the interest on the house. Take for example a $24,200 (maximum mortgage). With the interest rate that it is now, not too many people can afford to pay a $200 or over mortgage on the house. On 235 the mortgage rate would be $122. The mortgage raises and lowers with the income or if a new member of the family "pops" in.

All these houses are supposedly approved by FHA. I have seen old FHA 235 housing that the aluminum siding has buckled. For this, don't blame the people who live there, blame FHA and the construction companies.

Fact it, who can afford to buy a house or rent an apartment with the way the money crumbles nowadays.

I think that the people of Arlington Heights are afraid of one thing . . . mixed races.

Juckett's Pleased

Your support of my candidacy for re-nomination as 4th district Republican Representative was most gratifying and helpful.

I thank you, as well as the many Republican voters who asked for a Republican ballot at the March 21 primary in order to help their local candidates. My Republican friends gave me a big vote of confidence, and I pledge to continue to work and speak for them, to earn their confidence and support.

19th Century Gift

The graft-ridden administration of Ulysses S. Grant is not numbered among the most illustrious in America's history. Yet, with one stroke of the presidential pen 100 years ago, Grant did something that places him among the greatest presidents in terms of what they bequeathed to posterity.

This was his signing on March 1, 1872, of a bill creating Yellowstone National Park in the distant and still unexplored West.

Yellowstone was more than just America's first national park and the beginning of a system that now numbers 36 parks and more than 200 other national landmarks and recreation areas.

It was the first time in history that a nation had set aside part of its territory to preserve for future generations. The example of Yellowstone inspired similar park systems in other countries.

Before the turn of the century, Yellowstone had been joined by Yosemite, Sequoia, General Grant (later renamed King's Canyon) and Mount Rainier National Parks.

In 1899, when memories of the Indian wars were still fresh, Congress acted to preserve the remains of ancient pre-Columbian civilizations, first at Casa Grande and later Mesa Verde.

Some of this may be news to those who believe that ecology and conservation and environment are words that were coined yesterday.

True, our forefathers were often careless and prodigal with this land. Yet an appreciation of its natural beauty and the awareness that this beauty is a heritage to be passed on unspoiled is not the exclusive discovery of latter-day "Consciousness III" types.

Yellowstone came into being because a 14-man exploring party was so impressed by its wonders and grandeur that they gave up all thought of staking claims. Around a campfire on the night of Sept. 9, 1870, Montana Territorial Judge Cornelius Hedges advanced the idea of making the area a national trust for generations yet unborn.

What is remarkable is that this concept could have been accepted at a time when so much of America was still wilderness, when there seemed to be an unlimited quantity of land and wealth for the taking and when only a very small fraction of a small population could make the difficult journey to the remote Yellowstone area.

Today, of course, it is just the opposite. Highways and automobiles have brought America's natural beauties within reach of everyone — so much so that some areas of some parks in peak tourist seasons resemble city slums.

But the parks are there. What would America be like today if a few men had not had vision 100 years ago?

Business Today

by LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — A leaky roof, a ladder with a couple cracked rungs, a tank of water too close to power outlets — these and thousands of other safety hazards will trip up many American business firms in the coming year.

More than 7,000 citations for such violations were issued by federal inspectors in the first seven months after the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) went in effect last April.

The law will be one year old April 28 and federal officials say they intend to make a staggering 110,000 inspections — many unannounced — in the second year of the law's life. There have been about 15,000 inspections during the first year.

"Industry is looking on the prospect with consternation and bewilderment," say officials of Middle West Service Co., a management consultant firm that specializes in giving advice on safety. "Such a rigorous and ever-present threat of inspection has been described as 'a lawyer's dream and an engineer's nightmare,'" the consulting firm said.

The impact on business, the firm said, could be almost as great as the imposition of the corporate income tax.

The law was passed in an effort to reduce industrial accidents that have been causing about 14,000 deaths and 2.2 million injuries each year.

OSHA inspections are different from insurance company inspections. As one inspector put it — "On an insurance job you can just walk away from a factory with a miserable safety situation and refuse to write a policy. With the government, you can't walk out; you have to stay and help them set up a good new program."

Motorists To Be Using Lead-Free Fuels In 70s

Catalytic converters and lead-free fuels will be the reality of the road for the U.S. motoring public in the seventies, according to automotive expert Harold R. Taliaferro. The coordinator of automotive emissions research at American Oil Co.'s Whiting Research and Development Laboratories, Taliaferro made this prediction in a recent speech before the Desk and Derrick Chicago chapter.

"Since air control became a national priority in 1960," he noted, "the automotive and petroleum industries have dramatically reduced auto emissions. In fact, unburned hydrocarbons have been reduced by 80 per cent, carbon dioxide by 70 per cent, and nitric oxide by 30 per cent."

"These emissions compose three of the five major air pollutants," Taliaferro observed. "The other two, sulfur dioxide and particulates, come primarily from sources other than gasoline powered engines."

"Health Education and Welfare studies classify air pollution as coming from two sources — stationary, such as factories, and mobile, such as cars. Automobiles account for 38 per cent of the air pollution problem," he continued.

"THE FEDERAL Clean Air Amendments of 1970, or as they are known — the Muskie Clean Air Act — requires very stringent limitations on pollution by cars to be met in the 1975 and 1976 model year cars," Taliaferro said.

"However, the Clean Air Amendment allows a one year extension to meet its standards," he added, "and requests for the extension from automotive manufacturers are now being considered by the Environmental Protection Agency. Barring any eleventh hour technological breakthroughs, researchers believe the most practical way to meet the 1975 and 1976 clean air requirements is via the catalytic converter."

"The converter, also referred to as the catalytic muffler," he noted, "is a highly sophisticated engineering package which reduces harmful auto exhaust to harmless water vapor and carbon dioxide. A catalytic muffler must use a fuel that is virtually lead-free. The reason for this is simple," Taliaferro said. "Lead deactivates the metal catalysts in the muffler, and the expensive emission control system won't work. The result," he stated, "is that the air would continue to be polluted by harmful automobile exhaust."

"BESIDES THE advantages of clean air," Taliaferro said, "the motorist can save up to four or five cents per gallon in gasoline related maintenance over a four year period using lead-free fuels."

Desk and Derrick is a women's organization of petroleum and allied industry employees whose 8,000 members represent nearly every phase of the petroleum industry.

Belt-Tightening Under Way At UOP

A general belt-tightening program is underway at Des Plaines-based Universal Oil Products Co. (UOP). The firm reported disappointing financial results in its recent 1971 annual report, but indicated that fourth quarter results were "encouraging."

The company reported a net loss for 1971 totaling $28,860,000, or $2.69 a share, on revenues of $470,282,000. This includes extraordinary items of $15,478,000 or $1.55 a share.

UPO's net income for last year, related to reflect the acquisition of The Stanifort Group of Companies in 1971, was $5,336,000, or 53 cents a share. This includes an extraordinary gain of $679,000 or 7 cents a share, on revenues of $499,587,000.

Net income in the fourth quarter of last year, however, reached $5,855,000 or 59 cents a share. This includes an extraordinary gain of $1,425,000, or 15 cents a share. Full tax credit for write-offs made in September, 1971, accounted for this earnings gain, the company said.

Last year's extraordinary items reflected the cost of closing down and consolidating several UOP operations.

Operating losses in 1971 were incurred mainly by the UOP international construction subsidiary, Procon, and by its Aerospace Division. The Procon loss was attributed to unfavorable weather and labor conditions at a new plant in Quebec, Canada. Unusual engineering and development costs coupled with general economic problems accounted for the financial problems in the Aerospace division.

A renegotiation of the UOP credit agreement with a group of 10 banks makes a $50 million line of credit available through September. This is reduced through September. This is reduced to $35 million through Dec. 31 of this year and appears "more than adequate" to meet credit requirements, according to UOP executives.

Special restrictions were placed on capital expenditures due to the earnings slump last year. Several previously approved projects were deferred. UOP expects to continue this program through 1972 with capital expenditures set at $14 million.

Research expenditures in 1971 were maintained at 1970 levels even though they had been budgeted approximately 10 per cent higher. The company's cash position at the end of 1971 was improved as a result of these measures.

A NEW CORPORATE Strategies Plan was developed for UOP reported John O. Logan, president and chief executive officer; and Maynard P. Venema, chairman of the board. "Under the broad framework of these plans, we are refining our goals and concentrating our efforts to achieve them," the executives said. "Some of our units may disappear by divestment, consolidation or liquidation in this process. We expect to achieve stronger and more profitable operating units." UOP will continue to engage in marketing its managerial and technological skills on a worldwide basis. The firm plans to concentrate its efforts on geographic areas with high industrial growth rates as Europe and Japan. UOP plans to increase participation in consumer lines of business in addition to its activities in petroleum, chemical, petrochemical and other industries.

Despite the disappointing earnings picture reported for 1971, UOP noted that several divisions experienced substantial progress last year. These include: Amalgam Division, producer of resin-impregnated tubing and cylinders; Process Division, largest single earnings-generator for UOP; Air Correction Division; Flexonics Division; Norplex laminated plastics and copper-clad circuit board producer; Johnson Division in the U.S., and English and U.S. operations of UOP Fragrances; and Goodman-Stanforth Division, in the hardwood veneer and lumber business.

UOP intends to extend its operations in the environmental and energy areas. Several of its divisions are engaged in anti-pollution programs. These include new water treatment methods; sulphur removal system (Sulfoxel) for electrical generating plants, the construction of liquefied natural gas and substitute natural gas plants; and the development of catalysts for automotive emission control systems.

Improved Employment
Picture Escapes Public

Though the public's attention has been focused on a sticky unemployment rate, which has held in a 5.7 percent-6.1 per cent range for 16 months, economists at Chicago's Northern Trust Bank say the employment situation has "improved markedly" since mid-1971.

Employment began to move up strongly last summer with the addition of 1.7 million jobs since mid-1971, a recent issue of the bank's economic newsletter, Business Comment, says. By contrast, in the prior seven months of the business recovery, virtually no change occurred.

However, even with the strong growth in total employment, the widely watched unemployment rate has remained high because of a near-matching expansion in the size of the labor force. Women and teenagers have accounted for disproportionately large shares of the increase, while the adult male share has been less than one-half, even though men make up more than 57 per cent of the total work force and an even higher percentage of total employment.

This changing age-sex composition of the labor force has contributed to the increased unemployment rate, as both teenagers and women have typically had higher rates of unemployment than adult males. "If the age-sex composition of the labor force had remained constant during the past 10 years," says Business Comment, "1971's average unemployment rate would have been about 5.6 per cent rather than 5.9 per cent."

The employment picture should brighten appreciably in 1972, Northern Trust economists conclude, if business conditions continue to improve. Given the current level of overtime, rising production should be reflected more directly in increased employment. No dramatic fall in the unemployment rate is likely, however, cautions Business Comment, for as job opportunities improve, the labor force will also grow — perhaps showing a large increase in 1972 than in 1971.

Grandpa's Desk
Is Gone

H. C. Paddock, venerable newspaperman who carried his slogan "Our Aim: To Fear God, Tell the Truth and Make Money" everywhere he went, has been gone 36 years.

But his spirit to create and operate the best possible newspaper carries on in the hearts of his grandchildren and great-grandchildren currently employed by The Paddock Corporation.

The growth and development of Paddock printing and publishing facilities have been told many times. That paper-cluttered desk was moved long ago; the cashier of Dunton House Restaurant in Arlington Heights now stands in almost the same spot.

The latest expansion program for the local newspaper facility includes acquisition of another newspaper press to help the daily HERALD meet the demands of larger editions and more readers.

No progress is ever realized without a casualty; in this case, the casualty is our Commercial Printing Division. To make room for our newspaper expansion, commercial printing presses have been moved out and sold to Warren Rogers Printing Co., Inc., in Palatine.

To our many customers who have been ordering wedding and anniversary invitations, business cards, posters, business forms and other printed materials, please take note:

Paddock is no longer in the Commercial Printing Business

If you'd like to drop in and reminisce about Grandpa's Desk, fine. But if you'd like to order any of the multitude of printing needs you came to expect from Paddock, we're sorry — the newspaper presses have taken over.

Taxpayers Ask The IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) My employer transferred me to another state last year and as a result I plan to claim a moving expense deduction. In addition, my wife and I are thinking of filing separate returns. Are the dollar limitations on moving expenses different for spouses filing jointly and separately?

A) In addition to direct costs of moving, expenses may be deducted for the sale or purchase of a residence or the termination or acquisition of a lease, house-hunting trips, and temporary lodging and meals at the new location. However, the total deduction for these three categories cannot exceed $2,500 with the latter two limited to no more than $1,000 in total. The limitation is half the above amounts, $1,250 and $500, for certain married couples filing separate returns. However, if you and your wife file separate income tax returns and one of the following circumstances exists, the $1,250 and $500 limitations do not apply:

1) Only one spouse commences work at a new principal place of work for which a deduction is allowable, or
2) Both spouses commence work at new principal places of work which are at least 50 miles apart and they do not reside together at the same residence during the taxable year.

Under the second situation, a husband and wife filing a joint return may each deduct up to $2,500 for expenses in connection with the sale or purchase of a residence or the termination or acquisition of a lease and $1,000 for expenses for house-hunting trips and temporary lodging and meals at the new location.

Married couples who meet the qualifications under the revised rules may disregard the dollar limitations for married filing separately listed on Form 3903, Moving Expense Adjustment.

Q) Some friends and I are planning to form an investment club. Does the IRS have a publication on the tax duties and responsibilities of such a club and its members?

A) Yes. Call your local IRS office or write to your IRS district office and ask for a copy of Publication 550, TX Information on Investment Income and Expenses. It's available free.

A) I should have filed an estimated income tax return last year, but I didn't. Will I have to pay an estimated tax penalty this year after my Form 1040 is processed?

A) The six percent penalty for underpayment of 1971 estimated income tax does not apply in the case of single persons with gross incomes of not more than $10,000 or married persons filing jointly, heads of households and surviving spouses with incomes of not more than $20,000 provided the taxpayer did not have more than $200 ($400 in the case of married taxpayers filing jointly) in income other than wages. In addition, the waiver applies only for tax year 1971.

For more information on estimated tax, see Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax. It's available free by dropping a postcard to your IRS district office.

A) My son purchased a car last year. Does the amount he paid count toward his support when I figure out whether or not I can claim him as a dependent?

A) No. The purchase of an automobile, whether by you or your dependent, is not considered when determining total support.

Q) If I let the IRS compute my tax, will it delay any refund I may have coming?

A) No. The IRS can compute the tax and issue a refund within 4-6 weeks from the date the return is filed with the service center. So, actually, your refund will not be delayed by having IRS compute the tax since the computations are checked on all returns received.

Q) Do you have to use sales tax tables in your tax forms instructions to compute your sales tax deduction?

A) No. If you kept records, you can deduct the actual amounts you paid in sales tax for 1971. However, if you use the sales tax tables to determine your deduction, you may add to the amount shown sales tax paid on the purchase of automobiles, airplanes, boats, mobile homes and materials to build your own home.

Marszalek Key Card Returnee

by JIM COOK

"It's hard to picture a team that will mow down everyone," Arlington head golf coach Tom Walthouse said.

He should know. His Cardinal linksmen have but one dual-meet blemish on a two-year Mid-Suburban League record. Arlington cruised home with a 9-0 slate in 1971, but Walthouse doesn't think this year's winner will survive unscathed.

"I see it as a very close race," he explained. "There are a lot of enthusiastic players and coaches this time of year and given a certain day, I can think of four or five teams that could be tough."

The Cards will be winging behind senior standout and captain Chris Marszalek — last year's conference meet medalist and 38.4 dual-meet average scorer. He's already hit 35 this spring in an exhibition round.

John Gibbel will also give Arlington experience as the team's other returning letterman. Gibbel finished in the top 30 in the MSL meet and averaged 42 strokes a match last season.

Walthouse is also eyeing seniors Dan Hahn and Jay Colleton, juniors Steve Sluka, Jeff Palmer, Dan Herrick and Dave Hartman and soph Steve Loughman for team support.

The defending champs are slated to open against Hersey at 3:30 this afternoon at Buffalo Grove.

Cards, Mustangs Form Hockey Teams

A FEW WEEKS AGO it was predicted here that in three years there would be high school hockey competition in this area.

Well, it wasn't the first prediction on a sports page that has gone awry. The timetable was off by two years.

At least two local schools — Arlington and Rolling Meadows — have definite plans to put teams on the ice next season and there may very well be more by the time another winter rolls around. This signals the beginning of a long-awaited new era in prep sports in the northwest suburbs.

Arlington and Rolling Meadows both are hoping to gain admission to the Chicago Metropolitan High School League which got off the ground last January. This league virtually marked the start of ice competition in the suburbs and among non-Catholic schools.

It was predictable that this would happen sooner or later with the tremendous interest growth in hockey in this area and the sprouting up of new youth leagues in several area communities in the last three years. But it might surprise some that prep teams are being formed this soon.

This column has discussed youth hockey, its inception and growth in this area before, so we won't go into that again. But it should interest some to look into the facts of how the two local prep programs are being initiated so that others can see how it's done.

The Chicago Metropolitan League started with eight teams this year and hopes to expand to between 24 and 32 for next season, depending on availability of ice and how financial problems are worked out by the different interested teams.

But since the league may have to be limited and since so many schools have expressed the desire to join, some may have to be excluded. Chances for Rolling Meadows and Arlington look good, but even if they are not admitted to the league it wouldn't stop them from playing non-conference independent schedules and preparing for the following season.

Whoever plays for Arlington can thank Dean of Boys Guy Vena for his help. Vena seven years ago organized the very successful Bemidji Ball intramural program at Arlington.

For this reason and a hockey interest and background of his own (Vena played college intramurals at Bemidji State, Minn., and in a men's league in Oak Park), he was asked to help get the ball (puck?) rolling by some aspirants from the Arlington Heights Minor Hockey Association.

"The team will be on a club basis, not part of the school athletic program," pointed out Vena, "and the boys will have to raise the money for it themselves. This is the same situation at other high schools that are starting teams.

"I presented the idea to the Student Activities Director, who is in charge of all clubs in the school, and he saw no reason why we couldn't function as a club.

"It might cost something like $60 a boy and the team might play about a 20-game schedule. But it's no different from the Ski Club members spending money to go on trips. It just depends on what you want to spend your money for."

When a meeting was called for prospective members it was obvious that the interest was there. Thirty-five boys (all juniors or younger, of course) signed up. Nearly all have previous experience in the Minor Hockey Association, which is proving to be a springboard to the high school team.

"I knew that there were good hockey players around here," said Vena of Arlington, "and I think it's good that they'll have a chance to play together. There are 125 boys playing Bemidji Ball and I know there must be some good players among them. We'll also be getting some eighth graders who have the training."

To get the necessary money, there will be fund-raising projects to complement the boys' and parents' money. Arlington players already have been soliciting contributions from local merchants.

The program at Rolling Meadows is starting in much the same way. Again, a youth Park District program in the extensive Rolling Meadows House Hockey program which runs year around is an important factor in preparing boys with fundamentals.

"Forming the team was a student-initiated request," said Rolling Meadows Assistant Principal Richard Schnell. "We took an interest survey and 50 kids showed up at a meeting.

"The problems, of course, are that the school district can't afford to help us financially," Schnell went on. "And we must be sanctioned and have insurance for everybody.

"Jim Bergin (who owns the James A. Bergin Co. in Chicago) will be our coach. He knows a lot about the game and teaching it. He plays semi-pro hockey and has coached in the program at the Sports Complex. He'll have three or four assistants.

"The roster will be limited to 20 for league play so some boys will have to be cut. But everyone who wants to play will be welcome in the club to practice and play outside the league. I expect there will be 40 or 50."

The question no longer is, how long will it take for prep hockey to start in this area? The only question now is, how many teams will there be by next winter?

The sky's the limit if recent developments are an indication.

Triangular At Conant Highlights Opening Of League Track Action

by LARRY EVERHART

Possibly the best of a full slate of four triangular meets that will open the Mid-Suburban League track season Tuesday is the matchup that will find Fremd and Wheeling at Conant.

All three figure to finish well up the ladder in the final standings, although Palatine has been tabbed the favorite by most coaches with Elk Grove not far behind.

Tuesday's opener will be the first of a month-long series of "practice" meets among league schools. Only the MSL meet at Forest View May 12 will mean anything in the standings.

Wheeling has one of the most ambitious track slates in the area with 14 meets lined up including the district. Fremd has almost as many, 12.

Conant was scheduled to open its outdoor campaign Saturday. The Cougars' season was previewed in last Friday's Herald.

Here are the outlooks for today's other two opponents:

FREM D

The Vikings may not be as strong as in past years — like last year when they won the MSL title — but the school, rich in track tradition, has some outstanding distance runners from a cross country team that was eighth in the state.

"Our strongest points will be the long runs, middle distances and weight events," says coach Pat Brogan. "Some of the other people might be surprised if they can improve their indoor times. We're pretty well-balanced.

"We always try to bring the boys along gradually to peak for the big meets at the end of the season."

Co-captain Mark Nugent, injured for part of the outdoor season but coming on strong, is the top distance man. He ran a 4:25.2 indoor peak at the Maine East Relays.

Two other senior milers are Bill Gross and Jamie Olson, both fine cross country boys. Junior Jamie Olson ran a 9:49 two-mile last year.

Senior Rick Reeve has a 1:59.9 best in the 880-yard run. Two other half-milers are juniors Steve Strom and Frank Reschke.

Two quarter-milers who have been injured are Clay Jobes (mononucleosis) and co-captain Mike Baker (pulled hamstring). Senior Chuck VanDelinder is another 440 man.

Running both hurdles events will be senior Gary Vaughn and juniors Jeff Little and Terry Whiteley.

The sprints will have Baker, Jobes, junior Steve Vorbau and junior Joe Alden. Two seniors who were basketball players, Dan Mize and Kim Van Meter, will man the long jump.

Jerry Finis is one of the team's top individuals in the shot put, having won the Oak Park Relays and Wildcat Relays on successive days with a top toss of 53-4. Also a discus thrower, Brogan says "Finis has a good chance to go downstate in the shot."

Ken Vale and Lee Jenne will also be in both weight events and Joe Ortlieb is a senior discus man. Seniors Howie McCarthy and Bob Donich are high jumpers and senior Steve Morris a pole vaulter.

WHEELING

This could be one of the Wildcats' strongest teams ever, as evidenced by their solid third-place showing two weeks ago in their own Wildcat Relays, biggest indoor meet in the area.

The 'Cats' strongest suits should be the sprints, middle distances and relays, especially the 880. "Elk Grove and Palatine are the favorites in the league," says new head coach Jim Nagle, "but we'll be in there fighting them."

The 100 and 220-yard dashes will be manned by senior Kevin Banielson, junior Dave Krawczek, freshman Art Subrin and senior Jay Rusek. Indoors, Banielson has run a :57.50-yard dash and Krawczek and Subrin each :5.9.

Steve Drake and Charley Weis will be the 440-yard runners with indoor times of :53.6 and :56.3, respectively. In the 880, senior Bill Schumann was timed in 1:57.4

last spring and junior Steve Wilhelm ran 2:01.8 indoors.

The mile will be run by senior Dave Helmer (4:33.4), Schumann, Wilhelm and senior Glen Larsen.

Running both the 120 high hurdles and 180 lows will be senior Dave Poole and junior Dave Berry. Poole had a :6.9 in the 50 high indoors.

Brian Crehan is the best two-miler with 10:05.5 so far. Others in this longest event are Mike Schuster and Bruce Messenger.

In the pole vault, senior Gerald McGlothlin has a 12-0 to his credit and sophomore Paul Lindquist 11-0. High jumpers who all have 5-8 bests are Poole, senior George McFarlin and soph John Lertz.

Shot put looms as a strong event with junior Bill Chlebek having a top toss of 48-10½, senior Mike Baillargeon 48-3½ and Eugene Bruzikiewicz 47-7. Rusek and Chlebek also throw the discus.

The long jump will have Banielson with 20-10, Subrin with 19-11 and Poole with 19-0.

Falcons' Linksman In '72 Debut Today

by JIM COOK

Finishing in the first division of the Mid-Suburban League varsity golf tournament is quite an accomplishment. Forest View head coach Art Klein, however, wasn't satisfied with last year's solid fourth place position.

"We're not happy until we win the whole thing," the four-year veteran said. "I'm a little concerned about our inexperience this season, but these kids ought to win their share of matches."

The Falcons are scheduled to open their varsity golf campaign today against visiting Niles East at 4 p.m.

"We've only been outdoors about three times so far," Klein said, "and there are still some cuts to be made. Normally, I'll carry 10 or 11 boys on the varsity or as many as the course allows."

Klein will be looking to complement senior letterman Dave Moody and Mark Peters for his starting lineup. "Both of these kids play consistent golf and should be about 2-5 strokes over par all year."

Klein will also be looking at seniors Steve Anderson, Pat Walsh and Frank Bohac. Juniors Gary Mayer, Todd McDonald, Chuck Felice and Mike March all played on the Falcon sophomore team that tied for the championship last season.

John Rohde, Trip McCauley, Keith Seamar, Dave Martindale and Max Fiore also rate consideration in the battle for positions on the varsity team.

Klein has had his kids use Forest View's indoor facilities to work on their swing while hitting into the driving nets. "We're interested in form and style indoors and then using these adjustments outdoors."

Klein rated Arlington, Wheeling and Hersey as teams to beat and has already circled his triangular with the Cardinals and Prospect April 24 as one of the most important tests of the year.

League Record Book, Track Book On Sale

There are two books currently for sale that deal with high school sports records.

The Mid-Suburban League record book, winter edition is available for $1.00 at the main office of Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights.

Compiled by Keith Reinhard of the Herald sports staff, the book features pictures and records at every level of competition for the winter sports season in the Mid-Suburban. There also are some books available that cover the fall sports program.

Merl Hamak of Glenbard East

High School has compiled a book for track and field enthusiasts in Illinois. It's called the "Illinois Top 100" and it details the top 100 marks in history for every event, indoors and outdoors.

Hamak put in many hours researching the project and welcomes additions or corrections. This is the first attempt at compiling the top Illinois track and field marks.

Track books at $1.00 each may be purchased by contacting Hamak at 520 Caryle Lane, Bolingbrook, Ill. 60439.

For blood thirsty fight fans, they might see exactly what they want in the Mill Run Theater fight card promoted by Irv Schoenwald and Ben Bentley April 17.

The main bout matches Chicago's Eddie Perkins and Jesse Avalos of Corpus Christi, Texas for 10 rounds, but it could end in less time. Perkins, a 35-year-old veteran, has knocked out 18 of his 80 rivals, while Avalos, who has had 20 fights, had knocked out 10 of his foes.

In the eight round semi-windup, Cleveland's George Elias, who has lost only one of 16 bouts; has knocked out 11 opponents and has won his last eight in a row. He will meet Billy Goodwin of Milwaukee, a rookie who has a 4-4 ring record. This middle-weight match will go eight rounds.

The six round professional opener matches Ringo Carrington of Cleveland against Rom Tarratino of Milwaukee in a lightweight bout.

Three amateur bouts of three rounds each will open the show.

Tickets, priced at $6 and $8, can be obtained at the Theater and all Ticketron outlets.

'Better Than Last Year' Says Ecker Of Net Entry

by PAUL LOGAN
"We'll be better than last year," says Ted Ecker of his Wheeling tennis team. Although the Wildcats went 0-9 in the Mid-Suburban League dual season in 1971, they weren't as bad as their record would indicate.
"We were in the majority of the meets last year and lost out," Ecker recalls.
Wheeling, eager as all the rest of the teams in the area to get started playing, won't have an easy opener. The 'Cats will be hosting Elk Grove, weather permitting, at 4:30 p.m. Ecker tabs the Grenadiers as one of the top contenders for the coveted second-place spot in the MSL.
"I hear they have hopes of being better than they've ever been," says the Wheeling coach of Arlington, "and I wouldn't doubt it."
Other top teams behind Arlington, according to Ecker, are Prospect, Hersey, and Forest View.
"I expect to be competitive with the majority of the teams in the league," says Ecker. Five lettermen explain why — seniors Vern Fish, Dave McAllister, Mark Shiozaki, John Kyle and Bill Marsh.

Ecker says the first three mentioned will occupy the singles spots with the last two playing first doubles.
Probably playing second doubles will be Chris Pienta, a senior, and Dave Neukuckatz, a junior. Also out for the team is junior Tim Havorsen.

Palatine Hopes To See More Tennis Improvement

by PAUL LOGAN
Getting up early could pay off for the Palatine tennis team before the season has concluded.
"I'd come to the school about 6:15 in the morning and open the gym for the team," recalls new head coach John Carlson of the Pirates non-coached pre-season workouts.
Carlson is hoping this dedication in the winter months will pay off beginning this afternoon, weather permitting, when Palatine plays host to powerful Prospect beginning at 4:30.
"I'm basically optimistic," says Carlson of the season. "We're a little bit better than we have been in the last couple of years. We'll probably be somewhere in the middle of the pack."
"Next year I expect us to be very competitive, but no way be challenging to Arlington."
Carlson expects the Cardinals to romp through the league both this year and next.
Matt Borman leads the list of returnees of last year's 3-6 conference dual season. This junior was a runner-up finisher in No. 3 singles in the conference meet.

Probably going at No. 2 singles is Kevin McNamara, a senior. Taking the other singles spot is a question mark for Carlson at this time.
Vying for the rest of the positions are these players — senior Scott Dawson and juniors Paul Clapper, Dick McNabney and Dave Bals. Dawson was injured all of last season but had had experience until his junior year mishap.
Mac Bennisson and Pete Sheerin, both sophomores, could also make the team.
Carlson has worked with these youngsters the past couple of years as the frosh-soph coach. He likes what he sees.
"We're starting to make some headway here at Palatine tennis-wise," says Carlson. "We've got some very dedicated kids."

Falcons, Knights In Track Openers

by LARRY EVERHART
Forest View's and Prospect's track team will get a look at one another and at highly-regarded Palatine when the three open the Mid-Suburban League outdoor season this afternoon on the Falcons track.
The Knights and Falcons are somewhat in the same boat. Both have some promising individuals but not as much depth as they'd like.
Each team has some big home dates lined up this spring among their ambitious schedules that will have them averaging about three meets a week. Forest View will host large meets on two consecutive Fridays, with the Falcon Invitational May 5 and the conference meet May 12. Prospect also has its own invitational April 28 and hosts a district May 19.
Palatine's season was previewed in the Herald last Friday, March 31. The Pirates, picked by many to win the Mid-Suburban League (only the conference meet counts), routed Maine East and St. Viator and lost to state power Evanston in recent outdoor meets.
Here is the outlook for the Falcons and Knights with best performers, times and schedules.

At Rolling Meadows

In the Thursday Eye Openers the Falcons had a 2042 series and high game of 706 was rolled by the Bugs when the entire team fired double strikes in the 10th frame. . . . High scorers of the week were Angie Pelcher 532-223; Claire Bakowski 491-166; Pam Snell 483-180; Dottie Bendis 481-179; Sophie Topp 479-169; Esther Soukup 474-182; Grace Lisching 472-186; Sharon Harrod 179; Sally Zimmer 172; Carole Bergstrom 168; and Irma Ressler 167. . . . Angie Pelcher covered the 5-7 split.
Joyce Schweda had high series of 550 with a 221 high game in the Wednesday Morning Melodies League at Rolling Meadows Bowl. . . . Other high series and games were Pat Hofer's 484-174, Dolores Sapp's 475-197, Edith Anderson's 465-163, Gert Grohan's 460-177, Betty Schmelzer's 450-160, Elly Holzer's 171, Paula Betzold's 169, Eileen Darnsteadt's 168, Donna Donges' 163, Carol Webb's 158 and Marion Medley's 157. . . . High game and series went to the Silverbirds with 765 and 2162, respectively.

FOREST VIEW
The distance races may be the Falcons' forte with at least three boys from last fall's cross country team that barely missed winning the conference and finished seventh in the state.
Sophomore Jim Wise has some fine past times, including 9:37 in the two-mile run, 4:31 in the mile and 2:02 in the 800. Bill Batos has been under two minutes in the half-mile indoors and also runs the quarter. Scott McGovney should be in the 4:20's in the mile.
Dean Ballotti and Bruce Lighthall are the top hurdlers and soph Rick Mirro is the best sprinter and long jumper. Craig Brinkman and Jim Burke are usually in the 140's in the discus throw and Brinkman also puts the shot 48-0.
Don Woodsall has high jumped 5-8.
PROSPECT
The Knights have three-year varsity veteran Paul Hacker back to run the sprints. Hacker had a best time of 10-flat last year in the 100 and :22.3 in the 220.
Senior George Busse, who ran the half-mile last year, will be in the quarter. Tom Schiesser, another senior, has been timed in 2:05 indoors for the 800 and junior Ray Nee has long jumped 20-3.

Launch Outdoor Campaign Today

Grove Has 'Good Shot' At Crown

by LARRY EVERHART
Elk Grove will not be overlooked when it comes to speculation about the Mid-Suburban League track race this year.
The Grenadiers saw to that two weeks ago when they swept to a team victory in the 12-team Wildcat Indoor Relays title.
That strong showing makes Elk Grove one of the teams to beat in MSL competition, and the Grenadiers will try to prove it starting today when they host Hersey and Rolling Meadows, weather permitting.
As last year, none of the league triangulars or duels will count, though they will give a good indication of relative strengths. Final standings will depend entirely on the conference meet

May 12 at Forest View.
The Grenadiers have some outstanding individuals, several of whom claimed individual titles at Wheeling. The team's strongest events overall appear to be the hurdles and distance races.

Frank Taucher was a Wildcat Relays titlist in both the high and low hurdles (each 50 yards) with respective times of :6.4 and :6.2. A fine hurdler as a sophomore, he missed almost all of last season with an appendectomy.

Randy Stenberg will team up with Taucher in the high hurdles and Dave Jensen (second at Wildcat Relays) or Steve Busse will be the other entry in the lows.

Brian Powell has a 9:36 time to his credit in the two-mile run and Damian Archbold has a 4:31 best in the mile. Archbold, shaking off a hip bruise, also runs the two-mile.

Jim Leopardo gives the Grenadiers a dazzling discus man. He was fifth in the state last year with a tremendous 164 heave and won the conference with 155-11.

In the quarter mile, Scott Dorsey and Frank Bavaro are the top duo with indoor times of :53.7 and :54.7, respectively.

Versatile Jeff Schroeder will be the long jumper with a winning leap of 21-4 at the Wildcat Relays. He also runs the spring and relays.

Bruce Pepper has an 11-6 in the pole vault that should get better outdoors, while Warren Jacobson has gone 5-11 and Bill Butler 5-10 in the high jump.

About the conference title, coach Jim Wendler says, "We should have a good shot at it but we'll need our best times. Palatine is probably the team to beat."

Making the trip to Elk Grove today will be a young Rolling Meadows team just getting established. Its main strengths are the weight events.
Junior Bob Sloan and sophomore brother John Sloan are shot put and discus men, Bill Blackmore will be putting the shot and Steve Balogh is a high jumper. These should be the Mustangs' best individuals.

A complete preview of Hersey's track season appeared in the Herald Thursday, March 30. In their most recent outing the Huskies trampled St. Viator and Rolling Meadows indoors. Hersey tied for seventh in the Wildcat Relays.

Rolling out the news... 55,200 miles a year!

Keeping the people of the Northwest suburbs informed puts a lot of mileage on our presses. Throughout the year they will roll out 55,200 miles of news and advertising. Page to page, this would form a newsprint ribbon reaching twice around the world!

But more important than length is the depth of coverage our reporters strive to give the happenings of your dynamic suburbs ... a depth found in each of the nine daily Herald newspapers.

This is a boast you can share ... for it is your demand as a concerned, involved citizen for daily local news that keeps the Herald presses rolling.

Coaches, Writers Tab Elk Grove, Wheeling In MSL

by KEITH REINHARD

It will be Elk Grove against Wheeling for the Mid-Suburban League baseball championship May 19 if the Herald sports writers and the MSL coaches are any authorities on the subject.

At least that is what the results of their predictions indicate. All 12 circuit helmsmen and five of the six members of the Herald sports staff were polled on the eve of the regular conference season with the Wildcats and Grenadiers easily topping the ballots.

Isclusing some ties, the Grove garnered 13 out of a possible 16 first place ballots to outdistance Conant and Forest View in what figures to be a dogfight for runnerup laurels in the South.

Up North the 'Cats were tagged for the top rung 11 times with Arlington coming out an uneasy second. The defending league champions from Fremd were surprisingly pennant picks on just three occasions and will settle for third place if the coach's prognostications have anything to do with it.

The dozen mentors were asked to exclude their own team and rate the other eleven in order of finish in their respective divisions. The scribes ranked all 12 outfits.

While Wheeling and Elk Grove were judged no worse than third on any of the 17 votes, Schaumburg was pegged as high as first on one tally sheet and as low as the cellar on another.

The Cardinals, too, fluctuated between first and fifth place. Only Rolling Meadows remained fairly stable on all ballots but unfortunately for the brand-new Mustangs the placement was at the bottom rather than the top of the pack.

Larry Peddy's Grenadiers, conference champions back in 1968, came out with 90 total points on a basis of six for first, five for second, etc. According to the coaches, the Cougars will barely nip the Falcons for second. Going by the total consensus, however, these two teams will finish in a deadlock for the runnerup slot.

Ron DeBolt's Wildcats collected loop titles in '69 and '70 and by an overall 88½ to 73 margin they are figured to move back into contention this spring over Arlington.

Here are the tabulations broken down into writer and coach categories.

MSL BASEBALL COACHES AND WRITERS CONSENSUS
(First place votes in parentheses)

South	Coaches	Writers	Points
Elk Grove (14)	53	27	90
Conant (1)	51	21	72
Forest View (3)	50	22	72
Schaumburg (1)	32	18	50
Prospect	30	8	38
Glenbard North	19	9	28
North	Coaches	Writers	Points
Wheeling (11)	50½	29	88½
Arlington (5)	53	20	73
Fremd (3)	46	29	75
Hersey (1)	11	16	27
Palatine	30	15	45
Rolling Meadows	16	5	21

SPLIT DECISION. Notre Dame shortstop Rich Luzinski stretches for throw to barely force sliding St. Viator runner Mike Walsh at second base. The play occurred in the first inning of Viator's 5-0 Suburban Catholic League conquest that leveled its record at 1-1.

Cards, Saxons Make Track Debuts At Glenbard North

by LARRY EVERHART

Arlington and Schaumburg, two teams hoping for respectable track seasons though not realistically figured as top contenders, both travel to Glenbard North this afternoon to open the outdoor season.

The teams will be squaring off tonight and in the next month against Mid-Suburban League competition in duals and triangulars, but only the conference meet May 12 counts in final standings. Until then, both have busy schedules lined up. Arlington will participate in 12 meets, four of them invitationals, and Schaumburg — in its first year of varsity warfare — has 10 meets.

The Saxons and Cardinals could wage a close battle at least against each other. When they met during the indoor season Arlington prevailed by eight points.

Following is each team's overall outlook, top individuals and schedules.

ARLINGTON

Couch Bruce Samore, back for another season as head man, feels his group may be stronger as individuals than as a team overall. "We don't have too much experience but a few good boys," reports Samore.

One of the strongest suits of the Cards will be distance running with cross country standouts Tom Jarm and Scott Barnett running the mile and Jarm also in the half-mile. Tom posted a 2:03 indoor time in the 800 and had a time 4:28 mile last year and Scott has run 4:35 indoors this year.

Greg Morand is the pole vault's top Cardinal with a 13-0 effort to his credit last year, while Dave Auge has vaulted 12'0.

Mike Chidley is one of the top shot putters in the area, having had a 51-4½ loss indoors.

Another distance runner, Jim McGrath, had a 10:16 indoor time and should get under 10 minutes outside.

Dave Mills is the top long jumper with 20-3 indoors and Scott Jacobsen has high jumped 5-10.

SCHAUMBURG

"We had 39 indoor times that were better than last year, so we should be much improved," says Saxon head coach Dennis Garber. "Our strongest events should be the distance runs and the jumps."

"We don't have many seniors. A few of our top kids from last year decided not to come out for track for one reason or another. So we'll have to fill in the gap with some freshmen and sophomores."

Sophomore Arnold Jackson and senior Rick Staback, who showed talent in cross country, give Schaumburg plenty of strength in the distances. Indoor times showed Jackson with 4:34.5 in the mile and 9:42 in the two-mile while Staback had respective times of 4:44 and 10:06. Fresh Doug Carver is another distance man.

Senior transfer Mike Schlanser has a 2:08 best time in the 800-yard run.

In the quarter mile junior Paul Peters has a :57.8 time previously, senior Wayne Jensen has run :57.0 and soph Heinz Tempelmann ran :56.5 last year. These three plus Schlanser will form the mile relay unit.

Hurdlers will be senior Bill Casper with 8:0 indoors in the 60 highs and soph Steve Wright.

In the 100 and 220-yard dashes it will be junior Eric Porter and soph Ed Martin.

In the field events, Bob Cummings is a 5-10 high jumper and 19-11½ long jumper. The two best pole vaulters are both freshmen, Bob Nathey and Bruce Mahlig. Discus and shot put hopefuls are junior Mickey Ellis and frosh Ken Jaffke.

Grammar School Swim Meet Saturday

St. Viator High School will host its Annual Grammar School Swimming Meet Saturday at 1 p.m. for all interested seventh and eighth grade contestants.

There is no entry fee, but the first and second place teams will receive trophies as will first place finishers in each event. Those finishing second through sixth will receive ribbons.

The scoring will be 7-5-4-3-2-1 for individual events and 14-10-8-6-4-2 for relays. The deadline for entry forms is no later than Wednesday, April 12.

The meet will be run as a time final — placing will be decided by the boys' time alone. Both seventh and eighth graders are allowed to swim, but will be competing on the same level.

Each boy should bring his own towel and lock. A boy may swim two individual events and one relay. Schools may enter more than one relay.

Applications are available at St. Viator High School and any questions should be directed to St. Viator head swim coach John Fleck at 392-4050.

The events include: 200 medley relay, 50 free, 50 back, 50 breast, 100 free, 50 fly and 200-free relay.

Exciting Potential In Pirate Golf Team

by JIM COOK

Palatine hasn't fielded a varsity golf team higher than ninth in the Mid-Suburban League standings over the last three years, but the way three-year veteran head coach Marc Denny is talking, the Pirates are seeking to invert their position.

"We're awfully young," Denny said, "but we're excited about the potential this team has. We're working with a group of boys who last season won the frosh-soph conference meet."

Heading that contingent of juniors are Jim Sobczynski, co-medalist in the meet Jim Arden and John Loneragan. Add to that returning lettermen Doug Fyfe, Mike Long and Dave Hafner and Palatine appears to have the makings for a contender.

Denny is also giving freshmen Bob and John Capoun a long look as possible varsity team members. The Pirates were scheduled to inaugurate their campaign today at 3 p.m. against both St. Viator and Fremd.

"I think the schedule is on our side," Denny said. "I doubt whether we'll be able to play today and we don't have another meet scheduled until next week. This break will give our golfers a chance to practice out on the course — something we haven't done too much of so far."

Denny tabbed Hersey, Wheeling and Prospect as the teams to beat in the MSL race, but warned that his Pirates will be a factor. "We should be right in there," he concluded.

THE COST OF BUYING A NEW CAR JUST WENT DOWN. AGAIN.

First, The President Removed The Excise Tax.
Now, Schaumburg State Bank Takes The High Cost Out Of New Car Financing With The Best Auto Loan In Town!

IMPORTANT NEW REDUCED RATE NOW IN EFFECT

The value-minded car buyer knows that the dollar difference between his old and new car isn't the important thing when he buys on a time purchase plan. The most important thing is the total cost — the sum of all the monthly payments until the last installment is in.

That's why it's important to see us before you arrange financing. We can save you money by giving you the best possible auto loan, free of hidden charges and costly extras. Our remarkable new low rate is lower than finance rates generally offered to the public . . . lower than you can get through any finance company, any credit union, and through any car dealer.

It's a fact. Cash does talk in a car deal . . . and now you can get the cash for less at . . .

COMBINE NEWSPAPER WORK ADVERTISING AND TELEPHONE SELLING

and you have the ingredients for a fascinating, rewarding job. We have an opening in our Classified Advertising Department for an intelligent, enthusiastic woman to begin training for this permanent, full-time position with a secure future.

You'll be working for an advertising Manager and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is!

Ability to type and spell correctly, any previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and a good telephone voice is what it takes. This is not a commission type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits.

Come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. Ask for Larry Bell, Classified Advertising Manager, or call 394-2400.

Unmistakable Trend

School Board Winners Had Geography On Their Sides

by WANDALYN RICE
A News Analysis

Geography prevailed Saturday in the election for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board of education.

A look at the breakdown of the vote by precinct indicates the trend clearly — voters in Elk Grove Village marked their ballots for Albert Domanico and Gerald Smiley, the Elk Grove Village candidates.

At the same time, the voters in all of Dist. 59 were voting for their candidates — Leah Cummins of Elk Grove Village and Gene Artemenko of Des Plaines.

Mrs. Cummins, who works for Dist. 59 and served on the 214 board until last year, apparently got the most benefit from that geographic split. She polled almost as many votes in Dist. 59 as Domanico, the high vote-getter in the Dist. 59 race.

ARTEMENKO, though he finished second to Mrs. Cummins within Dist. 59, was reelected to the board, because he showed strength in the rest of the district. Despite her popularity in Elk Grove, Mrs. Cummins picked up only 974 votes in the rest of 214.

The reasons for the straight geographic vote are not too hard to find. Elk Grove Village, which has a strong feeling of identity, had been short of representation with only two board members on the Dist. 59 board for the past year. One year ago, apathy contributed to the defeat of Domanico, who lost to Erwin Poklacki of Arlington Heights by more than 200 votes.

"I met the 200 people who could have elected me within two weeks of the election last year," Domanico remarked Saturday night. "They were so sure I'd win they didn't even vote."

No one made the mistake of overconfidence in the village this time, however. A sound truck urged the voters to get out, signs were posted around the village and Teachers Council Pres. Robert Beaupre, who is also a local business owner, coordinated the efforts of his teachers with other campaigners working for village candidates.

If any group was hurt by overconfidence, it was those responsible for organizing the northern part of the district. Turnout in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines was light, with the exception of Einstein School, the home precinct of James Sheldon, one of the three unsuccessful candidates.

IN THE PAST, the Des Plaines portion of Dist. 59 has been a power in district elections. The Eighth Ward of the city, the only part of Des Plaines in Elk Grove Township, has turned out in large numbers to defeat referendums, and many candidates have in past come to the board from that area.

This time, however, the organization in the Eighth Ward apparently was not united behind Sheldon — and the results were clear. Although Domanico ran so strongly in all parts there is probably no way he could have been defeated, if other precincts in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect had turned out for Sheldon the way Einstein did, Smiley's position as second high vote-getter might have been jeopardized.

As the votes were counted Saturday night, several observers in the administration building commented on the geographic distribution of the vote.

"They turned out the vote and we didn't," a man from Mount Prospect commented. "Next year I guess we'll know what we have to do."

Board To Weigh Bike Race Plan

Consideration of a proposal to hold bicycle road races in Elk Grove Village in June is among business to be considered by the village board of trustees tonight.

At its regular 8 p.m. meeting, the board will consider a request to hold bicycle races Sunday, June 18, and to temporarily close four industrial streets between Rte. 83 and Tonne Road for use as the route. Roads to be closed, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., are Touhy Avenue, Lively Boulevard (from Estes to Chase), Chase Avenue and Estes Avenue. The police department has recommended approval of the request.

The board also will consider authorization to advertise for bids the purchase and installation of humidification equipment in the Municipal Building.

THE ELK GROVE Festival Chorus, under the direction of Tony Mostardo, has been rehearsing for their annual spring concert to be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in Elk Grove High School. The chorus will perform with the North Side Symphony of Chicago, an 80 member orchestra.

The soprano soloist for the choir will be Darlene Morren, who is currently with the Chicago Christian Oratorio Club. Baritone soloist will be James Javore, who has performed with many music groups in the Chicago area.

Halloween Laws Are Slated

Halloween may be more than six months away, but Elk Grove Village officials are planning for its celebration.

The village board's judicial, planning and zoning committee has made two recommendations concerning trick-or-treating on the day.

The committee recommended that youngsters be prohibited from trick-or-treating any time other than Halloween and be restricted to an 8 p.m. deadline for trick-or-treating.

The committee made the recommendations, Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said, in an attempt to prevent much of the vandalism which generally occurs on Halloween.

"There is always so much vandalism going on under the guise of trick-or-treating at that time — this is about the only thing we could do," she said. The committee plans to make additional recommendations later.

Man Pleads Guilty In Check Fraud Case; Gets 2 To 3 Years

A Franklin Park man charged in connection with a check fraud at the Bank of Elk Grove has been sentenced to two to three years in the state penitentiary after pleading guilty to that charge and two others.

Joseph Beneventi pleaded guilty to theft by deception in connection with the October incident and also pleaded guilty to grand theft and parole violation charges in Cook County Court.

Beneventi was arrested in Los Angeles last month and brought back to Illinois by Elk Grove Village detectives.

Drums Up Business

Sixty empty 55-gallon drums were reported taken from the Biltmore Tire Co., 2500 Devon Ave., last week. Elk Grove Village police said the drums were taken late Thursday from the rear of the building.

$500 In Cash Stolen

About $500 in petty cash was reported stolen from the Lighting Equipment Co., 80 Scott St., Elk Grove Village, during the weekend. Burglars apparently took the cash after unsuccessfully trying to break into the safe, detectives said. Method of entry into the building was undetermined.

Glass To File Home Rule Recall Bill

The fight against Cook County's home rule powers and the three taxes enacted recently under those powers will move to the state legislative front this week.

State Rep. Bradley Glass, R-1st, has announced he will introduce a bill this week that would allow a recall vote on the county's home rule powers as early as next November. Current state law prohibits county voters from holding a recall election until 1975.

Glass made the announcement Thursday during a meeting in Prospect Heights at which he and three other area legislators received petitions with more than 3,000 names calling for a recall election as soon as possible on the county's home rule powers.

With Glass at the press conference were State Representatives Eugene Schlickman, David Regner and Robert Juckett. All indicated support of the legislation.

The signatures were collected by Northwest suburban area homeowners associations representing unincorporated areas. As well as the county's home rule powers, the groups are opposing three taxes the county enacted late last December under its home rule powers.

THE TAXES include one on vehicles in unincorporated areas, one on mobile homes and one on all new car sales. A suit has been filed against the tax on unincorporated area vehicles by the associations. The groups' attorneys are considering a similar suit against the mobile home tax. Several municipalities are challenging the new car tax in court.

"We hope to introduce the legislation (this) week," Glass said Thursday. He expressed optimism that it would be passed.

"I'm strongly in favor of home rule," Glass said. "But Cook County covers such a broad area and there are so many towns in the county that home rule is a farce."

Criticizing the three-year ban on voter reconsideration of the county's home rule powers, Glass said, "The state constitution is pretty clear when it says people should have the opportunity to vote home rule in or out."

SCHLICKMAN, who according to Glass will be one of his bill's cosponsors, said Thursday he thought the three-year ban could be removed quicker through judicial action than through legislation.

Schlickman sponsored the legislation that allowed the new constitution to be implemented. It included the three-year ban on voter recalls for home rule units.

He supported the three-year ban at the time, saying that without it the legislation would never have been passed. According to Schlickman the Illinois Municipal League as well as many suburban mayors favor the ban. Even though he supported the legislation with the ban, he said Thursday the three-year prohibition on recalls is "clearly unconstitutional."

Set Funeral Services For Woman, 100

A funeral mass for 100-year-old Mrs. Victoria Rembowski will be held at 10 a.m. today at St. Cecilia Catholic Church in Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Rembowski died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Stanley Williams, 1727 Kim Ave., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Rembowski celebrated her 100th birthday last August, just two weeks after the death of her last surviving child and only son. She had lived with the son at the Willow Terrace Trailer Park in Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Rembowski was born in Konig, Poland, Aug. 8, 1871, and came to this country in 1904. She lived in the small Polish town of West Wyoming, Pa., until her husband's death there in 1928. She moved to the northwest side of Chicago in 1929 to live with her son and his family.

Burial for Mrs. Rembowski will be in West Wyoming Wednesday.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The FBI announced recovery of $499,970 in the Provo, Utah home of the sky-diving college student held for the hijacking of a jet last week. Held is Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

His ratings lagging, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine plans to concentrate his Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, according to his supporters.

The countdown has started and Apollo 16's astronauts went through their final lunar landing dress rehearsal for Sunday's flight to the unexplored highlands of the moon.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson

"continues to show improvement" after his second heart attack, his doctor announced.

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and 77 other countries have signed a treaty renouncing the use of biological weapons. Conspicuously absent was France, which has also refused to sign the nuclear test ban treaty. China also was not present at any of the ceremonies but it was uncertain whether China would eventually sign.

The State

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

Canines Learn Obedience

'Dog-Gone, This Is A Dog's Life'

by DOUG RAY

Most of the canines had their wet noses planted to the cement floor. For many of them, this was the first contact with other dogs.

Restrained by the master's lead, they walked in a circle, then stopped and started again, responding to the owner's commands. There were Sheep Dogs, Collies, Airedales and a mongrel, all of them learning manners . . . suburban manners.

Without large fields to roam in, the dogs are relegated to house pets. Even the Old English Sheep Dog, appropriately named "Winston," whose paws are as massive as the Beagle's tiny head, is a "house" dog.

"I just want him to obey so he doesn't jump all over people," said Winston's owner, Mrs. Charles Broehl of Arlington Heights. "We keep him in the house most of the time so we can't afford those antics."

"But we're lucky," she said, pointing to the dog who was cowed on the floor, "that he doesn't have a long tail and can't sweep things off the table."

Winston along with a dozen other varieties were attending their weekly dog obedience class sponsored by the Palatine Park District. Residents from throughout the Northwest Suburbs have entered dogs in the class.

"When the eight weeks are completed, the dogs will be able to respond to basic commands," said Mrs. Dorothy Ortman, instructor of the class. "But they also learn to get along with other dogs," she said.

THE DOGS SEEMED more concerned with their fellow classmates at the session last week than in learning how to "sit" or "heel." Several were preoccupied with scratching themselves and sniffing.

"But this is just the second class. They will be a lot better before it's over," according to Mrs. Ortman, who has been teaching dog obedience for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. Ortman's canine instruction began when her husband brought home a Boxer in payment of a debt. "I taught the boxers and have been doing it ever since," she said. "I learned by watching other people but mostly by doing it myself."

She stood on a bench, guiding the class and adding helpful hints to the owners whose dogs were unattentive.

A small, bespectacled woman with a Collie half her size, dragged the dog around the circle. When she said "sit," the collie would lie down. "He's so good at home," she said, "but he won't do anything in class. I think he's an idiot."

But Mrs. Ortman had a bit of philosophy about the unwilling collie and disgusted master. "If you think he's an idiot, he'll act like one," she said. "Think like you've got a Lassie and tell him he's a good dog . . . that will help him think that way."

A snow white Bichon Frise, a foreign dog, owned by Mrs. John Martin, wasn't the best student, but seemed to have the keenest nose. "He's not doing too well," said Mrs. Martin. "He's too busy sniffing the ground."

Mrs. Martin, like the other dog owners in the class, just wants the pet to be obedient. And she believes "Button" is a little better after the first class.

Mrs. Charlotte Baumgart of Arlington Heights enrolled her black poodle "so he can learn to live indoors." She said the dog "has never been restricted before" but now that the family has relocated in a subdivision "he's gonna have to come when I call him and sit when I want him to."

JIM VOLLMER'S Airedale also has become an indoor pet after the family moved to Arlington Heights from New York. "We got her in New York where she could run . . . but unfortunately now we're in suburbia."

Bob and Elaine Kummer of Palatine brought their dog, a part Labrador Retriever and Weimaraner, to the session "to make him livable. He lives with us," said Mrs. Kummer as the three-foot-high dog dragged her toward the door.

Before the conclusion of the 45-minute class, Mrs. Ortman plays a game that she calls "musical dogs." The dogs again are led around a circle and must answer to the owner's order "sit." The slowest to react are eliminated.

MRS. JOHN MARTIN, left, gets a helpful hint from dog obedience instructor Mrs. Dorothy Ortman as her white Bichon Frise seems to be relaxing. The dog obedience course is sponsored by the Palatine Park District and teaches the dogs to respond to basic commands and compatibility with other dogs. About 20 dogs and their master's are enrolled in the eight-week program.

A PENSIVE BEAGLE seems to be trying his level best to grasp the words of guidance during this week's dog obedience course at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights. Dogs of all sizes, shapes and breeds are enrolled in the class.

Urges Adoption Of New Reading Program Here

Mrs. Jo Telford, reading consultant for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 has urged adoption of a new district-wide reading program for pupils in fourth, fifth and sixth grades and abandonment of the present open court system for these grades.

The board of education members last Thursday were reluctant to act on her recommendations and referred the issue to further education committee discussion this Thursday.

Mrs. Telford stressed that the open court system, an innovative method that includes linguistics skill practice and literature content, is extremely desirable and working well in the lower primary grades. She wants open court used in those grades.

Her concern, which she said is shared by other teachers, is with the open court system in the intermediate grades. For those students in the lower 10 per cent bracket of reading ability, fourth, fifth and sixth grade reading becomes extremely difficult, she added.

She explained that after third grade, open court uses an unlimited vocabulary but no linguistic skill practice. Open court drops reading teaching skills and concentrates on unlimited vocabulary addition after third grade.

"For some students it becomes virtually impossible to read and the only way they can enjoy the text is for someone to read to them," she said.

Not all students are accomplished readers by the time they reach fourth grade and most require additional help to learn to read beyond third grade, she added.

THE PROPOSAL she urged for intermediate reading is the Ginn and Co. system, one of four tested by teachers and recommended by the education committee and teachers.

Mrs. Telford said the Ginn 360 reading system includes reading instruction, linguistics, creativity, psychology and literary analysis.

She said it is a comprehensive modern reading program divided into two levels that correspond with a pupil's reading ability, not his grade placement. Teachers in the district recommend the Ginn program she added because it makes it easier to teach the child to read.

Board member Mrs. Diane Hart, Adam Jelen and George Lewin objected to a sweeping change in the present curriculum without any previous pilot testing of the method. The adoption of the program would cost approximately $30,000.

Lewis demanded a guarantee from Mrs. Telford that Ginn 360 would produce better results than open court.

Mrs. Telford said no program could carry such a guarantee but added that this system is one the teachers believe in and it fulfills the districts needs.

PRESIDENT GORDON Thoren suggested the issue go to committee when it became apparent members were not ready for a decision and wanted further references Mrs. Telford was unable to supply. Neighboring districts who use Ginn will be asked for comment before Thursday's meeting.

Thoren said any board member and district resident concerned about the proposal should attend the education committee meeting this Thursday.

The board plans to meet at 8 p.m. to canvass votes from the board of education election held Saturday. The education committee meeting will follow.

Twp. Welfare Cases Up

There are 22 per cent more families on general assistance this year in Wheeling Township than there were last year, and the increase will mean a 12 per cent increase in the general assistance fund, according to the preliminary budget.

To the taxpayer, the increase will probably mean no change in the property tax bill. The present general assistance rate is one cent per $100 assessed value.

"The increase will probably be picked up by the additional assessed value of the area," said Marshall Theroux, township assessor. "The growth in general assistance is pretty much in line with the growth of the area."

This year, 147 families are receiving general assistance as compared to 114 families last year. The increase is the largest in several years, according to Wheeling Township Supervisor, Ethel Kolerus.

"UNTIL THIS year, the number of general assistance cases had been staying constant," said Mrs. Kolerus.

Though general assistance cases are sprinkled throughout Wheeling Township, Mrs. Kolerus said more apartment dwellers than homeowners receive aid.

"Some people don't bargain for what it costs to live out here," she said.

General assistance, at the township level, includes residents who do not qualify for welfare under a county, state or federal category like Aid to Dependent Children or Assistance to the Blind. The average general assistance recipient stays on the township rolls for 30 to 60 days, though some receive aid for years.

"We have one woman who has been receiving part of her rent from the township for the past two years," said Mrs. Kolerus. "She is not eligible for any other aid, and she simply can't live on her widows benefits."

IN SOME cases, an emergency, like sickness or an accident, can halt the income of a family and pile up bills at the same time. While other agencies require time limits before giving assistance, the township can help right away.

"Most of our cases are either monetary problems or go on to some category of welfare at the county level," said Mrs. Kolerus.

The general assistance department also handles counseling and referral services, which cost nothing.

School Chiefs Get Pay Hikes

Raises averaging 5.5 per cent have been granted for the 1972-73 school year to administrators in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54. The increments were unanimously approved Thursday by the board of education.

Supt. Wayne Schaible who is being paid $27,500 this year will receive $28,250 for 1972-73. In addition to the cash raise the district will provide Schaible with an auto in lieu of the mileage stipend he is receiving.

Central office administrator's annual salaries are: Milton Derr, assistant to the superintendent, $22,000; Ronald Ruble, assistant superintendent and in charge of personnel and transportation, $21,500; Kim Driggers, curriculum director, $19,250; Mildred McClure, director of special services, $19,650; Marvin Lapicola, business director, $22,900, and Joseph Viso, superintendent of buildings and grounds, $17,800.

THE DISTRICT will also pay a total of $1,686.72 in health insurance payments and $437 in life insurance payment for the top seven administrators.

The following annual salaries for principals were also approved: James Binder, $16,975; James Briggs, $19,325; Curtis Casey, $18,275; Robert Cizek, $19,000; Leland Cook, $15,275; Roger DuBois, $17,600; Carl Greenleaf, $19,150; Marvin Husby, $16,475; John Jones, $18,725; Darrel Little, $18,975; William Litwitz, $18,725; Susan McCann, $20,450, and Larry Olson $16,650.

Others are: Bernard Osterberger, $17,725; Karl Plank, $18,425; Donald Stocker, $15,575; Richard Summerfield, $18,825; Frank Tavano $16,825; Maynard Thomas, $18,850; Douglas Williams, $14,525, and Mary Zimmerman, $19,600.

Principals also will benefit by a $10,000 life insurance policy paid by the district. For all 21 principals the district will pay a total of $1,310 annual premium.

Consultants also received paid $10,000 life insurance benefits with the district's total payment for the six consultants totalling $374 annually.

Consultants salaries are: Carl Seltzer, $17,475; Len Sirotzki, $16,775; Larry Small, $16,125; Gregory Gorski, $18,075; Jo Telford, $15,775; and Archie Wilson, $15,325.

Annual salaries for the two school psychologists are Robert Hanlon, $16,650 and Jeanne McCarthy, $18,950.

Woman's Club Aids Recycling Campaign

The Schaumburg Woman's Club has joined the village in urging residents to save glass bottles and jars for recycling.

The glass may be deposited in permanent bins behind the Schaumburg Fire Station on Schaumburg Road. Only the metal rings on bottle necks must be removed. The bottles should be placed in the bins separated by colors of glass.

12% Rise In General Assistance Fund

Wheeling Town Welfare Roles Are Up 22 Per Cent

by CINDY TEW

There are 22 per cent more families on general assistance this year in Wheeling Township than there were last year, and the increase will mean a 12 per cent increase in the general assistance fund, according to the preliminary budget.

THE 1971-72 general assistance budget is $46,110, the proposed 1972-73 budget is $52,850. The major increases are in food, rent, clothing and utilities.

Anyone with questions about the general assistance budget, the township budget, or any other facet of Wheeling Township government, is welcome at the annual township meeting to be held tonight at Wheeling Township Town Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

PASSPORT '72 the next two Saturdays will bring the flavor of foreign countries to the parish grammar school of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Several nations will be

Don't Be Loafin' -- Slogan Deadline Nears

April 15 is the last day to enter the Wheeling Park District's summer slogan contest.

Families living in the district can win $35 worth of free activities by entering the contest.

Rules for the contest require that the slogan be five words or less, and that the slogan "should inclusively relate to all park district summer activities such as swimming, playgrounds, tennis, archery, softball, band concerts, cheerleading and trips."

In addition to the $35 first prize, five honorable mention awards worth $10 in park district activities will be presented.

Families may enter as many slogans in the contest as they want.

All slogan entries must be mailed to the Wheeling Park District Slogan Contest, 222 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, Ill. 60090, and must be postmarked no later than April 15.

Winners of the contest will be announced by April 22. A citizen's committee of judges will choose the winning entry.

The prizes can be used toward participation in any park district programs between June 1 and Dec. 31, 1972, including swimming, dance, tennis, arts and crafts, guitar or others.

Local Man Faces Assault Charge

Wheeling police charged a local man with assault last weekend after he allegedly threatened to shoot his landlord with a .22-caliber rifle.

Police arrested James J. Sramek, 19, of 278 E. Center St. for reportedly threatening Gerrit Vanderziel of 475 Milwaukee Ave.

The threat occurred during an argument over nailing shut a basement door, police said.

An Evening Trip Around The World

'Passport '72' This Weekend

An evening trip around the world will be offered this weekend and next at the "Passport '72" program in St. Mary's Catholic Church of Buffalo Grove.

"Passport '72" is the third annual entertainment program sponsored by the church. Sight and sounds of many countries will be offered in rooms of the parish grammar school on Buffalo Grove Road.

A highlight of the double weekend of entertainment is an Israeli program provided by members of the Far Acres Chapter of ORT, a community branch of the national Jewish social service organization.

Doors will open at 8 p.m. April 15 and 22 for the cosmopolitan atmosphere, which will include shows representing England, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Mexico and Russia.

Each performing group will have its own room, and visitors will move about the school to see the shows. Each room will be decorated in a motif appropriate to the country involved.

The Rev. Donald Duffy said the format will be similar to the past two years, when the themes were "Stop the Clock" and "Cities after Dark."

Refreshments will be available throughout the building. Tickets for Passport '72 are $5 per person, and are available through St. Mary's Rectory. Because of seating limitations, Father Duffy has recommended reservations be made early by phoning 541-1450.

Forced Land Donation: Would Such A Law Work Here?

by STEVE FORSYTH

"The Naperville Ordinance is a form of tax, directed toward new people coming into a town," said Fred Hillman, executive vice president of Chesterfield Inc.

He spoke last week to members of the Buffalo Grove village board and plan commission as part of a village program to study the feasibility of adopting an ordinance similar to one in Naperville.

The Naperville ordinance requires developers to donate land or money to villages and school districts according to a formula based on number of people in a development.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong invited builders who have worked in the village to the informal discussion session, and eight representatives attended. Hillman's company is presently negotiating with the plan commission to approve plans for 300 townhouses at Arlington Heights and Lake-Cook roads.

The builders also voiced their opinion that the Naperville ordinance is unconstitutional because it forcefully takes private land from owners.

AL RILEY, president of Hasbrook Corp., cited a few instances in which courts have overruled mandatory donations by builders. He cited a case in 1961 in Mount Prospect when the Illinois Supreme Court ruled in favor of Pioneer Trust & Savings, saying donations of land could not be required.

Riley also was present as chairman of a special task force studying land donations, organized by the Homebuilders Association of Greater Chicago.

Riley offered other solutions to the problems which result as builders add large groups of people to a community.

"We like state support of education, with local control. We are backing efforts on the part of state government to reduce these taxes and shift them to a broader base," said Riley.

"These people buying homes are not strangers from some other land, and we feel these charges are quite discriminating. We feel the education of the community is the responsibility of the total community and shouldn't be heaped on the newcomer," he said.

WILLIAM KAPLAN, an attorney representing the builders, asked the village board to defer any action until the Naperville ordinance has been tested in court. "We believe under Illinois laws that exist today the ordinance is illegal. I assure you the decision will come very quickly," Kaplan said.

Armstrong asked the builders what they would suggest as a solution to the problem in light of the fact that new developments do place certain demands on communities.

"As builders we have no recommendations. This is a government problem. We are providing the service of building homes," Hillman said.

Armstrong replied, "New people usually live in homes 12 to 18 months tax-free. If the development doesn't participate, you are taxing the people who are already here (in the village)."

"We feel this should be corrected," Riley said. The property on the tax rolls should not get a free ride." He indicated that state government should find a solution for the tax lag problem, perhaps by quarterly billing.

ANOTHER DEVELOPER, Richard J. Brown, said, "I don't think this concept could be legislated by ordinance because of the variety of developments. Each one is unique."

Armstrong said, "I think some contribution must be forthcoming from you or them (the new residents), because it does cost money and the new residents immediately become part of the community."

Riley said, "We agree the need is there, but the question is, who is to pay for it. If the community can take land from a builder they can take it from anyone." Riley said he also feels school districts have not planned enough for the future, when they know growth is going to happen.

Armstrong asked Robert Craig of Levitt & Sons if his Naperville development is suffering because of the ordinance there.

Craig said, "Naperville is the least successful of our Chicago developments. It has been a burden. I do object in principle to the part that borders on confiscation."

Trustee Charles Vogt summed up the meeting by saying, "The real issue is how we can get together to create a good community where people will want to live. I think we're running the real risk of polluting the community landscape with houses." Vogt asked that a task force be organized with representatives from the builders, park district, school districts and the village to arrive at a satisfactory solution to the problem.

Armstrong said he also will continue his plan to talk with the park district and the school districts individually to learn their viewpoints on the issue, with a final meeting of all interests to work out a possible ordinance, if one is needed.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The FBI announced recovery of $499,970 in the Provo, Utah home of the sky-diving college student held for the hijacking of a jet last week. Held is Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

His ratings lagging, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine plans to concentrate his Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, according to his supporters.

The countdown has started and Apollo 16's astronauts went through their final lunar landing dress rehearsal for Sunday's flight to the unexplored highlands of the moon.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson

"continues to show improvement" after his second heart attack, his doctor announced.

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and 77 other countries have signed a treaty renouncing the use of biological weapons. Conspicuously absent was France, which has also refused to sign the nuclear test ban treaty. China also was not present at any of the ceremonies but it was uncertain whether China would eventually sign.

The State

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

Neptune Pool Attendance Is Up 1,036 In Month

Attendance is increasing at Neptune Pool, adjacent to Wheeling High School, the Wheeling Park District board learned last week.

David Phillips, district recreation director, gave the board statistics indicating attendance increased 1,036 in March over the previous month.

Of that figure, Phillips said, 458 people were either using passes or paying daily fees.

A total of 578 people attended free group swims at the pool in March. Phillips is offering the group swims to various clubs and organizations in an effort to increase pool attendance.

Overall attendance totals presented to the board indicated paid attendance went from 366 in January, to 512 in February, to 805 in March.

Cash receipts at the pool are up, with the district collecting $214 in January, $343 in February and $439 in March.

IN OTHER ACTION at the board meeting Thursday the board decided not to pay an $1,100 bill for repairs to pipes at the pool. Board members asked if damage caused when the pipes froze should have been covered in a warranty. They asked District Atty. Roger Bjorvik to check into the bill before it is paid.

Board members also expressed concern over gouges in the gymnasium floor at the fieldhouse caused by First Illinois drum and bugle corps members dropping their guns. Commissioner Gus Nizzi said the corps should be required to rectify the damage by replacing the tiles.

Alf Wilson, park district president and member of the corps boosters, said the guns would be capped with tape or rubber tips in future practice sessions.

The summer program and brochure presented to the board by Phillips was approved as presented. The brochures will now be printed before signs for the summer programs will begin.

BOARD MEMBERS deferred discussion of having Wheeling Park District flags made for local marching groups until the next park board meeting.

The board approved allowing the Wheeling Rotary Club to lease Heritage Park for $1 on June 26 for the annual Rotary Circus. Commissioner Gus Nizzi cast the only vote against allowing the use of the park for the circus.

A lengthy discussion about closing Neptune Pool on Saturday and Sunday evenings resulted in placing the item in committee for a later decision.

Phillips asked the board to close the pool those evenings because attendance was averaging nine people on Saturday evenings and seven on Sunday evenings.

Phillips suggested the pool then could be available for rental to private groups those evenings.

Some board members questioned whether reducing the open hours would be fair, because residents bought passes to use the pool based on having the pool open a set number of hours.

THE BOARD NOTED new passes will be in effect in June and the hours could be changed then.

Motions to close the pool on Sunday evenings, now, to close the pool on Sunday evenings beginning in the fall, and to close the pool on Saturday and Sunday evenings from now until June were all voted down by the board during the discussion.

The item was then referred to committee.

WORKERS HOOK UP the demolished car of a Palatine woman to remove it from near where it was struck by a Chicago and North Western Ry. train last night. The victim was killed when the train hit the stopped car at the Rohlwing Road intersection in Palatine. There were no passengers in the car.

Rohlwing Road Crossing In Palatine

Train Hits Car; Woman, 43, Killed

A Palatine woman was killed instantly when her stopped car was struck by a fast-moving Chicago and North Western express train last night at Rohlwing Road, just south of Northwest Hwy. in Palatine.

The victim was identified as Susie M. Kelly, 43, of 220 S. Oak St.

The car was stopped on the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks when it was hit by the northwest bound train, No. 639, at around 6:04 p.m.

The train left Chicago at its regularly scheduled time, 5:20 p.m., with 11 passenger cars.

ORVILLE SCHULTZ of Lake Geneva, engineer of the rush hour train, said he sounded the horn and applied the brakes when he saw the stalled vehicle on the tracks, but was unable to stop. The train generally goes about 55 miles per hour in that stretch, he said.

Hank Best of Lake Geneva, the fireman who was riding in the engine cab, said the car seemed to pause as the train approached, then drove onto the tracks and stopped.

Another witness, Alan Luciani of Rolling Meadows was about 100 feet from the victim's car when he saw it southbound on Rohlwing Road, driving slowly over the tracks while the gates were up.

Luciani said the driver stopped the car on the tracks when the gate began to go down.

"She had plenty of time to get through, but she must have panicked," he said.

JUST BEFORE impact, the driver moved the car's wheels to the right, but made no attempt to get out of the car, Luciani said.

Another man, who works on the fourth floor of the nearby Suburban National Bank building, 800 E. Northwest Hwy., said he was drawn to the window by the train's horn, and saw the stalled car.

The woman "certainly had enough time to open the door and possibly enough time to get out," he said.

The car ended partly under the train about 125 yards north of the intersection on the south side of the tracks.

Police and fire units from Palatine and Rolling Meadows worked for several minutes to remove the body.

Two northwest and one southeast bound rush hour trains were delayed near the scene of the accident, and traffic was tied up along Northwest Highway.

Many of the commuters embarked from the train and sought rides from drivers along the highway.

Two Wheeling Youths Face Charges After Altercation

Two Wheeling youths were arrested by local police after they reportedly attacked another group of youths at the corner of South Wayne and East Dennis at 9:40 p.m. Friday.

Police charged Vincent Castiglione, 17, of 543 N. Green Dr., Wheeling with two counts of aggravated assault and charged Frederick Torp, 17, of 705 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling, with battery and assault.

Castiglione allegedly threatened one of the youths with a 3½-pound sledge hammer and swung it at him, but missed.

Both were released on $1,000 bond and are to appear in Arlington Heights District Court April 25.

The youths who were attacked were from Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights. They told police they were driving eastbound on South Dennis when Castiglione, Torp and another youth in a pickup truck yelled at them. The youths said the truck followed them.

After the youths got out of their cars Torp allegedly hit one of them in the mouth with his fist.

After a brief fight, Castiglione, Torp and a third youth fled in the truck, police said. Officers stopped the youths five minutes later at the intersection of Linda Terrace and East Dennis after receiving a complaint from the youths who said they were attacked.

Canines Learn Obedience

'Dog-Gone, This Is A Dog's Life'

by DOUG RAY

Most of the canines had their wet noses planted to the cement floor. For many of them, this was the first contact with other dogs.

Restrained by the master's lead, they walked in a circle, then stopped and started again, responding to the owner's commands. There were Sheep Dogs, Collies, Airedales and a mongrel, all of them learning manners . . . suburban manners.

Without large fields to roam in, the dogs are relegated to house pets. Even the Old English Sheep Dog, appropriately named "Winston," whose paws are as massive as the Beagle's tiny head, is a "house" dog.

"I just want him to obey so he doesn't jump all over people," said Winston's owner, Mrs. Charles Broehl of Arlington Heights. "We keep him in the house most of the time so we can't afford those antics."

"But we're lucky," she said, pointing to the dog who was cowed on the floor, "that he doesn't have a long tail and can't sweep things off the table."

Winston along with a dozen other varieties were attending their weekly dog obedience class sponsored by the Palatine Park District. Residents from throughout the Northwest Suburbs have entered dogs in the class.

"When the eight weeks are completed, the dogs will be able to respond to basic commands," said Mrs. Dorothy Ortman, instructor of the class. "But they also learn to get along with other dogs," she said.

THE DOGS SEEMED more concerned with their fellow classmates at the session last week than in learning how to "sit" or "heel." Several were preoccupied with scratching themselves and sniffing.

"But this is just the second class. They will be a lot better before it's over," according to Mrs. Ortman, who has been teaching dog obedience for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. Ortman's canine instruction began when her husband brought home a Boxer in payment of a debt. "I taught the boxers and have been doing it ever since," she said. "I learned by watching other people but mostly by doing it myself."

She stood on a bench, guiding the class and adding helpful hints to the owners whose dogs were unresponsive.

A small, bespectacled woman with a Collie half her size, dragged the dog around the circle. When she said "sit," the collie would lie down. "He's so good at home," she said, "but he won't do anything in class. I think he's an idiot."

But Mrs. Ortman had a bit of philosophy about the unwilling collie and disgusted master. "If you think he's an idiot, he'll act like one," she said. "Think like you've got a Lassie and tell him he's a good dog . . . that will help him think that way."

A snow white Bichon Frise, a foreign dog, owned by Mrs. John Martin, wasn't the best student, but seemed to have the keenest nose. "He's not doing too well," said Mrs. Martin. "He's too busy sniffing the ground."

Mrs. Martin, like the other dog owners in the class, just wants the pet to be obedient. And she believes "Button" is a little better after the first class.

Mrs. Charlotte Baumgart of Arlington Heights enrolled her black poodle "so he can learn to live indoors." She said the dog "has never been restricted before" but now that the family has relocated in a subdivision "he's gonna have to come when I call him and sit when I want him to."

Bob and Elaine Kummer of Palatine brought their dog, a part Labrador Retriever and Weimaraner, to the session "to make him livable. He lives with us," said Mrs. Kummer as the three-foot-high dog dragged her toward the door.

Before the conclusion of the 45-minute class, Mrs. Ortman plays a game that she calls "musical dogs." The dogs again are led around a circle and must answer to the owner's order "sit." The slowest to react are eliminated.

The proud owners walked the dogs and then gave the command. The purebred Sheep Dog and Collie were the first out. The Afghan was next, then the German Shepherd.

With only three dogs left, the Airedale was disqualified, leaving only the black Poodle and a small dog that must have been a mixture of a half-dozen breeds.

The final two contestants began to walk the dogs. They stopped and gave the command. Alas, the tiny mongrel, with a fraying collar around his neck, had won.

The lone non-thoroughbred was the smartest of them all.

Woman Critical After Head-On Collision

A Skokie woman was in critical condition at Holy Family Hospital yesterday afternoon after a 2:15 a.m. head-on collision in Wheeling Sunday.

Ruth V. Cowan, 51, received head injuries in a crash on the south side of Dundee Road, 528 feet west of Portwine Road.

Mrs. Cowan's husband, Andrew, and the driver of the other car, Gene C. Gray of Wheeling, were both treated for minor injuries and released from Holy Family hospital.

Gray, 56, who lives at 515 S. Milwaukee Ave., was charged by Wheeling police with driving while under the influence of alcohol and driving on the wrong side of the road.

He is to appear in Arlington Heights District Court on the charges May 23.

Police estimated damage to Gray's car at $1,200 and damage to Cowan's auto at $1,500.

PTA Notes

Junior Girl Scout Troop 426 of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow School and Troop 447 of St. Mary's School, both in Buffalo Grove, recently toured Clearbrook School in Rolling Meadows. The tour was in connection with projects both troops have been working on. Troop 426 made stuffed toys for the Clearbrook children, and Troop 447 made teaching aids consisting of painted clothespins. The pins will aid in teaching colors, counting and manual dexterity.

Library Bd. Vote Today

Two incumbents are running uncontested in the Prospect Heights Library Board election today. Polls will be open from noon to 6:30 p.m. today at the Prospect Heights Community Church, 400 N. Elmhurst Rd.

Library board president Mrs. Robert Lusk, 100 N. Parkway, has served on the board since the beginning of the district in 1957. She said her one main goal for the district is to have its own library building, which is scheduled for completion in late summer.

Mrs. Lusk has said her other plans for the library include expanded hours, a young people's storyhour during the school year and at-home services for persons unable to go to the library.

James Hansen, 204 Wheeling Rd., has served on the library board since 1967. He said the library has been doing the best it could with its present cramped conditions, but it will be good for the district to have its own building.

Man Charged In Auto Accident

A 19-year-old Wheeling man was charged with driving too fast for conditions after his car hit a tree on the west side of Birch Trail Friday.

Wheeling police charged Stephen Falk of 346 E. Jeffery Ave. after the 3:20 p.m. accident.

Damage to Falk's car was estimated at $400 by police.

He is to appear in Arlington Heights District Court April 25.

Falk told police he slid on the slippery street as he was trying to avoid a snow plow and his car skidded into the tree.

A passenger in Falk's car, Daniel Crepas, 14, of 591 Audrey Ct. was taken home by police. He had minor knee injuries from the accident.

Wheeling Twp. Welfare Roles Up 22 Per Cent

by CINDY TEW

There are 22 per cent more families on general assistance this year in Wheeling Township than there were last year, and the increase will mean a 12 per cent increase in the general assistance fund, according to the preliminary budget.

To the taxpayer, the increase will probably mean no change in the property tax bill. The present general assistance rate is one cent per $100 assessed value. "The increase will probably be picked up by the additional assessed value of the area," said Marshall Theroux, township assessor. "The growth in general assistance is pretty much in line with the growth of the area."

This year, 147 families are receiving general assistance as compared to 114 families last year. The increase is the largest in several years, according to Wheeling Township Supervisor, Ethel Kolerus.

"UNTIL THIS year, the number of general assistance cases had been staying constant," said Mrs. Kolerus. Though general assistance cases are sprinkled throughout Wheeling Township,

Mrs. Kolerus said more apartment dwellers than homeowners receive aid. "Some people don't bargain for what it costs to live out here," she said. General assistance, at the township level, includes residents who do not qualify for welfare under a county, state or federal category like Aid to Dependent Children or Assistance to the Blind. The average general assistance recipient stays on the township rolls for 30 to 60 days, though some receive aid for years. "We have one woman who has been receiving part of her rent from the township for the past two years," said Mrs. Kolerus. "She is not eligible for any other aid, and she simply can't live on her widows benefits."

IN SOME cases, an emergency, like sickness or an accident, can halt the income of a family and pile up bills at the same time. While other agencies require time limits before giving assistance, the township can help right away. "Most of our cases are either monetary problems or go on to some category of welfare at the county level," said Mrs. Kolerus.

The general assistance department also handles counseling and referral services, which cost nothing.

"We have three to four people each day coming to us for some type of service who don't qualify for monetary aid," said Mrs. Kolerus. "We try to help them somehow whether it be a referral or just sitting down and helping them figure out a budget."

THE 1971-72 general assistance budget is $46,110, the proposed 1972-73 budget is $52,850. The major increases are in food, rent, clothing and utilities.

Anyone with questions about the general assistance budget, the township budget, or any other facet of Wheeling Township government, is welcome at the annual township meeting to be held tonight at Wheeling Township Town Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Local Man Faces Assault Charge

Wheeling police charged a local man with assault last weekend after he allegedly threatened to shoot his landlord with a .22-caliber rifle.

Police arrested James J. Sramek, 19, of 278 E. Center St. for reportedly threatening Gerrit Vanderziel of 475 Milwaukee Ave.

The threat occurred during an argument over nailing shut a basement door, police said.

Jayne Murder 'Triggerman's' Confession Ruled Valid

The confession of Julius Barnes, the alleged triggerman in the murder of Inverness horseman George Jayne, was ruled valid yesterday in Criminal Court by Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald.

His ruling ended a three-day hearing that began last week on a motion by Barnes' attorney George Howard that the confession had been coerced by police investigators and was therefore invalid.

After hearing testimony from Barnes, Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents, a former assistant state's attorney and policemen, Judge Fitzgerald ruled that the confession had been made by Barnes voluntarily and was acceptable as evidence. The defense had asked that Barnes be tried separately from Silas Jayne, brother of the victim, and Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, who were charged with Barnes with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Howard claimed that Barnes' confession incriminated the other two defendants.

However, Judge Fitzgerald last week denied the motion for the separate trial and the three will be tried together.

Witnesses called by the state on the motion to suppress the confession testified that Barnes had been advised of his rights before he made the confession.

MATTHEW WALSH, former assistant state's attorney who helped lead the investigation of the Jayne murder, testified that Barnes originally denied any knowl-

PASSPORT '72 the next two Saturdays will bring the flavor of foreign countries to the parish grammar school of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Several nations will be represented. Here a sparkling Italian dance is rehearsed by (from left) Mrs. James Laganowski, Mrs. Vince Azano and Mrs. Mal Caskey.

An Evening Trip Around The World

'Passport '72' This Weekend

An evening trip around the world will be offered this weekend and next at the "Passport '72" program in St. Mary's Catholic Church of Buffalo Grove.

"Passport '72" is the third annual entertainment program sponsored by the church. Sights and sounds of many countries will be offered in rooms of the parish grammar school on Buffalo Grove Road.

A highlight of the double weekend of entertainment is an Israeli program provided by members of the Far Acres

Chapter of ORT, a community branch of the national Jewish social service organization.

Doors will open at 8 p.m. April 15 and 22 for the cosmopolitan atmosphere, which will include shows representing England, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Mexico and Russia.

Each performing group will have its own room, and visitors will move about the school to see the shows. Each room will be decorated in a motif appropriate to the country involved.

The Rev. Donald Duffy said the format will be similar to the past two years, when the themes were "Stop the Clock" and "Cities after Dark."

Refreshments will be available throughout the building. Tickets for Passport '72 are $5 per person, and are available through St. Mary's Rectory. Because of seating limitations, Father Duffy has recommended reservations be made early by phoning 541-1450.

Plan Ambulance For Long Grove

The Long Grove Fire Department may begin ambulance service to its district soon. The department has arranged to operate a used ambulance on a lease-purchase agreement until its new ambulance can be delivered.

Although the district passed a referendum for a tax to pay for a new ambulance, Fire Chief Ed Deeke said the vehicle cannot be ordered until federal funds have been approved.

The new ambulance is to be a van type, on a Chevrolet chassis, and will cost the district about $16,000.

The used ambulance is a 1963 model with 4,500 miles on it. The vehicle was formerly used in a factory in Joliet. Deeke said the ambulance needs minor repairs, cleanup and painting before it can be put into service.

Plan Unit OKs Annex Of One House

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission last week approved a request from Charles F. and Janet Hinze of Arlington Heights to annex half an acre containing one house at Dundee Road and Betty Lane.

The commission will recommend to the village board that the land be taken into the village along with the necessary adjoining street. Hinze said the house on the site will be converted into a craft shop, to be called Craft Cottage. The shop will contain ceramics and other handicrafts items.

The land at the southwest corner is presently 3420 Betty Lane, but will become 295 W. Dundee. The property will be zoned B-1 to allow light business use.

The commission also heard a preliminary request from attorney John Tevan to annex the half-acre immediately south of the Hinze property for a business office. He said the house there would be remodeled for use by National Highway Directories, Inc.

The second phase of Oak Creek North near Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads was also approved by the commission. The second phase will have 180 apartment units. The development is owned by Gregg Builders.

Local Trooper Earns Citation For Rescue Part

An Illinois State Trooper from Buffalo Grove was one of two troopers who were awarded the state certificate of valor in ceremonies last week at the hospital bed of a man they saved.

Terry Ward, of 645 Grove, Buffalo Grove, and James Roney of Northfield received the award for their assistance to Otto Schneidau of Chicago, who was seriously injured when his truck crashed and overturned on the Edens Expressway Feb. 3.

The driver was pinned in the truck for two hours while rescuers cut away the frame to free his trapped foot. Schneidau lost an arm and a leg due to the accident.

While other men worked to free him, Ward and Roney administered first aid. They took steps to stop the bleeding and applied tourniquets to Schneidau's left arm and left leg. The troopers also positioned a tow truck on the road to block strong winds which threatened to tip the truck cab over further.

The troopers received special commendation for utilizing a trauma care plan set up by the state, in which they radioed Evanston Hospital and advised doctors of the driver's condition.

Policeman Completes Youth Training Class

Charles Weidner of the Buffalo Grove Police Department has completed a Youth Officers Training Course conducted by the Police Training Institute of the University of Illinois.

Weidner attended the 11-day course at the Champaign-Urbana campus.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The FBI announced recovery of $499,970 in the Provo, Utah home of the sky-diving college student held for the hijacking of a jet last week. Held is Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

His ratings lagging, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine plans to concentrate his Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, according to his supporters.

The countdown has started and Apollo 16's astronauts went through their final lunar landing dress rehearsal for Sunday's flight to the unexplored highlands of the moon.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson

"continues to show improvement" after his second heart attack, his doctor announced.

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and 77 other countries have signed a treaty renouncing the use of biological weapons. Conspicuously absent was France, which has also refused to sign the nuclear test ban treaty. China also was not present at any of the ceremonies but it was uncertain whether China would eventually sign.

The State

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

Local Woman, 43, Killed As Train Rams Automobile

A Palatine woman was killed instantly when her stopped car was struck by a fast-moving Chicago and North Western express train last night at Rohlwing Road, just south of Northwest Hwy. in Palatine.

The victim was identified as Susie M. Kelly, 43, of 220 S. Oak St.

The car was stopped on the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks when it was hit by the northwest bound train, No. 639, at around 8:04 p.m.

The train left Chicago at its regularly scheduled time, 5:20 p.m., with 11 passenger cars.

ORVILLE SCHULTZ of Lake Geneva, engineer of the rush hour train, said he sounded the horn and applied the brakes when he saw the stalled vehicle on the tracks, but was unable to stop. The train generally goes about 55 miles per hour in that stretch, he said.

Hank Best of Lake Geneva, the fireman who was riding in the engine cab, said the car seemed to pause as the train approached, then drove onto the tracks and stopped.

Another witness, Alan Luciani of Rolling Meadows was about 100 feet from the victim's car when he saw it southbound on Rohlwing Road, driving slowly over the tracks while the gates were up.

Luciani said the driver stopped the car on the tracks when the gate began to go down.

"She had plenty of time to get through, but she must have panicked," he said.

JUST BEFORE impact, the driver moved the car's wheels to the right, but made no attempt to get out of the car, Luciani said.

Another man, who works on the fourth floor of the nearby Suburban National Bank building, 800 E. Northwest Hwy., said he was drawn to the window by the train's horn, and saw the stalled car.

The woman "certainly had enough time to open the door and possibly enough time to get out," he said.

The car ended partly under the train about 125 yards north of the intersection on the south side of the tracks.

Police and fire units from Palatine and Rolling Meadows worked for several minutes to remove the body.

Two northwest and one southeast bound rush hour trains were delayed near the scene of the accident, and traffic was tied up along Northwest Highway.

Many of the commuters embarked from the train and sought rides from drivers along the highway.

WORKERS HOOK UP the demolished car of a Palatine woman to remove it from near where it was struck by a Chicago and North Western Ry. train last night. The victim was killed when the train hit the stopped car at the Rohlwing Road intersection in Palatine. There were no passengers in the car.

Budget Will Be Eyed Tonight

Palatine Township's proposed record budget for 1972-73 will be up for inspection tonight at the annual town meeting.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Town Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The budget and appropriation ordinance is to be reviewed, with a formal budget hearing slated for May 1.

Township auditors are considering a $156,000 budget, an increase of $31,000 over the present budget.

Despite the increase, services are to be maintained at the same level as during the past year.

How the larger budget will affect taxpayers is not yet determined. Township officials are counting an additional property assessments to offset budgetary increases, thus maintaining the tax rate.

The rate paid last year to the town and general assistance funds was .052 per $100 assessed valuation, or $8.32 by the owner of property assessed at $10,000 and equalized at around $16,000.

This year's rate is expected to be announced shortly, when assessments have been tabulated.

The rate to support the budget being devised now will not be set and collected until next year.

The road and bridge tax rate for township residents next year is expected to be .108 per $100 assessed valuation, down from this year's .112 rate, the highest amount the township is permitted to charge.

UNDER THE .108 rate, the owner of property assessed at $10,000 would pay $17.28.

The funds are used to maintain township roads, which are mainly streets in unincorporated subdivisions.

Township auditors have attributed the increases in the town and general assistance.

$102 Raised For NW Center

Some $105 has been raised in Palatine for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

A special account for contributions to the center was set up two weeks ago by Palatine trustees.

The trustees turned down a request for $4,100 in municipal funds by the center for fear it would set an unwise precedent. Instead, they set up a fund at the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine for donations, and were the first to contribute to it.

Letters have been sent to local civic groups and churches seeking additional funds, especially the week of April 17, which has been designated Northwest Opportunity Center Week in Palatine.

The $4,100 figure was based on the cost of financing the 192 Palatine families who are served by the center.

Donations to the fund made at the bank, 35 N. Brockway St., should be made payable to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Residents Rip Proposed Tax Increase

The taxpayers' increasing frustration with rising costs and government expenses came to a head last night at an open public hearing of the Palatine Village Board.

About 75 Palatine residents came to question why and object to a proposed increase of 14 cents per $100 of assessed valuation in the 1972 tax rate. This hike, which would raise the rate from about 55 cents to 69½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation, was determined necessary by the village board to make up a proposed $66,000 deficit.

Although the village board had considered other methods of eliminating the deficit, it decided on the property tax increase as the best solution. The board rejected the proposal of the village manager to establish a 5 per cent utility tax on telephone, electricity, and gas bills.

IN A SERIES of working sessions over the past month, the board considered a variety of areas to cut expenses, and lessen an anticipated $150,000 deficit to $66,000. Most other cuts the board could have made would have resulted in lowering the level of village services offered to residents.

With a tax rate of 69½ cents applied to the average house with an assessed valuation of $10,000, the increased tax rate would create a tax spread on a bill for the homeowner of $110.54 paid to the village.

Currently a person with the same assessed valuation pays the village $88.01.

In response to questions raised by a number of residents, trustees last night pointed out that approximately 7 per cent of the money paid by a homeowner from his tax bill goes to the Village of Palatine. The remainder goes primarily to schools and to other taxing bodies in the area.

Of the money paid to the village, 43 per cent goes to the Palatine Public Library, the operation of which the village board has no direct control.

"We could eliminate the village tax which this board controls and you'd probably not even notice the difference on your tax bill," Mayor Jack Moodie told the residents. "If you want to object to increasing taxes you can't go to one of the smallest taxing bodies (the village) on your tax bill."

Trustee Clayton Brown pointed out that the village board has substantially decreased the village tax rate over the last five years.

THE PROPOSED 14 cent increase, if initiated, would bring the tax rate back up to a level slightly over what it was in 1967.

Don Kennedy, president of the Hunting Ridge Homeowners Association, suggested that the board actively seek more businesses and industry to Palatine to broaden the tax base and lessen the burden on the individual homeowner. He suggested a more "cooperative attitude with businesses" seeking a location in Palatine.

"You have to face the proposition that you cannot force people to pay more and more taxes without driving them out of the area," Kennedy said.

He found the proposed increase in the sewer rate, which would raise the average charge per household $10 a year, less objectionable than an increase in the property tax rate.

Formal adoption of the budget must be done before the end of April according to state statute. The village board is expected to meet again in view of responses from residents at the public hearing, to further consider the budget for final adoption.

Jayne Murder 'Triggerman's' Confession Ruled Valid

The confession of Julius Barnes, the alleged triggerman in the murder of Inverness horseman George Jayne, was ruled valid yesterday in Criminal Court by Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald.

His ruling ended a three-day hearing that began last week on a motion by Barnes' attorney George Howard that the confession had been coerced by police investigators and was therefore invalid.

After hearing testimony from Barnes, Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents, a former assistant state's attorney and policeman, Judge Fitzgerald ruled that the confession had been made by Barnes voluntarily and was acceptable as evidence.

The defense had asked that Barnes be tried separately from Silas Jayne, brother of the victim, and Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, who were charged with Barnes with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Howard claimed that Barnes' confession incriminated the other two defendants.

However, Judge Fitzgerald last week denied the motion for the separate trial and the three will be tried together.

Witnesses called by the state on the motion to suppress the confession testified that Barnes had been advised of his rights before he made the confession.

MATTHEW WALSH, former assistant state's attorney who helped lead the investigation of the Jayne murder, testified that Barnes originally denied any knowledge of the murder but then decided to cooperate after he learned a fifth man, Melvin Adams, had been granted immunity to testify for the state.

Adams had been charged with tampering with the testimony of a grand jury witness after a Dec. 29 session of the Cook County Grand Jury in the investigation of the Jayne murder.

His testimony before the grand jury eventually led to the two-count indictments handed down against Silas Jayne, LaPlaca, Barnes and Edwin Nefeld, former chief of detectives of the Markham Police Department.

Nefeld last week pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy to commit murder and was sentenced by Judge Fitzgerald to 3 to 10 years in prison. The murder charge that had also been against him was dropped by the state.

The next hearing on the case is set for May 11 at Criminal Court at which time the defense is expected to have turned over copies of whatever evidence it has on the case to the state. A hearing will also be held on a motion made by LaPlaca's attorneys to suppress evidence taken from his Elgin home several days after the murder.

Police had confiscated three unregistered hand guns from LaPlaca's home after they received an anonymous telephone tip that LaPlaca had the weapon that was used to kill Jayne. However, the murder weapon was not found there.

Canines Learn Obedience

'Dog-Gone, This Is A Dog's Life'

by DOUG RAY

Most of the canines had their wet noses planted to the cement floor. For many of them, this was the first contact with other dogs.

Restrained by the master's lead, they walked in a circle, then stopped and started again, responding to the owner's commands. There were Sheep Dogs, Collies, Airedales and a mongrel, all of them learning manners . . . suburban manners.

Without large fields to roam in, the dogs are relegated to house pets. Even the Old English Sheep Dog, appropriately named 'Winston,' whose paws are as massive as the Beagle's tiny head, is a "house" dog.

"I just want him to obey so he doesn't jump all over people," said Winston's owner, Mrs. Charles Broehl of Arlington Heights. "We keep him in the house most of the time so we can't afford those antics."

"But we're lucky," she said, pointing to the dog who was cowed on the floor, "that he doesn't have a long tail and can't sweep things off the table."

Winston along with a dozen other varieties were attending their weekly dog obedience class sponsored by the Palatine Park District. Residents from throughout the Northwest Suburbs have entered dogs in the class.

"When the eight weeks are completed, the dogs will be able to respond to basic commands," said Mrs. Dorothy Ortman, instructor of the class. "But they also learn to get along with other dogs," she said.

THE DOGS SEEMED more concerned with their fellow classmates at the session last week than in learning how to "sit" or "heel." Several were preoccupied with scratching themselves and sniffing.

"But this is just the second class. They will be a lot better before it's over," according to Mrs. Ortman, who has been teaching dog obedience for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. Ortman's canine instruction began when her husband brought home a Boxer in payment of a debt. "I taught the boxers and have been doing it ever since," she said. "I learned by watching other people but mostly by doing it myself."

She stood on a bench, guiding the class and adding helpful hints to the owners whose dogs were unattentive.

A small, bespectacled woman with a Collie half her size, dragged the dog around the circle. When she said "sit," the collie would lie down. "He's so good at home," she said, "but he won't do anything in class. I think he's an idiot."

But Mrs. Ortman had a bit of philosophy about the unwilling collie and disgusted master. "If you think he's an idiot, he'll act like one," she said. "Think like you've got a Lassie and tell him he's a good dog . . . that will help him think that way."

A snow white Bichon Frise, a foreign dog, owned by Mrs. John Martin, wasn't the best student, but seemed to have the keenest nose. "He's not doing too well," said Mrs. Martin. "He's too busy sniffing the ground."

Mrs. Martin, like the other dog owners in the class, just wants the pet to be obedient. And she believes "Button" is a little better after the first class.

Mrs. Charlotte Baumgart of Arlington Heights enrolled her black poodle "so he can learn to live indoors." She said the dog "has never been restricted before" but now that the family has relocated in a subdivision "he's gonna have to come when I call him and sit when I want him to."

JIM VOLLMER'S Airedale also has become an indoor pet after the family moved to Arlington Heights from New York. "We got her in New York where she could run . . . but unfortunately now we're in suburbia."

Bob and Elaine Kummer of Palatine brought their dog, a part Labrador Retriever and Weimaraner, to the session "to make him livable. He lives with us," said Mrs. Kummer as the three-foot-high dog dragged her toward the door.

Before the conclusion of the 45-minute class, Mrs. Ortman plays a game that she calls "musical dogs." The dogs again are led around a circle and must answer to the owner's order "sit." The slowest to react are eliminated.

A PENSIVE BEAGLE seems to be trying his level best to grasp the words of guidance during this week's dog obedience course at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights. Dogs of all sizes, shapes and breeds are enrolled in the class.

Census Takers Having ID Pictures Taken

Pictures of enumerators (census takers) for the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 school census will be taken this week.

The pictures are being taken today from 9 a.m. to noon at the Palatine Park District. They will also be taken on Friday from 9 a.m. to noon at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows.

Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka, who is chairman of the census committee, said he expects 500 enumerators to work on the census. The enumerators will be contacting an estimated 20,000 families within the boundaries of Dist. 15.

The pictures will be used on identification cards the enumerators will wear when they are conducting the census, to help identify themselves.

FOR THE PAST two weeks a trial census has been conducted in some areas to test the census form. Kiszka said the purpose of the trial census was to see how much time it takes to fill out the forms and decide where the forms can be improved. "We want to make sure the instrument we use is worthwhile," he said.

The trial census was conducted in a single family subdivision, a large apartment complex and a smaller apartment unit.

A meeting is scheduled for Wednesday to review the results of the trial census and make any necessary revisions.

The actual census is scheduled for May 1 through May 15. The district has been divided into 14 major areas following the elementary school boundaries and enumerators assigned to specific areas within each boundary.

"We are not interested in gaining confidential information," said Kiszka. He explained the board and administration hoped the census would help in long range planning by giving some indication of how many children live in the area, how many can be expected in the future and the area the children will be coming from.

In addition, the census will provide the district with a final mailing list so we can keep people better informed, said Kiszka.

G. W. Schweer New Pastor Of Baptist Church

G. W. Schweer of Independence, Mo., will become pastor of the First Baptist Church in Palatine, effective May 1.

He succeeds Rev. Charles L. Chaney, who left in November after nearly nine years with the church to assume a position with the Illinois Baptist State Association in Springfield.

Schweer will preach at both morning

G. W. Schweer

PTA Notes

Roland Stein, outdoor director for Dist. 15, will be the guest speaker at the Kimball Hill PTA meeting today at 8 p.m.

Stein will show slides to the parents and explain Kimball Hill's outdoor education program.

Programs and policies of Lincoln School in Palatine will be discussed at the Lincoln School PTA meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction, and other Dist. 15 personnel will lead the discussion group. Election of officers will be part of the program.

MRS. JOHN MARTIN, left, gets a helpful hint from dog obedience instructor Mrs. Dorothy Ortman as her white Bichon Frise seems to be relaxing. The dog obedience course is sponsored by the Palatine Park District and

Motorcyclist Gets Tickets After Chase By Policemen

A 23-year-old motorcyclist was given three tickets Sunday night after leading police on a chase north of downtown Palatine at speeds of up to 65 mph.

William Isle, of 32 S. Smith St., Palatine, was charged with careless driving, reckless driving and attempting to elude police.

Palatine Patrolman Lance Bedini said he attempted to stop Isle for allegedly not having a license plate on his vehicle when Isle accelerated the speed of the cycle.

The 10-minute chase started at northbound Northwest Highway and wound its way around Bothwell, Benton and Hale streets north of the railroad tracks before ending behind Paddock School.

Isle was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights for a knee injury apparently incurred when he fell from the motorcycle shortly before being apprehended.

A tail light on the cycle was damaged when it was struck by a patrol car being driven by Patrolman Howard Wurster, who was called to assist Bedini.

Isle was released from custody Monday after posting $500 bond. He is to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court May 25.

tance budgets to greater labor and equipment costs and a cutback in a grant to the Bridge.

The Bridge, a youth services bureau operated by the township's youth committee, was given a $46,000 grant last year by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, the figure was cut in half this year, which is considered a routine move to stimulate local financial support.

The township has proposed increasing its subsidy of The Bridge, through the youth committee, from $40,000 to $58,000 to make up most of what was lost in the grant cutback.

Sanborn Band Wins

A first place was won by the Gray M. Sanborn School band of Palatine in the recent Illinois Grade School Instrumental Association contest.

Schools from six counties competed in the contest. The Sanborn band played three numbers for the judges. The band was directed by Sam Malambri.

and evening services at the church, 1023 E. Palatine Rd., on Sunday.

A graduate of Central Baptist Seminary (CBS) in Kansas City, Mo., Schweer was pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Independence for four years before his appointment to the Foreign Mission Board of the CBS in 1967.

Schweer and his wife, Wanda, have three children, Marilee, Mark and Clark.

Inquest Today In Woman's Death

An inquest will be held today in the apparent suicide of a 53-year-old Palatine woman.

The body of Mrs. Gertrude Weyhenmeyer, 53, of 10 S. Linden Ave., was found early Monday by her husband, Charles, in a car in the garage. She was an apparent victim of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Weyhenmeyer told Palatine police the death occurred between 9 p.m. Sunday and 1:22 a.m. Monday when he returned home. Mrs. Weyhenmeyer was reported dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights at 1:40 a.m.

Weyhenmeyer said his wife, who was a guidance counselor at Prospect High School for 12 years, had not given any indication of wanting to commit suicide.

The Cook County coroner's office will conduct an inquest into the cause of death at 11 a.m. today at the Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home in Palatine.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Weyhenmeyer is survived by a son, Richard.

At attention.

Proposed Budget To Get Public Hearing Tonight

by KEN KOZAK

The proposed $2.6 million Rolling Meadows 1972-73 budget, corresponding in total nearly dollar for dollar with the amount spent by the city in 1971-72, gets its first public hearing at tonight's City Council meeting.

The discussion that starts tonight is the beginning of the end of several months of preliminary work done by city officials.

The council must adopt a budget — the one submitted or an altered form — before May 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. Last year the councilmen took three sessions to reshape the proposed budget to their liking.

The new budget is up about $40,000 more than the budget submitted a year ago. But it is approximately $1,100 less than the figure estimated as total expenditures by the city in 1971-72, with about three weeks left in this fiscal year.

Distinctive features of the proposed budget are:

— An increase in operating budgets for 20 of the 25 city departments, over expenditures for 1971-72. Cuts have been made in the legal department, capital improvements, sanitation department and street department budgets. Mental health budgeting remains at $7,000.

— A $140,000 reduction in proposed expenditures for capital improvements. Last year, $281,000 was budgeted and $445,000 spent, including the cost of the addition to city hall. This year $307,000 has been budgeted.

— Addition of six city employees, including three police patrolmen, two custodians for city hall and a foreman for the street department.

— An 80 per cent increase to $186,000 in the library budget, to accommodate a library expansion plan.

— A 2.9 per cent cost of living increase in the salaries of non-administrative city employees.

Missing from the budget are/is:

— A provision for incorporation of the Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District.

— A provision for allotting $41,000 to the Rolling Meadows Park District, which had been requested by the district for the purchase of playground equipment.

— Levies of any city taxes.

Like last year, the biggest chunk of money has been budgeted for the police department: $630,000, about $60,000 more than last year's expenditures. The water department ranks second, with $522,000 projected for this year's expenses.

Also like last year, the major source of revenue is expected to be $1.2 million in state sales tax refunds, or 46 per cent of the city's income. A carry over of $400,000 in surplus funds is also listed under revenue for 1972-73.

THE BUDGET is being submitted under the signature of City Mgr. James Watson who said the budget-makers deliberately tried to "hold the line as much as possible" in relation to the 1971-72 expenditures, which, he said, accounts for the similarity between last year's expenses and this year's budget.

The reduction in appropriations for the sanitation and street departments are not expected to affect services. Most of the sanitation cut is a result of a reduction in equipment purchasing, which more than makes up the $28,000 difference between last year and this year.

The $140,000 street department reduction comes out of work completed last year, when street department expenses were abnormally high.

The new budget, Watson said, is designed theoretically to leave the city with no surplus at the end of the fiscal year. It may not work out that way, he said, because the $306,000 budgeted for capital improvements is merely a balancing figure and has not been budgeted for specific purposes. The city council, in the course of the year, could spend all, part or none of that money. What they do with those funds will determine in part if the city will have a surplus again at the end of the new fiscal year.

Proposed Budget Meeting Tonight

Palatine Township's proposed record budget for 1972-73 will be up for inspection tonight at the annual town meeting.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Town Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The budget and appropriation ordinance is to be reviewed, with a formal budget hearing slated for May 1.

Township auditors are considering a $156,000 budget, an increase of $31,000 over the present budget.

Despite the increase, services are to be maintained at the same level as during the past year.

How the larger budget will affect taxpayers is not yet determined. Township officials are counting an additional property assessments to offset budgetary increases, thus maintaining the tax rate.

The rate paid last year to the town and general assistance funds was .052 per $100 assessed valuation, or $8.32 by the owner of property assessed at $10,000 and equalized at around $15,000.

This year's rate is expected to be announced shortly, when assessments have been tabulated.

The rate to support the budget being devised now will not be set and collected until next year.

The road and bridge tax rate for township residents next year is expected to be .108 per $100 assessed valuation, down from this year's .112 rate, the highest amount the township is permitted to charge.

UNDER THE .108 rate, the owner of property assessed at $10,000 would pay $17.28.

The funds are used to maintain township roads, which are mainly streets in unincorporated subdivisions.

Township auditors have attributed the increases in the town and general assistance

WORKERS HOOK UP the demolished car of a Palatine woman to remove it from near where it was struck by a Chicago and North Western Ry. train last night. The victim was killed when the train hit the stopped car at the Rohlwing Road intersection in Palatine. There were no passengers in the car.

Rohlwing Road Crossing In Palatine

Train Hits Car; Woman, 43, Killed

A Palatine woman was killed instantly when her stopped car was struck by a fast-moving Chicago and North Western express train last night at Rohlwing Road, just south of Northwest Hwy. in Palatine.

The victim was identified as Susie M. Kelly, 43, of 220 S. Oak St.

The car was stopped on the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks when it was hit by the northwest bound train, No. 639, at around 6:04 p.m.

The train left Chicago at its regularly scheduled time, 5:20 p.m., with 11 passenger cars.

ORVILLE SCHULTZ of Lake Geneva, engineer of the rush hour train, said he sounded the horn and applied the brakes when he saw the stalled vehicle on the tracks, but was unable to stop. The train generally goes about 55 miles per hour in that stretch, he said.

Hank Best of Lake Geneva, the fireman who was riding in the engine cab, said the car seemed to pause as the train approached, then drove onto the tracks and stopped.

Another witness, Alan Luciani of Rolling Meadows was about 100 feet from the victim's car when he saw it southbound on Rohlwing Road, driving slowly over the tracks while the gates were up.

Luciani said the driver stopped the car on the tracks when the gate began to go down.

"She had plenty of time to get through, but she must have panicked," he said.

JUST BEFORE impact, the driver moved the car's wheels to the right, but made no attempt to get out of the car, Luciani said.

Another man, who works on the fourth floor of the nearby Suburban National Bank building, 800 E. Northwest Hwy., said he was drawn to the window by the train's horn, and saw the stalled car.

The woman "certainly had enough time to open the door and possibly enough time to get out," he said.

The car ended partly under the train about 125 yards north of the intersection on the south side of the tracks.

Police and fire units from Palatine and Rolling Meadows worked for several minutes to remove the body.

Two northwest and one southeast bound rush hour trains were delayed near the scene of the accident, and traffic was tied up along Northwest Highway.

Many of the commuters embarked from the train and sought rides from drivers along the highway.

New Principal Appointed At St. Colette's School

Sister Marie Kathleen Brisboe of the Dominican Order has been appointed the new principal of St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows.

She will replace Sister Donna, who will be leaving the school this summer after serving as principal for two years.

Sister Donna is a member of the Religious Order of Sacred Heart of Mary, which has staffed St. Colette School and neighboring Sacred Heart of Mary High School since their opening. Due to a shortage of religious personnel and other problems the order decided it would no longer be able to staff either school after this year.

The search for a new principal started in March.

SISTER MARIE is currently a supervising principal at Christ the King School in Des Moines, Iowa. She will be assuming her new role in mid-July. Prior to that time she will be making several visits to the school to acquaint herself with its operation.

Sister Marie received a bachelor's degree in English from Siena Heights College in Adrian, Mich. in 1942 and a master's degree in education from DePaul University in Chicago in 1947.

In addition to her present position, Sister Marie's administrative experience includes being the supervising principal of St. Joseph School in Maybee, Mich. from 1960 to 1966.

Sister Marie's teaching experience includes teaching a self-contained eighth grade class at St. Joseph School in Wyandotte, Mich. from 1966 to 1967 and teaching mathematics at Our Lady of Knock School in Calumet City from 1967 to 1970.

Her professional affiliations include the National Catholic Educational Association, National Association of Elementary School Principals, National Education Association, Iowa Non-Public Schools Administrators Association and Iowa State Education Association.

SHE RECEIVED the National Catholic

Education Association grant in economics at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Mich. in 1967 and the Federal National Science Foundation Grant in mathematics at Western Illinois University in 1969.

'Triggerman's' Confession Is Valid In Jayne Murder Case

The confession of Julius Barnes, the alleged triggerman in the murder of Invictus horseman George Jayne, was ruled valid yesterday in Criminal Court by Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald.

His ruling ended a three-day hearing that began last week on a motion by Barnes' attorney George Howard that the confession had been coerced by police investigators and was therefore invalid.

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

A killer earthquake rumbled through Southern Iran "like the end of the world on Judgment Day," leveling dozens of farming villages and leaving as many as 4,000 persons dead under heaps of rubble. The quake, which struck at dawn in Fars Province about 610 miles south of Tehran, was Iran's worst since 1968 when an estimated 20,000 persons were killed.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The State

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

A PENSIVE BEAGLE seems to be trying his level best to grasp the words of guidance during this week's dog obedience course at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights. Dogs of all sizes, shapes and breeds are enrolled in the class.

Canines Learn Obedience

'Dog-Gone, This Is A Dog's Life'

by DOUG RAY

Most of the canines had their wet noses planted to the cement floor. For many of them, this was the first contact with other dogs.

Restrained by the master's lead, they walked in a circle, then stopped and started again, responding to the owner's commands. There were Sheep Dogs, Collies, Airedales and a mongrel, all of them learning manners . . . suburban manners.

Without large fields to roam in, the dogs are relegated to house pets. Even the Old English Sheep Dog, appropriately named "Winston," whose paws are as massive as the Beagle's tiny head, is a "house" dog.

"I just want him to obey so he doesn't jump all over people," said Winston's owner, Mrs. Charles Broehl of Arlington Heights. "We keep him in the house most of the time so we can't afford those antics."

"But we're lucky," she said, pointing to the dog who was cowed on the floor, "that he doesn't have a long tail and can't sweep things off the table."

Winston along with a dozen other varieties were attending their weekly dog obedience class sponsored by the Palatine Park District. Residents from throughout the Northwest Suburbs have entered dogs in the class.

"When the eight weeks are completed, the dogs will be able to respond to basic commands," said Mrs. Dorothy Ortman, instructor of the class. "But they also learn to get along with other dogs," she said.

THE DOGS SEEMED more concerned with their fellow classmates at the session last week than in learning how to "sit" or "heel." Several were preoccupied with scratching themselves and sniffing.

"But this is just the second class. They will be a lot better before it's over," according to Mrs. Ortman, who has been teaching dog obedience for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. Ortman's canine instruction began when her husband brought home a Boxer in payment of a debt. "I taught the boxers and have been doing it ever since," she said. "I learned by watching other people but mostly by doing it myself."

She stood on a bench, guiding the class and adding helpful hints to the owners whose dogs were unattentive.

A small, bespectacled woman with a Collie half her size, dragged the dog around the circle. When she said "sit," the collie would lie down. "He's so good at home," she said, "but he won't do anything in class. I think he's an idiot."

But Mrs. Ortman had a bit of philosophy about the unwilling collie and disgusted master. "If you think he's an idiot, he'll act like one," she said. "Think like you've got a Lassie and tell him he's a good dog . . . that will help him think that way."

A snow white Bichon Frise, a foreign dog, owned by Mrs. John Martin, wasn't the best student, but seemed to have the keenest nose. "He's not doing too well," said Mrs. Martin. "He's too busy sniffing the ground."

Mrs. Martin, like the other dog owners in the class, just wants the pet to be obedient. And she believes "Button" is a little better after the first class.

Mrs. Charlotte Baumgart of Arlington Heights enrolled her black poodle "so he can learn to live indoors." She said the dog "has never been restricted before" but now that the family has relocated in a subdivision "he's gonna have to come when I call him and sit when I want him to."

JIM VOLLMER'S Airedale also has become an indoor pet after the family moved to Arlington Heights from New York. "We got her in New York where she could run . . . but unfortunately now we're in suburbia."

Bob and Elaine Kummer of Palatine brought their dog, a part Labrador Retriever and Weimaraner, to the session "to make him livable. He lives with us," said Mrs. Kummer as the three-foot-high dog dragged her toward the door.

Before the conclusion of the 45-minute class, Mrs. Ortman plays a game that she calls "musical dogs." The dogs again are led around a circle and must answer to the owner's order "sit." The slowest to react are eliminated.

Census Takers Having ID Pictures Taken

Pictures of enumerators (census takers) for the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 school census will be taken this week.

The pictures are being taken today from 9 a.m. to noon at the Palatine Park District. They will also be taken on Friday from 9 a.m. to noon at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows.

Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka, who is chairman of the census committee, said he expects 500 enumerators to work on the census. The enumerators will be contacting an estimated 20,000 families within the boundaries of Dist. 15.

The pictures will be used on identification cards the enumerators will wear when they are conducting the census, to help identify themselves.

FOR THE PAST two weeks a trial census has been conducted in some areas to test the census form. Kiszka said the purpose of the trial census was to see how much time it takes to fill out the forms and decide where the forms can be improved. "We want to make sure the instrument we use is worthwhile," he said.

The trial census was conducted in a single family subdivision, a large apartment complex and a smaller apartment unit.

A meeting is scheduled for Wednesday to review the results of the trial census and make any necessary revisions.

The actual census is scheduled for May 1 through May 15. The district has been divided into 14 major areas following the elementary school boundaries and enumerators assigned to specific areas within each boundary.

"We are not interested in gaining confidential information," said Kiszka. He explained the board and administration hoped the census would help in long range planning by giving some indication of how many children live in the area, how many can be expected in the future and the area the children will be coming from.

Confession Is Valid In Jayne Murder Case

confession had been made by Barnes voluntarily and was acceptable as evidence.

The defense had asked that Barnes be tried separately from Silas Jayne, brother of the victim, and Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, who were charged with Barnes with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Howard claimed that Barnes' confession incriminated the other two defendants.

However, Judge Fitzgerald last week denied the motion for the separate trial and the three will be tried together.

Witnesses called by the state on the motion to suppress the confession testified that Barnes had been advised of his rights before he made the confession.

MATTHEW WALSH, former assistant state's attorney who helped lead the investigation of the Jayne murder, testified that Barnes originally denied any knowledge of the murder but then decided to cooperate after he learned a fifth man, Melvin Adams, had been granted immunity to testify for the state.

Adams had been charged with tampering with the testimony of a grand jury witness after a Dec. 29 session of the Cook County Grand Jury in the investigation of the Jayne murder.

His testimony before the grand jury eventually led to the two-count indictments handed down against Silas Jayne, LaPlaca, Barnes and Edwin Nefeld, former chief of detectives of the Markham Police Department.

Nefeld last week pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy to commit murder and was sentenced by Judge Fitzgerald to 3 to 10 years in prison. The murder charge that had also been against him was dropped by the state.

The next hearing on the case is set for May 11 at Criminal Court at which time the defense is expected to have turned over copies of whatever evidence it has on the case to the state. A hearing will also be held on a motion made by LaPlaca's attorneys to suppress evidence taken from his Elgin home several days after the murder.

Police had confiscated three unregistered hand guns from LaPlaca's home after they received an anonymous telephone tip that LaPlaca had the weapon that was used to kill Jayne. However, the murder weapon was not found there.

PTA Notes

Roland Stein, outdoor director for Dist. 15, will be the guest speaker at the Kimball Hill PTA meeting today at 8 p.m. Stein will show slides to the parents and explain Kimball Hill's outdoor education program.

Programs and policies of Lincoln School in Palatine will be discussed at the Lincoln School PTA meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction, and other Dist. 15 personnel will lead the discussion group. Election of officers will be part of the program.

Motorcyclist Gets Tickets After Chase By Policemen

A 23-year-old motorcyclist was given three tickets Sunday night after leading police on a chase north of downtown Palatine at speeds of up to 65 mph.

William Isle, of 32 S. Smith St., Palatine, was charged with careless driving, reckless driving and attempting to elude police.

Palatine Patrolman Lance Bedini said he attempted to stop Isle for allegedly not having a license plate on his vehicle when Isle accelerated the speed of the cycle.

The 10-minute chase started at northbound Northwest Highway and wound its way around Bothwell, Benton and Hale streets north of the railroad tracks before ending behind Paddock School.

Isle was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights for a knee injury apparently incurred when he fell from the motorcycle shortly before being apprehended.

A tail light on the cycle was damaged when it was struck by a patrol car being driven by Patrolman Howard Wurster, who was called to assist Bedini.

Isle was released from custody Monday after posting $500 bond. He is to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court May 25.

MRS. JOHN MARTIN, left, gets a helpful hint from dog obedience instructor Mrs. Dorothy Ortman as her white Bichon Frise seems to be relaxing. The dog obedience course is sponsored by the Palatine Park District and

Proposed Budget Meeting Tonight

tance budgets to greater labor and equipment costs and a cutback in a grant to the Bridge.

The Bridge, a youth services bureau operated by the township's youth committee, was given a $46,000 grant last year by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, the figure was cut in half this year, which is considered a routine move to stimulate local financial support.

The township has proposed increasing its subsidy of The Bridge, through the youth committee, from $40,000 to $59,000 to make up most of what was lost in the grant cutback.

Teachers, Board To Discuss Open Contract Meetings

Teachers and school board members in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 will discuss opening 1972-73 contract talks to the public tonight at their first formal bargaining meeting.

The meeting will be held behind closed doors at 7:30 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, 700 W. Lincoln St. Both sides plan to meet separately before the meeting to assess their positions.

The board's team probably will make a decision on open negotiations, according to Peter Dudrow, team chairman.

"The first meeting will be a procedural one where we discuss the steps we will take in the negotiating process," Dudrow said. "It'll be an amiable meeting, I'm sure."

Last month representatives of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA) indicated they favor opening bargaining sessions. Now, however, they aren't sure.

"Some of our team say it's good. Some say it's not," said Dan Vondran, teacher negotiator. "I don't think we'd fight one way or the other. But we'll meet before the meeting so we know just what our feelings are. We will have to weigh the advantages and disadvantages."

VONDRAK SAID some MPEA members changed their minds after hearing reports and sitting in on open bargaining talks in Districts 23 and 21. "Some feel the two sides are playing to the audience," he said.

Results of an MPEA survey taken to determine what teachers want in a contract will not be revealed at the meeting, Vondran said. "We are just going to go through the ground rules and set up the format for the rest of our meetings," he said. "We have some things we want to talk about." Vondran would not say what those items will be.

The two teams met informally last month to establish a working relationship, according to both sides. After the five-hour meeting, Vondran said he felt both sides "really wanted to work together this year."

Last year the two teams negotiated for more than nine months before a 1971-72 contract settlement was reached.

Confession Is Valid In Jayne Murder Case

The confession of Julius Barnes, the alleged triggerman in the murder of Inverness horseman George Jayne, was ruled valid yesterday in Criminal Court by Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald.

His ruling ended a three-day hearing that began last week on a motion by Barnes' attorney George Howard that the confession had been coerced by police investigators and was therefore invalid.

After hearing testimony from Barnes, Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents, a former assistant state's attorney and policemen, Judge Fitzgerald ruled that the confession had been made by Barnes voluntarily and was acceptable as evidence.

The defense had asked that Barnes be tried separately from Silas Jayne, brother of the victim, and Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, who were charged with Barnes with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Howard claimed that Barnes' confession incriminated the other two defendants.

A NEW BUS IN TOWN: Yesterday marked the beginning of a new bus service linking the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect with the Jefferson Park Transportation Terminal in northwest Chicago. The trial project is being financed by United Motor Coach Co., the Randhurst Corp. and the Village of Mount Prospect. Currently the bus makes eight roundtrips daily, Monday through Saturday.

Board Eyes Street Projects

Various street improvement projects were brought before the Mount Prospect Village Board last week with the result that:

—The proposed new traffic signals and widening of the Central, Mount Prospect and Rand roads intersection was sent to committee, pending an investigation as to whether Des Plaines, in which one corner lies, would be interested in sharing part of the estimated $220,000 cost of the project.

—A resolution was passed authorizing the expenditure of $150,000 in Motor Fuel Tax funds for resurfacing of some 7.5 miles of streets in the village.

—A second resolution, calling for the improvement of sections of Sha-Bonee Trail, Milburn Avenue and Lonnquist Boulevard, was postponed to the next board meeting and a section of Maple Street was deleted.

—The village manager was told to meet with officials of the Mount Prospect Plaza to see if they want the present makeshift entrance to the rear of the Plaza from Fairview Gardens to remain and if so, to be improved; —The board also heard a report that intersection work along Ill. Rte. 83 from Evergreen Avenue to Central Road would now cost $309,000 rather than the original estimate of $180,000.

ON THE CENTRAL, Mount Prospect and Rand roads intersection, Trustee George B. Anderson said he agreed the project would be "one of extreme need," but he questioned why Des Plaines was not included in the project. He pointed out that the corner on which the Red Balloon Restaurant is located is in Des Plaines.

The project, slated for 1973, would involve better signals and left and right turn lanes installed where needed.

Anderson said he has talked with members of the Des Plaines Engineering Department and he feels the city may be interested in cooperating. Residents who live just south of the intersection and in Des Plaines have been complaining about the intersection.

Half the costs would be paid out of federal funds, and the rest would be shared equally by the state and the village, as currently planned. Anderson wants Des Plaines to pay part of Mount Prospect's share.

The Maple Street section was deleted from the street improvement resolution because Mayor Robert D. Teichert felt property owners in the area should have a chance to be heard before the board acts. It may come up again this summer, according to Anderson.

The back entrance to the Plaza was brought up by Richard Hendricks for the

Set Funeral Services For Woman, 100

A funeral mass for 100-year-old Mrs. Victoria Rembowski will be held at 10 a.m. today at St. Cecilia Catholic Church in Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Rembowski died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Stanley Williams, 127 Kim Ave., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Rembowski celebrated her 100th birthday last August, just two weeks after the death of her last surviving child and only son. She had lived with the son at the Willoway Terrace Trailer Park in Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Rembowski was born in Konig, Poland, Aug. 8, 1871, and came to this country in 1904. She lived in the small Polish town of West Wyoming, Pa., until her husband's death there in 1928. She moved to the northwest side of Chicago in 1929 to live with her son and his family.

Burial for Mrs. Rembowski will be in West Wyoming Wednesday.

Library Bd. Vote Today

Two incumbents are running uncontested in the Prospect Heights Library Board election today. Polls will be open from noon to 6:30 p.m. today at the Prospect Heights Community Church, 400 N. Elmhurst Rd.

Library board president Mrs. Robert Lusk, 100 N. Parkway, has served on the board since the beginning of the district in 1957. She said her one main goal for the district is to have its own library building, which is scheduled for completion in late summer.

Mrs. Lusk has said her other plans for the library include expanded hours, a young people's storyhour during the school year and at-home services for persons unable to go to the library.

James Hansen, 204 Wheeling Rd., has served on the library board since 1967. He said the library has been doing the best it could with its present cramped conditions, but it will be good for the district to have its own building.

Burning Bush Park Will Get 4 Tennis Courts

Four tennis courts will be added this summer to Burning Bush Park on Burning Bush Lane north of Euclid Avenue as part of the River Trails Park District master plan, according to Park Director Marvin Weiss.

Weiss said the park board decided to build the tennis courts this year because tennis was increasing in popularity and the district's two courts at Aspen Park were always crowded in the summer.

With the additional courts, the tennis instruction program can be expanded, he said. "For the last three years there has been such a demand for tennis classes that we had to limit enrollment to 100 persons."

He said hopefully the courts will be finished by June.

Weiss said the only structure currently on the 10-acre park is the community building at 1313 Burning Bush Ln. The land was one of five park sites purchased by the district five years ago.

Weiss said the parks are being developed on a piecemeal basis with the $10,000 to $15,000 available in the budget to develop land.

"Our philosophy is to live as economically as possible, and if there is any money left over we use it to develop the parks," he said.

"We have limited funds, but we try to do a major project every year. Last year we seeded Burning Bush Park and the ground around the swimming pool on Euclid Avenue," he said.

Board Resolution Thanks PASS Unit

The Mount Prospect Dist. 57 school board last week passed a resolution thanking members of the Positive Action to Support Schools (PASS) committee for their "time, effort and talents."

The committee worked for passage of the Dist. 57 39-cent tax hike referendum which was defeated on March 27. PASS chairmen are Dawn Rebeck and Robert Leitch.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The FBI announced recovery of $499,970 in the Provo, Utah home of the sky-diving college student held for the hijacking of a jet last week. Held is Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

His ratings lagging, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine plans to concentrate his Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, according to his supporters.

The countdown has started and Apollo 16's astronauts went through their final lunar landing dress rehearsal for Sunday's flight to the unexplored highlands of the moon.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson

"continues to show improvement" after his second heart attack, his doctor announced.

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

A killer earthquake rumbled through Southern Iran "like the end of the world on Judgment Day," leveling dozens of farming villages and leaving as many as 4,000 persons dead under heaps of rubble. The quake, which struck at dawn in Fars Province about 610 miles south of Tehran, was Iran's worst since 1968 when an estimated 20,000 persons were killed.

The State

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

Marilyn Hallman

Poking through dusty old boxes in the attic the other day, turned up an interesting bit of nostalgia. This tiny book, dated 1947, is titled "True Politeness: A Hand-Book of Etiquette for Ladies." The author coyly hides behind the title "an American lady."

Ladies in Great Grandma's day were not left to flounder in social situations. They knew exactly what to do. Proper behavior was clearly spelled out.

If a lady wished to give a gift to a gentleman friend, she was cautioned it should "be of the most refined nature possible; little articles not purchased, but those deriving a priceless value as being the offering of their gentle skill, such as a trifle from their needle, or a picture from their pencil."

When she carried on a conversation, a true lady should "not only avoid all delicate expressions, but appear not to understand any that may be uttered in her presence."

MIXED CARD playing was frowned upon. Ladies were warned that, "She who wishes to win a heart or retain one, should never permit her admirers to behold her at cards, as the anxiety they produce is as destructive to beauty as to sentiment."

At a ball, proper introductions were essential. "If a gentleman presumes to ask you to dance without an introduction," cautioned the author, "you will of course refuse. It is hardly necessary to supply the fair reader with words to repel such a rudeness."

Even after a proper introduction, a gentleman could not presume too much. Young ladies were told, "An introduction at a ball for the purpose of dancing does not compel you to recognize the person in the street or in any public place; and except under very peculiar circumstances, such intimacies had better cease with the ball."

However, ladies were also expected to mind their P's and Q's in the ballroom.

"Do not make a public room the arena for torturing any simple swain who perchance may admire you a little more than you deserve," warned the American lady. "Recollect that while you are wounding another's heart you may be trifling with your own peace of mind."

GIVING SOMEONE the brushoff posed no big problem for 19th century ladies. "If you wish to rid yourself of any one's society, a cold bow in the street, and particular ceremony in the circles of your mutual acquaintance, is the best mode to adopt," was the rule they followed.

In an era of hot pants and minis, this advice sounds quaint: "The plainest dress is always the most genteel, and a lady that dresses plainly will never be dressed unfashionably."

"Perfumes are a necessary appendage to the toilet," added the author, "but none must be patronized which are so obtrusive as to give the idea they are not indulged in as a luxury, but used from necessity."

And this final piece of advice: "Be very cautious of giving a gentleman a letter of introduction to a lady. — It may be the means of settling the weal or woe of the persons for life."

What do you suppose Great Grandma would think of the swing from Adam's rib to women's lib?

From The Library

by LAURIE ROSSI

The Mount Prospect Public Library adds new books to its collection so often, patrons may not always be aware of what's currently available. The library posts a list each month of newly purchased fiction and non-fiction in the adult section, and the children's room prints a newsletter which is available at the circulation desk. This week I'm going to point out some of the newest books, in case you're searching for some interesting spring reading.

Religious books appropriate to the Lenten season have been set aside and can be found by the seven-day books. This is done every year, and they are usually quite popular and go quickly. A book by C. S. Lewis, author of "Screwtape Letters," called "The World's Last Night" was there, as was "God and Myself," Bishop's "The Day Christ Died," "The Risen Christ," "The Shroud," "The Resurrection and the Life," and other informational books. You can add to these suggestions "What Difference Does Jesus Make?" "Toward a New Catholic Morality" and "The Jesus Generation," which are all new books this month that could make interesting Lenten reading.

IF YOU'RE in the library before the exhibits change, you'll get to see a Girl Scout display in the main entranceway. Troops 183, 370, and 708 have contributed together to make this interesting exhibit of camping, projects, Girl Scout uniforms, badges, and badge requirements.

You'll enjoy their display of puppets, made for the toy-maker badge.

In the children's room this month the newest thing is cloth books for infants, kept in plastic envelopes. These may be checked out by adults.

"The Crane" was the choice of our reader who voted for one of four foreign books for children nominated for the Batchelder Award. This was my personal choice too, I might add. We'll see who the real winner is when results are announced to the library later this month.

The children's room also has new books on all kinds of handwork, and books for adoptive parents to read to their children.

In the adult section of the library, expansion of the collection continues. Erich Maria Remarque's "Shadows in Paradise" is new in the fiction section. If you've read this author's "All Quiet on the Western Front," you might want to read this too. "MASH Goes to Maine" is new in fiction also, and there are two fictional biographies just added — on Whistler and John Wilkes Booth. We've got almost a dozen and a half new fiction titles this month.

THE NON-FICTION additions are always more numerous. "The Wonderful World of Women's Wear Daily," "Open Marriage: a New Life Style for Couples," "Whole Earth Catalog," and best seller "Bring Me a Unicorn," diaries and letters of Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Sometimes it's good to point out a book or two that arrived a few months ago. I'm always afraid if I elaborate too much on any given book arriving in the present month that it won't be in when you look for it anyway. Maybe "The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox" would be in, since it's not brand new this month. Its author, born in the foothills of the Big Horn Mountains, celebrated his 101st birthday this year. He remembers hunting with a bow and arrow and living in a tepee. Later he left the reservation to travel around the world with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. His purpose in writing this book was to point out the inevitable destiny of the American Indian and to help Americans recognize the plight we have forced on the Indian. He suggests plans to alter our course.

Train Hits Car; Woman, 43, Killed

A Palatine woman was killed instantly when her stopped car was struck by a fast-moving Chicago and North Western express train last night at Rohlwing Road, just south of Northwest Hwy. in Palatine.

The victim was identified as Susie M. Kelly, 43, of 220 S. Oak St.

The car was stopped on the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks when it was hit by the northwest bound train, No. 639, at around 6:04 p.m.

The train left Chicago at its regularly scheduled time, 5:20 p.m., with 11 passenger cars.

ORVILLE SCHULTZ of Lake Geneva, engineer of the rush hour train, said he sounded the horn and applied the brakes when he saw the stalled vehicle on the tracks, but was unable to stop. The train generally goes about 55 miles per hour in that stretch, he said.

Hank Best of Lake Geneva, the fireman who was riding in the engine cab, said the car seemed to pause as the train approached, then drove onto the tracks and stopped.

Another witness, Alan Luciani of Rolling Meadows was about 100 feet from the victim's car when he saw it southbound on Rohlwing Road, driving slowly over the tracks while the gates were up.

Luciani said the driver stopped the car on the tracks when the gate began to go down.

"She had plenty of time to get through, but she must have panicked," he said.

JUST BEFORE impact, the driver moved the car's wheels to the right, but made no attempt to get out of the car, Luciani said.

Another man, who works on the fourth floor of the nearby Suburban National Bank building, 800 E. Northwest Hwy., said he was drawn to the window by the train's horn, and saw the stalled car.

The woman "certainly had enough time to open the door and possibly enough time to get out," he said.

The car ended partly under the train about 125 yards north of the intersection on the south side of the tracks.

Police and fire units from Palatine and Rolling Meadows worked for several minutes to remove the body.

Two northwest and one southeast bound rush hour trains were delayed near the scene of the accident, and traffic was tied up along Northwest Highway.

Many of the commuters embarked from the train and sought rides from drivers along the highway.

and was sentenced by Judge Fitzgerald to 3 to 10 years in prison. The murder charge that had also been against him was dropped by the state.

The next hearing on the case is set for May 11 at Criminal Court at which time the defense is expected to have turned over copies of whatever evidence it has on the case to the state. A hearing will also be held on a motion made by LaPlaca's attorneys to suppress evidence taken from his Elgin home several days after the murder.

Police had confiscated three unregistered hand guns from LaPlaca's home after they received an anonymous telephone tip that LaPlaca had the weapon that was used to kill Jayne. However, the murder weapon was not found there.

ing constant," said Mrs. Kolerus. Though general assistance cases are sprinkled throughout Wheeling Township, Mrs. Kolerus said more apartment dwellers than homeowners receive aid.

"Some people don't bargain for what it costs to live out here," she said.

General assistance, at the township level, includes residents who do not qualify for welfare under a county, state or federal category like Aid to Dependent Children or Assistance to the Blind. The average general assistance recipient stays on the township rolls for 30 to 60 days, though some receive aid for years.

"We have one woman who has been receiving part of her rent from the township for the past two years," said Mrs. Kolerus. "She is not eligible for any other aid, and she simply can't live on her widows benefits."

IN SOME cases, an emergency, like sickness or an accident, can halt the income of a family and pile up bills at the same time. While other agencies require time limits before giving assistance, the township can help right away.

"Most of our cases are either monetary problems or go on to some category of welfare at the county level," said Mrs. Kolerus.

The general assistance department also handles counseling and referral services, which cost nothing.

"We have three to four people each day coming to us for some type of service who don't qualify for monetary aid," said Mrs. Kolerus. "We try to help them somehow whether it be a referral or just sitting down and helping them figure out a budget."

THE 1971-72 general assistance budget is $46,110, the proposed 1972-73 budget is $52,850. The major increases are in food, rent, clothing and utilities.

Anyone with questions about the general assistance budget, the township budget, or any other facet of Wheeling Township government, is welcome at the annual township meeting to be held tonight at Wheeling Township Town Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

residents of the Fairview Gardens subdivision.

TEICHERT SAID HE felt Plaza officials had indicated in the past that they did not want such an entrance; however, he said he would be willing to have the village manager talk with Plaza officials. If such an entrance is desirable, he said it would be conceivable that the entrance connecting with Thayer Street may be paved in the near future.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley told the board of the rise in costs for the Rte. 83 improvements. He added that the proposed funding for the project will have to be changed because the state no longer has enough funds for state-village projects. Instead it could be funded under the federal TOPICS program (Traffic Operation Program to Increase Capacity and Safety), with both federal and state funding shares.

Eppley said they would know by the last week in April whether the project would be acceptable under a TOPICS grant.

Wheeling Twp. Welfare Roles Up 22 Per Cent

by CINDY TEW

There are 22 per cent more families on general assistance this year in Wheeling Township than there were last year, and the increase will mean a 12 per cent increase in the general assistance fund, according to the preliminary budget.

To the taxpayer, the increase will probably mean no change in the property tax bill. The present general assistance rate is one cent per $100 assessed value.

"The increase will probably be picked up by the additional assessed value of the area," said Marshall Theroux, township assessor. "The growth in general assistance is pretty much in line with the growth of the area."

This year, 147 families are receiving general assistance as compared to 114 families last year. The increase is the largest in several years, according to Wheeling Township Supervisor, Ethel Kolerus.

"UNTIL THIS year, the number of general assistance cases had been staying constant," said Mrs. Kolerus.

Though general assistance cases are sprinkled throughout Wheeling Township, Mrs. Kolerus said more apartment dwellers than homeowners receive aid.

"Some people don't bargain for what it costs to live out here," she said.

'Triggerman's' Confession Is Valid In Jayne Murder Case

The confession of Julius Barnes, the alleged triggerman in the murder of Inverness horseman George Jayne, was ruled valid yesterday in Criminal Court by Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald.

His ruling ended a three-day hearing that began last week on a motion by Barnes' attorney George Howard that the confession had been coerced by police investigators and was therefore invalid.

After hearing testimony from Barnes, Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents, a former assistant state's attorney and policemen, Judge Fitzgerald ruled that the confession had been made by Barnes voluntarily and was acceptable as evidence.

The defense had asked that Barnes be tried separately from Silas Jayne, brother of the victim, and Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, who were charged with Barnes with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Howard claimed that Barnes' confession incriminated the other two defendants.

However, Judge Fitzgerald last week denied the motion for the separate trial and the three will be tried together.

Witnesses called by the state on the motion to suppress the confession testified that Barnes had been advised of his rights before he made the confession.

MATTHEW WALSH, former assistant state's attorney who helped lead the investigation of the Jayne murder, testified that Barnes originally denied any knowledge of the murder but then decided to cooperate after he learned a fifth man, Melvin Adams, had been granted immunity to testify for the state.

Adams had been charged with tampering with the testimony of a grand jury witness after a Dec. 29 session of the Cook County Grand Jury in the investigation of the Jayne murder.

His testimony before the grand jury eventually led to the two-count indictments handed down against Silas Jayne, LaPlaca, Barnes and Edwin Nefeld, former chief of detectives of the Markham Police Department.

Nefeld last week pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy to commit murder and was sentenced by Judge Fitzgerald to 3 to 10 years in prison. The murder charge that had also been against him was dropped by the state.

The next hearing on the case is set for May 11 at Criminal Court at which time the defense is expected to have turned over copies of whatever evidence it has on the case to the state. A hearing will also be held on a motion made by LaPlaca's attorneys to suppress evidence taken from his Elgin home several days after the murder.

16 Win Park District Ping Pong Trophies

Trophies were presented to 16 winners of the Arlington Heights Park District table tennis tournament last week, in which 78 persons participated.

Winners were: midget girls, Sharon Alseth, first place, and Judy Skeehan, second place; girls, Alice LaPlante, first place and Elizabeth LaPlante, second; senior girls, Nancy Cunningham, first place and Nancy Skarsyski, second place; women, Mrs. Adrienne Mullen, first place and Nora Liu, second place.

Other winners included Jack Lubecker, first and Greg Cerniglia, second, in the midget boys division; Brian Locker, first and Matt Splitt, second, in the boys division; Chris Maszalek, first and John Brown, second, in the senior boys division; and Ken Anderson, first and Dale Romesburg, second, in the mens division.

Most of the first place winners competed in the Suburban Parks and Recreation Association tournament last week, and Sharon Alseth and Ken Anderson walked off with second place trophies.

All winners have also been invited to represent the park district in the Illinois Park and Recreation Society table tennis tournament April 15.

Glass To File Home Rule Recall Bill

The fight against Cook County's home rule powers and the three taxes enacted recently under those powers will move to the state legislative front this week.

State Rep. Bradley Glass, R-1st, has announced he will introduce a bill this week that would allow a recall vote on the county's home rule powers as early as next November. Current state law prohibits county voters from holding a recall election until 1975.

Glass made the announcement Thursday during a meeting in Prospect Heights at which he and three other area legislators received petitions with more than 3,000 names calling for a recall election as soon as possible on the county's home rule powers.

With Glass at the press conference were State Representatives Eugene Schlickman, David Regner and Robert Juckett. All indicated support of the legislation.

The signatures were collected by Northwest suburban area homeowners associations representing unincorporated areas. As well as the county's home rule powers, the groups are opposing three taxes the county enacted late last December under its home rule powers.

THE TAXES include one on vehicles in unincorporated areas, one on mobile homes and one on all new car sales. A suit has been filed against the tax on unincorporated area vehicles by the associations. The groups' attorneys are considering a similar suit against the mobile home tax. Several municipalities are challenging the new car tax in court.

"We hope to introduce the legislation (this) week," Glass said Thursday. He expressed optimism that it would be passed.

"I'm strongly in favor of home rule," Glass said. "But Cook County covers such a broad area and there are so many towns in the county that home rule is a farce."

Criticizing the three-year ban on voter reconsideration of the county's home rule powers, Glass said, "The state constitution is pretty clear when it says people should have the opportunity to vote home rule in or out."

SCHLICKMAN, who according to Glass will be one of his bill's cosponsors, said Thursday he thought the three-year ban could be removed quicker through judicial action than through legislation.

Schlickman sponsored the legislation that allowed the new constitution to be implemented. It included the three-year ban on voter recalls for home rule units.

He supported the three-year ban at the time, saying that without it the legislation would never have been passed. According to Schlickman the Illinois Municipal League as well as many suburban mayors favor the ban. Even though he supported the legislation with the ban, he said Thursday the three-year prohibition on recalls is "clearly unconstitutional."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The FBI announced recovery of $499,970 in the Provo, Utah home of the sky-diving college student held for the hijacking of a jet last week. Held is Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

His ratings lagging, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine plans to concentrate his Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California, according to his supporters.

Ben Johnson and Cloris Leachman, both co-stars of "The Last Picture Show," won the best supporting performance Oscars in the 44th annual Academy Award presentations. The film told the story of a dying Texas town in the 1950s.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson

The World

The U.S. command withdrew 5,500 American servicemen from South Vietnam last week despite a major Communist offensive. However the lists do not reflect an additional 3,000 sailors and 1,000 Marine and Air Force air combat crewmen sent into the area.

A killer earthquake rumbled through Southern Iran "like the end of the world on Judgment Day," leveling dozens of farming villages and leaving as many as 4,000 persons dead under heaps of rubble. The quake, which struck at dawn in Fars Province about 610 miles south of Tehran, was Iran's worst since 1968 when an estimated 20,000 persons were killed.

The State

U. S. District Judge Richard B. Austin has signed an order allowing the Chicago Housing Authority to build public housing units in white neighborhoods without city council approval. The CHA is to buy land this summer and begin building 1,500 units, 700 of them in white neighborhoods.

The entire uncommitted delegation Mayor Daley hoped to lead to the Democratic National Convention was challenged as unrepresentative of the Chicago Democratic voters. The action was filed with the Democratic credentials committee on grounds the Daley group made 12 violations of rules governing conduct of the selection process and representation of minorities.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-III., said the federal government must give property taxpayers a break and assume more responsibility for public education costs. He urged a "moratorium on all increases of property taxes."

The War

Formations of B52s operating under direct orders from President Nixon flew deeper than ever before into North Vietnam to pound military supply areas on the outskirts of Vinh, the country's second largest port and birthplace of the late Ho Chi Minh. The planes also struck north of Saigon near An Loc, a key town under Communist attack for several days.

'Dog-Gone, This Is A Dog's Life'

Most of the canines had their wet noses planted to the cement floor. For many of them, this was the first contact with other dogs.

Restrained by the master's lead, they walked in a circle, then stopped and started again, responding to the owner's commands. There were Sheep Dogs, Collies, Airedales and a mongrel, all of them learning manners . . . suburban manners.

Without large fields to roam in, the dogs are relegated to house pets. Even the Old English Sheep Dog, appropriately named "Winston," whose paws are as massive as the Beagle's tiny head, is a "house" dog.

"I just want him to obey so he doesn't jump all over people," said Winston's owner, Mrs. Charles Broehl of Arlington Heights. "We keep him in the house most of the time so we can't afford those antics."

"But we're lucky," she said, pointing to the dog who was cowed on the floor, "that he doesn't have a long tail and can't sweep things off the table."

Winston along with a dozen other varieties were attending their weekly dog obedience class sponsored by the Palatine Park District. Residents from throughout the Northwest Suburbs have entered dogs in the class.

"When the eight weeks are completed, the dogs will be able to respond to basic commands," said Mrs. Dorothy Ortman, instructor of the class. "But they also learn to get along with other dogs," she said.

THE DOGS SEEMED more concerned with their fellow classmates at the session last week than in learning how to "sit" or "heel." Several were preoccupied with scratching themselves and sniffing.

"But this is just the second class. They will be a lot better before it's over," according to Mrs. Ortman, who has been teaching dog obedience for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. Ortman's canine instruction began when her husband brought home a Boxer in payment of a debt. "I taught the boxers and have been doing it ever since," she said. "I learned by watching other people but mostly by doing it myself."

She stood on a bench, guiding the class and adding helpful hints to the owners whose dogs were unresponsive.

A small, bespectacled woman with a Collie half her size, dragged the dog around the circle. When she said "sit," the collie would lie down. "He's so good at home," she said, "but he won't do anything in class. I think he's an idiot."

But Mrs. Ortman had a bit of philosophy about the unwilling collie and disgusted master. "If you think he's an idiot, he'll act like one," she said. "Think like you've got a Lassie and tell him he's a good dog . . . that will help him think that way."

A snow white Bichon Frise, a foreign dog, owned by Mrs. John Martin, wasn't the best student, but seemed to have the keenest nose. "He's not doing too well," said Mrs. Martin. "He's too busy sniffing the ground."

Mrs. Martin, like the other dog owners in the class, just wants the pet to be obedient. And she believes "Button" is a little better after the first class.

Mrs. Charlotte Baumgart of Arlington Heights enrolled her black poodle "so he can learn to live indoors." She said the dog "has never been restricted before" but now that the family has relocated in a subdivision "he's gonna have to come when I call him and sit when I want him to."

JIM VOLLMER's Airedale also has become an indoor pet after the family moved to Arlington Heights from New York. "We got her in New York where she could run . . . but unfortunately now we're in suburbia."

Bob and Elaine Kummer of Palatine brought their dog, a part Labrador Retriever and Weimaraner, to the session "to make him livable. He lives with us," said Mrs. Kummer as the three-foot-high dog dragged her toward the door.

Before the conclusion of the 45-minute class, Mrs. Ortman plays a game that she calls "musical dogs." The dogs again are led around a circle and must answer to the owner's order "sit." The slowest to react are eliminated.

A PENSIVE BEAGLE seems to be trying his level best to grasp the words of guidance during this week's dog obedience course at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights. Dogs of all sizes, shapes and breeds are enrolled in the class.

'Innovation' Led To Woe

Hidden Traps Created Problems For Schools

For the last several years, Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 has been plagued by seemingly endless problems. This is the second in a series that will examine the causes and results of the district's problems.)

by WANDALYN RICE

Many of the same policies which made Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 nationally renowned for innovation in the 1960s also contributed to the district's later problems.

A process of decentralization, consciously encouraged Supt. Roger Bardwell during his tenure, broke down the identification residents, teachers and principals had with the district as a whole.

The "excited, creative" staff members hired to work in the educational programs also shared another trait — they didn't stay long with the district. Many left to get advanced degrees or left for districts with offers of greater responsibility. And they left in greater than normal numbers.

And the fiscal cliff-hanging needed to continue expanding educational programs and keep up with the district's rapid growth could work only as long as outside grant money was available and voters remained willing to raise the tax rate.

The decentralization, which Bardwell also attempted when he was superintendent of Ithaca, N.Y., was a conscious policy to free the individual schools from control by central administrators.

"I'm convinced the superintendency is an obsolete position," says Bardwell, who left Ithaca this year to become an assistant publisher for Harper and Row in Evanston. "Education shouldn't be managed and controlled, and the bureaucracy should disappear."

THE POLICY succeeded both in freeing each school to approach education in its own way and in creating competition among schools for all available resources.

"I remember when I first came to the district," one principal says now. "One of the guys who'd been here a while took me into the corner and told me that the idea was the guy who hustled most got the most."

Gene Artemenko, who was serving on the school board when Bardwell resigned, saw the problem, too.

"Bardwell had made individual arrangements rather than establishing consistent policy. There were inequities among individual schools because some principals were more ambitious than others," he says.

The same policy also had an effect on residents of the district.

"We were creating a more autonomous, decentralized district. People really identified with the elementary schools, and they were only incidentally part of Dist. 59," Bardwell says.

Last year, while going from school to school trying to explain the need for a tax rate increase, the present superintendent, James Ervitt, often used nearly the same words.

"Our district is so fragmented," he grumbled, "that people don't identify with the needs of a thing called Dist. 59."

Tax increases were easy to come by when Bardwell was superintendent. The district regularly asked for building bonds and for tax rate increases, all of which passed. At the same time, the district went deeply into tax anticipation warrants (TAWs), even issuing warrants borrowing tax money that would not be collected for two years.

Bardwell and his business manager, William Mann, had a plan to get the district out from under the burden of debt.

"We were hoping to create a system that would be so good people would support it with property tax, but we had to time the referendums carefully and we couldn't afford to lose one," he says.

IN ADDITION, by spacing the referendums and taking advantage of the growing tax base, Bardwell says he assumed the borrowing would eventually be ended.

"We started cutting back on TAWs the last year I was there. I thought if we came back soon enough for a referendum we could give the district the stability it would need," he said.

What Bardwell and others doing the planning at the time could not foresee was how fast inflation would spiral costs, outrunning the tax rate growth. In addition, the grant money, which the district was cashing in on, began to dry up.

Ludwig Bodzewski, who had been assistant superintendent under Bardwell and served as acting superintendent when Bardwell left, saw it happen.

"When we moved educationally, we moved not with district money. In the 60s the federal government set aside billions of dollars to support education. Then the money ran out at the federal level, and it wasn't easy to get money anymore," Bodzewski says.

The district had, at that time, commitments for about $1.5 million in grants, and, Bodzewski puzzles, "Where in the devil could the district find a million bucks?"

The cutback of funds was not the only reason the staff was leaving. Many were going to better jobs in other school districts and in universities.

BARDWELL LEFT for Ithaca, pursuing an ambition to "be a big-city superintendent." Business manager Mann left. Others, at lower levels, were also leaving.

A list of principals in the district schools shows the trend clearly. Principals have left an average of every 1 1/4 years at Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect, and Grant Wood School in Elk Grove Village, every 1 1/4 years at Juliette Low School in Arlington Heights, and every 2 2/3 years at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village.

When the tenure of all the principals in each of the district's existing schools is averaged, it amounts to 3 1/3 years in each school.

"Sometimes a district can be too stable, with everybody staying too long, but you can also have too much turnover," one observer remarks. "I would think that much turnover would have worried someone."

Bodzewski and Bardwell were troubled by the problem, and in an effort to slow turnover, instituted a pay scale that would give some teachers more money than the minimum. In addition, they hoped that the programs run through grants would attract, and keep, the best people.

"We tried to have stability," Bodzewski says now when questioned about the problem. "The fact that anyone asks the question now shows, I guess, that we didn't succeed."

Rubbish Pickup Is NEXT Week

Spring rubbish cleanup will begin next Monday, not yesterday, as printed in an ad by Laseke Disposal Company on page 3 in Monday's Herald.

Furniture and appliances will be collected, along with almost any other trash that Arlington Heights residents want to get rid of next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the annual rubbish cleanup days, held in conjunction with Earth Week.

Unlike past years, however, the rubbish pickup will last only three days.

The only items that will not be hauled away include dirt, concrete and building materials. Small items should be placed in liftable containers and larger items should be placed in an orderly fashion at the curb.

Pickup will be held Monday for residents with normal garbage pickup Monday and Thursday; Tuesday for those with pickup Tuesday and Friday, and Wednesday for those with pickup Wednesday and Saturday.

On all three spring cleanup days, there will be curb service only.

course is sponsored by the Palatine Park District and teaches the dogs to respond to basic commands and compatibility with other dogs. About 20 dogs and their master's are enrolled in the eight-week program.

Adult Chapter Of AFS Set Spring Meet Tomorrow

The adult chapter of Arlington High School's American Field Service (AFS) will hold their spring meeting tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at the Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

Included on the meeting program are short remarks from AFS students attending area high schools. Among the students expected to appear are Christine Kiss from France who attends Arlington High School; Maria Jottrand from Belgium who attends Hersey High School; and Maria Koch from Germany who attends Prospect High School.

Interested parents are invited to attend the meeting. Reservations can be made with Mrs. K. H. Huber, 253-5970 or Mrs. Donald Hodges, 255-0629.

Meetings This Week

- Monday, April 10
  - The Comprehensive Plan Committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.
  - Dist. 214 Board of Education will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.
  - The Zoning Board of Appeals will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

This is the ad that should have appeared yesterday

Adventures of your Garbageman

"Spring Clean-Up" Days Next Week

On your FIRST SERVICE DAY next week, we will concentrate on "Spring Clean-Up" items (old furniture, appliances, etc.) which we will pick up without extra charge.

As mentioned previously, the scheduling for the "Spring Clean-Up" is different this year. Last year, when our men could work on the Clean-Up only after finishing their regular garbage runs, inevitably some trash stood in the rain for several days. This year, we're going to try to clean up each route in a single day (your first service day next week) by giving curb service only on that day.

The "Spring Clean-Up" is a big job, rough on our men (they'll start at 6:00 a.m. those three days) — with many trips to the landfill needed. So, we hope most customers won't give us garbage as well, on that day. However, if holding back on your garbage until your second service day next week will cause you great inconvenience, we will pick up your garbage also, if your cans are at the curb.

Thanks for your cooperation.

$100,000 Suit Filed Friday

Officials May Testify In Court On Alleged Gas Leaks

Des Plaines Fire Chief Frank Haag and members of the city's fire prevention bureau may have to testify in court in connection with a $100,000 suit involving alleged downtown Des Plaines gasoline leaks.

The suit, filed Friday in Cook County Circuit Court, alleges that the Cities Service Oil Co. (Citgo) installed defective gasoline storage tanks in a service station at 697 River Rd.

In another development, a report made available yesterday to the Herald indicated that damaged gasoline storage tanks were in fact installed in the station in 1970.

The report, made by Fire Inspector James Albrecht and turned over to the Illinois Attorney General's office, also acknowledged for the first time that tests last November at the station strongly indicated leaks existed, something denied until now by both the city fire department and Citgo.

TESTS OF THE allegedly faulty tanks, and subsequent city orders for their removal caused the station to be closed for almost 40 days, financially crippling the station operator and ruining the station's reputation, according to James Dowd, former city attorney. Dowd filed the suit against Citgo on behalf of the station operator, Ronald Ross.

David Beets, Citgo engineer, said yesterday his company will not comment on the suit.

The suit stems from actions by Citgo and the city, after complaints were made last November that gasoline was seeping into the basement of a residence adjacent to the station.

The complaints finally led to unearthing in early March of two 6,000 gallon tanks at the station and their replacement. The fire department then checked other nearby stations, and an investigation, still in progress, was ordered by the environmental division of the Illinois Attorney General's office.

ACCORDING TO Dowd, the tanks should have been taken out of the ground "immediately." It is the responsibility of Citgo to maintain and keep in good operation the station and equipment it rented to Ross, he said.

Ross signed leases Sept. 17, 1971 for the land, equipment and station, and he was not told of the possibility of a leak, Dowd said.

A test was requested by the city in November when complaints from Burton Kosmen, 709 River Rd., that he was living on a "sea of gasoline," halted Ross's business while ground was broken over the tanks, Dowd said.

Then in March, when evidence of more leakage into the Kosmen residence was found, the tanks were unearthed, tested and replaced, causing the station to be closed again for several weeks, Dowd said.

THE LONG PERIODS during which the station has been closed have caused serious financial problems for Ross, Dowd said. Because of the suspicion created that the station is polluting the neighborhood, fewer customers from the surrounding area come to Ross for car maintenance and service, Dowd said.

Ross told the Herald yesterday he is "just hanging on" financially, and he has had to lay-off most of his employees.

Oakton Bd. Balance Tipped

by VICKI HAMENDE
A News Analysis

There's a rumor going around the Pope and the Governor won Saturday's Oakton Community College board of trustees election.

The truth is the results of the election tipped the balance against the old board's handling of a current dispute over a permanent campus site.

The results show a majority of voters and now a majority of trustees are opposed to the old board's recent decisions to sue the state junior college board for rescinding its approval of a 105-acre site adjacent to Maryhill Cemetery in Niles for Oakton's permanent campus and to continue condemnation suit against the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese to purchase the land.

These results should please the church and the state.

THE VOTE TALLIES also reveal that an aroused community group dramatically affected the election, that a majority of the voters in Maine and Niles townships want new leadership on the Oakton board and that Oakton students want a hand in the decision-making for their junior college.

The new Oakton board will probably move soon to drop both lawsuits, pursue an alternate permanent campus site, reschedule a referendum to raise local funds for the campus and try to win back the shattered regard of the state and the archdiocese. And that's not to mention the Governor, Illinois Junior College Board members, the state auditor, the mayor of Niles, the village board of Niles, the city council of Park Ridge and local residents.

Two slates of four candidates each and two independent candidates sought election to the Oakton board. Two men from each slate won. The independents came in last.

The winners include two persons opposed to the old board's site actions, and two persons supportive of those actions. Added to the trustees whose terms did not expire this year, the new board should vote four to three in favor of following a new site course.

Instrumental in changing the make-up of the board were the Concerned Citizens of Maine and Niles townships, a group of residents opposed to Oakton's plans to condemn the Maryhill site.

Composed of homeowners, Catholics and citizens of Polish heritage who favor Maryhill as a burial ground, the group rallied more than five months ago alongside archdiocese and government officials to save Maryhill for cemetery use.

WHAT STARTED AS a handful of concerned citizens blossomed into an organization of several hundred members and several thousand petitioners, that at one point was promised by Gov. Richard Ogilvie that "no state funds will be expended on the Maryhill cemetery site for the Oakton junior college."

The group fought convincingly and consistently for their position — at board meetings and at public meetings throughout the community.

Their efforts paid off. All four of their candidates made strong showings in the election. One of them unseated the Oakton board president. Another became the

3-Minute Burglary At Clothing Store

Burglars forced their way into a Des Plaines clothing store and escaped with an undetermined amount of clothing within a span of three minutes early Sunday morning.

At 4:13 a.m. police received an alarm from Allen's Men's Store, 1428 Lee St., apparently set off when the burglars threw a car jack through a front window.

According to reports, Patrolman Paul Giovannoni and Robert Neis arrived on the scene at 4:16 a.m. and found the burglars already had fled from the scene.

Police said several clothes racks were ransacked and many garments were strewn on the floor.

Oakton Community College Open House Is Sunday

The public is invited to attend the second annual spring open house at Oakton Community College from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. The open house will climax a two-day arts and crafts fair on the Oakton campus Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Students, teachers and administrators will welcome the community to the new college. Oakton is a public community college completing its second academic year this spring. It is located on an interim campus at 7900 N. Nagle, in Morton Grove.

A Student Film Festival will highlight the open house program. More than 125 local artists and craftsmen will exhibit their work during the Arts and Crafts Fair. Only original work will be shown. In addition, Oakton art students will demonstrate pottery throwing, metal welding, sculpture creation and other techniques in the college art lab. Hours for the art fair are from noon until dusk.

Village-Centered Campaign Boosts 2 To Dist. 59 Wins

A concentrated campaign in Elk Grove Village resulted in the election of two village residents Saturday for three-year terms on the board of education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Albert Domanico, of 7 Grange Pl., and Gerald Smiley, of 1158 Cheltenham Rd., were elected by wide margins over three opponents.

Domanico was high vote getter in the race, polling 1,021. Smiley finished with 852 votes, well ahead of the third highest candidate, James Sheldon of Des Plaines. Sheldon had 489 votes.

Incumbent Paul Neuhauser finished a poor fourth with 417 votes and Irene (Dolly) Burton of Mount Prospect was low vote getter with 200.

Sound trucks urging Elk Grove Village residents to vote for "your Elk Grove Village candidates" made the rounds in the village for most of the afternoon, possibly the reason that Elk Grove Village's eight precincts accounted for 1,548 of the 2,779 votes cast in the election.

IN THE EIGHT precincts outside of the village, in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, turn-out was generally much lighter, with Sheldon running ahead of Smiley for second place. Neuhauser carried only one precinct, his home precinct in Mount Prospect.

Domanico, who served on the board for 16 months during 1969 and 1970, was defeated by a little over 200 votes last year in an attempt to gain reelection to the board. As the votes were coming in Saturday night, showing him running strongly in all parts of the district, he quipped, "This sure beats last year."

Smiley, who has lived in the village for four years and been defeated in one previous run for the school board and in tries for the village board of trustees and park board, said, when it became apparent that he had won, "It's nice to win an election once in a while."

Domanico and Smiley were both endorsed by the Elk Grove Teachers Council political action organization. Members of the teachers council including president Robert Beaupre, provided campaign help during the past week.

Leah Cummins, former member of the board of High School Dist. 214 and a village resident, also received support from the group campaigning for Elk Grove Village candidates. In her case, however, the appeal was less successful, with victories going to two incumbents.

The Dist. 59 board was scheduled to meet at 8 p.m. yesterday in the administration building to reorganize and elect a president for the coming year. Because of the election, Elk Grove Village residents now hold a majority of seats on the board.

Moats, Marier Win Harper Board Posts

Incumbent Larry Moats and Marilyn Marier won the Harper College Board of Trustees election by a wide margin.

Moats, of Mount Prospect, took the lead with an overwhelming 4,950 votes followed by Mrs. Marier, of Arlington Heights, with 3,544 votes.

Moats, an electrical contractor, was reelected to a second three-year term. Mrs. Marier's three-year term will be her first board experience.

Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights had the highest voter turnout in Dist. 512. Both communities showed strong support for Moats along with portions of Palatine and Barrington. Mrs. Marier, on the other hand, received fairly equal support from all of the precincts.

On hearing the election results, Mrs. Marier said she was "delighted and will try not to disappoint the people who voted for me."

AN ACTIVE civic leader, Mrs. Marier has served on the League of Women Voters, Volunteer Service Bureau, Arlington Heights Historical Society and the Arlington Heights Cultural Commission.

Mrs. Marier advocates caution in long range planning, closer ties to the community and local-state cooperation. She is also interested in a campus cultural center, funded at least partially by private sources.

Moats stands on the same platform he took to the voters three years ago. He has called for greater communication between student-teacher groups and the board and between the college and the community. He contends communication is the answer to the polarization he sees on the campus today. He is also known for his lone stand against the salary hike granted college president Robert Lahti last fall.

Other election results include: Howard Pollard, 3,544; Le Roi Hutchings, 1,526; Michael Huston, 1,661; and Rochelle Veitch, 1,140.

2 Incumbents, Newcomer Win In 214

Two incumbents, Gene Artemenko and Arthur Aronson, and one newcomer, Richard Greenfield, won the High School Dist. 214 Board election.

Aronson, of unincorporated Arlington Heights, took the lead with 2,709 votes. Artemenko, of Des Plaines, came in second with 2,566 votes, followed by Greenfield, of Buffalo Grove with 2,402 votes.

The incumbents were both elected to three year terms, while Greenfield will serve only one year. Aronson's election fulfills a state requirement for a representative on the board from an unincorporated area.

School officials reported the election results came in "close all evening long." Aronson's strongest support came from his hometown Arlington Heights and neighboring Prospect Heights and Wheeling. Greenfield did very well in Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove. Artemenko's support, on the other hand, was fairly equal in all of the precincts.

GREENFIELD, an attorney, attributed his Arlington Heights support to a vote "for Aronson and against Don McGlothlin for the unincorporated seat."

Aronson said his reelection was a vote of confidence for the present board. He said he had been concerned during the election that "the voters thought the board wasn't doing its job."

Aronson ran for his fourth term on a platform calling for the continuation of the Northwest Education Cooperative. In protest to campaign charges of over spending, the industrial engineer advocated continuation of present budget practices.

Coming to the board with no experience, Greenfield took a stand for local district control, more student voice and a strong vocational education program.

Artemenko, assistant manager of United Air Lines employment credit union, was appointed to the high school board last fall to fill a vacancy. He stands in favor of the 12 month school year, a stronger vocational education program, and contribution of public services to private schools. He praises the district administration and teaching staff.

Other election results include: Don McGlothlin, 2,401; Leah Cummins, 1,988; Leo Floros, 1,980; and Barb Stortor, 821.

Woman, 43, Killed When Train Hits Car In Palatine

A Palatine woman was killed instantly when her stopped car was struck by a fast-moving Chicago and North Western express train last night at Rohlwing Road, just south of Northwest Hwy. in Palatine.

The victim was identified as Susie M. Kelly, 43, of 220 S. Oak St.

The car was stopped on the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks when it was hit by the northwest bound train, No. 639, at around 6:04 p.m.

The train left Chicago at its regularly scheduled time, 5:20 p.m., with 11 passenger cars.

ORVILLE SCHULTZ of Lake Geneva, engineer of the rush hour train, said he sounded the horn and applied the brakes when he saw the stalled vehicle on the tracks, but was unable to stop. The train generally goes about 55 miles per hour in that stretch, he said.

Hank Best of Lake Geneva, the fireman who was riding in the engine cab, said the car seemed to pause as the train approached, then drove onto the tracks and stopped.

Another witness, Alan Luciani of Rolling Meadows was about 100 feet from the victim's car when he saw it southbound on Rohlwing Road, driving slowly over the tracks while the gates were up.

Luciani said the driver stopped the car on the tracks when the gate began to go down.

"She had plenty of time to get through, but she must have panicked," he said.

JUST BEFORE impact, the driver moved the car's wheels to the right, but made no attempt to get out of the car, Luciani said.

Another man, who works on the fourth floor of the nearby Suburban National Bank building, 800 E. Northwest Hwy., said he was drawn to the window by the train's horn, and saw the stalled car.

The woman "certainly had enough time to open the door and possibly enough time to get out," he said.

The car ended partly under the train, about 125 yards north of the intersection on the south side of the tracks.

Police and fire units from Palatine and Rolling Meadows worked for several minutes to remove the body

Two northwest and one southeast bound rush hour trains were delayed near the scene of the accident, and traffic was tied up along Northwest Highway.

Many of the commuters embarked from the train and sought rides from drivers along the highway.

Apparent Suicide Victim Found

A Des Plaines woman was found dead in the basement of her home last week, victim of an apparent suicide, police said.

Mrs. Hildegard Walter, 46, of 1848 Orchard St., was discovered hung by the neck with a rope in the basement. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital. Mrs. Walter had been very depressed recently, friends of the woman told police.

Oakton Board Balance Tipped

first Oakton student elected to the board. Incumbent LeRoy Wauck of Park Ridge defeated Board Pres. Milton Falkoff of Lincolnwood and also defeated Falkoff's platform contention that the state board acted illegally in its site reversal decision and threatened the Oakton board's local control of its own district.

Falkoff resigned from the board and later decided to seek reelection to the remaining one year of his own term. Wauck chose to run against him rather than to seek a full three-year term. Wauck's victory means that a majority of the voters want a new board president.

Falkoff did not win the vote of confidence he was seeking, but another incumbent who resigned and later decided to seek reelection, Griffith MacDonald of Park Ridge, did. So did Meyer Kamin of Skokie, the current board vice president who has voted consistently alongside Falkoff and MacDonald.

FALKOFF, MacDonald and Kamin were all members of the original Oakton board, organized in 1969. The ousting of Falkoff and retaining of the other two could mean the voters looked at the men and not the issues, that they voted for some of the men and some of the issues, or that they voted against Falkoff and his outspoken stands on some of the issues.

Obituaries

Katherine Behrel

Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Behrel, 96, nee Annen, formerly of Des Plaines, who died Friday in the Eastern Star Rest Home, Rockford, were held yesterday afternoon in Oehler Funeral Home, Des Plaines. The Rev. Ernest C. Grant of First Congregational Church, Des Plaines, officiated. Burial was in Montrose Cemetery, Chicago.

Preceded in death by her husband, Hugo, survivors include one son, Herbert H. and daughter-in-law, Edythe Behrel of Des Plaines; one granddaughter, Mrs. Barbara Newmann and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial donations may be made to Eastern Star Rest Home, Rockford, Ill.

Wilbur Bongratz

Wilbur Bongratz, 55, a resident of Des Plaines for about 20 years, died Sunday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, after an extended illness. He was born Aug. 5, 1916, in Chicago and was a retired mechanical engineer.

Visitation is all day today in Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines.

Funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. tomorrow in St. Emily Catholic Church, 1400 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Hardy, nee Jakobs; son, George of Elk Grove Village; mother, Mrs. Elizabeth (the late Joseph) Bongratz of Des Plaines; brother, Joseph Bongratz of Westchester; and three sisters, Mrs. Ethel Otto of Palatine, Mrs. Irene Stodolny of Wood Dale and Mrs. Jeanne Brockway of Arlington Heights.

Milton E. Jones

Funeral Mass for Milton E. Jones, 50, of 1021 W. Cypress St., Arlington Heights, an automobile mechanic, was said yesterday morning in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, Arlington Heights. Burial was in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Mr. Jones, born June 29, 1921, in Chicago, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an apparent heart attack. He was a veteran of World War II.

Surviving are his widow, Emilie M.; daughters, Linda and Donna; sons, Allen and Gordon, all at home, and two brothers, Bruce of Rolling Meadows and Robert Jones of Des Plaines.

Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, Arlington Heights, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Officials May Testify In Court On Alleged Gas Leak

Haag, fire prevention bureau officers, City engineers and those involved in testing the tanks. He will also seek reports from the Illinois Attorney General's office on the alleged leaks, he said.

Dowd contends that Citygo's replacement of the unearthed tanks with new tanks is proof that the tanks leaked. According to Albrecht's report, Wayne Malone, Citygo chief engineer, told Albrecht that one of the tanks installed in 1970 had been damaged while being installed and "apparently split or cracked."

THIS TANK WAS then patched while in the ground before being covered over, the report states. Ross said yesterday city ordinances forbid uses of patched tanks.

A fire department lieutenant who had witnessed the installation in 1970, made no report of the damage to the tank, according to Albrecht's report. There was no indication whether the lieutenant knew of the damage.

Tests made in early November at the city's request for the Citygo firm by the Kez Construction Co., indicated a pressure leak in one of the tanks, Albrecht reported.

According to Kez, air forced into the tank at a pressure five pounds per square inch dwindled to three pounds per square inch after an hour in the tanks, Albrecht said.

BEETS SOON after admitted there was a leak, according to Albrecht's report, although Citygo spokesmen have subsequently denied that any leak existed. Atty. Kenneth Meyer, who represents Kosmen, has also stated that he was told by Beets and Malone March 1 that a leak existed.

After receiving the Kez report, the city asked Citygo to sink a shaft and begin to pump out the gasoline between the Kosmen property and the station.

However, Citygo then asked the fire department to allow a second test of the tank by another Citygo-hired firm, Hartman and Co. so a "more sophisticated" test process, the Kent Moore test, could be used.

The fire department agreed, and this test, which has generally replaced the air pressure test, indicated no leak. Chief Haag then agreed to allow the old tanks to be refilled and for service to begin again.

HAAG TOLD THE Herald yesterday the Kent Moore test is considered more reliable and the air pressure test can vary because of changes of temperature.

The fire department also received assurances from the American Petroleum Institute, an oil industry-sponsored agency, that no leak existed. City explosion detection devices had shown since November that no danger existed in the Kosmen basement, officials said.

When evidence of continuing flow of gasoline was found in March, the fire department began to dig a trench between the properties, and found large amounts of gasoline, according to Kosmen.

The city then asked Citygo to remove the tanks, which were unearthed by Citygo and tested by Leo Lauerman and Co. at city expense.

THIS TESTING firm said no leak existed in the tanks, except where excavation of the tanks had broken a pipe.

Kosmen and Haag both have stated a large amount of liquid was found beneath the tanks. Kosmen has said the liquid contained gasoline. Haag said no tests were made of the liquid but it was sprayed with a fire retardant to prevent possible explosions.

Subsequent testing of nearby gasoline stations have not shown gasoline leaks, according to fire officials.

Harvey Sheldon, environmental control division chief for the attorney general's office said his decision will not act on Kosmen's complaint of violation of the Illinois Environmental Protection Act, until its investigation is complete, and analysis of samples from the site is finished.

He said investigations have encouraged his office to suggest to the state pollution control board that it develop standards and regulations for control of underground gasoline tanks, to insure that no waterways are contaminated by leaking or forgotten tanks.

Jewelry, Cash Stolen From Home

Burglars broke into a west side Des Plaines home Saturday evening and stole jewelry valued at $1,725 and $60 in cash.

Gus Pepitone, 532 Anita St., told police the burglary occurred sometime between 7:20 p.m. and 7:50 p.m. while he and his wife were gone.

Police said the burglars forced their way in through a rear door. The jewelry, including several rings and watches, and the money were taken from a bedroom.

Footprints outside the house indicated two men were involved in the burglary, according to police.

New School Teaches How To Do It

Making It In A Man's World

by HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK (NEA) — To students and their teacher at the New School for Social Research in New York, "making it in a man's world" doesn't have a thing to do with Letty Pogrebin's book on "how to make it" in that same territory.

It is the title given to a course conducted by Charlotte Klein. And it's a course that deals with women's ambitions in their careers and ways in which to deal with the obstacles they must face in human relations.

"At the first meeting," Charlotte said, "I asked them where they are as women are right now and where they are going. What do they think about themselves as people and in their careers and what do other people think of them? And I said we would see if these opinions matched."

Charlotte Klein is a spokesman with authority. She HAS made it in a man's world. She is a senior vice president of Harshe-Rotman & Druck, public relations firm. She was formerly a staff correspondent for United Press and a lecturer at Boston University and Pace College.

THE AIM OF her course at the New School is to provide women who wish to get ahead in their fields with realistic guidelines and techniques and to acquaint them with the extent of their chances to move up. Also to explore the male and female attitudes toward women executives and the scope of women's opportunities today.

"Many women whose children are grown up want to get back into the labor market," she said, "and if they have the ability to do better they don't want to go back as typists — victims of male chauvinism."

But men don't get all the barbs at Miss Klein's class.

One guest lecturer took the males to her heart. "Women are allowed to have feelings," she said. "Men's emotions are supposed to be suppressed."

"I'd be resentful if I were a man and I couldn't even cry but my secretary could. I'd have to present a feeling of superiority to cover up my resentment."

One reason for Charlotte's instituting her course is her disapproval of the fact that in our growing acceptance of what life is all about, the pill has given women sexual equality. But there's still no "meditation" for job equality.

"EQUAL PAY IS competitive," she said. "But equal sex isn't."

"In the labor market a woman always has to be exceptional. She has to be better than a man to move up. When she succeeds it's a big news story. Why?"

One man, a personnel director, is enrolled in the course. And there are male guest lecturers, too.

"This course is not given to make any woman believe she's entitled to any job," Charlotte said. "If a lack of ability keeps her down, she has to recognize that and not use sex discrimination as a cop-out."

Her course centers on the extent of opportunities for women, how legislation affects the employment of women and the legal recourses women can call on if they feel the unfair touch of discrimination.

"We're in a low bargaining position," Charlotte said. "Corporations will say a man has a family and needs more money. Or they will say they are afraid you'll have a child and leave."

"I BROUGHT TO THE class the U.S. Labor Department studies that show absenteeism is greater among men than women."

During the course this year (there will be further courses in the future) successful case histories of women in business, medicine, law, education and the arts are analyzed with the aim of providing exemplars for students in their own upward climbs.

Charlotte Klein believes that when deserving women can at last take their rightful place in the business world, many men will be pleased that it happened.

"Change is always frightening," she said. "It's only the courageous or the fools who welcome it. But other countries, India, Israel, England are ahead of the United States in using women in government. And they haven't had reason to regret it."

THIS COURSE ISN'T even remotely rabid women's lib. It's a carefully thought-out program for women to realistically evaluate themselves and their potential — based on their abilities and not on their sex. It sponsors human rights rather than women's rights.

"First determine what you're capable of achieving and then, if you can't make it only because you're a woman, you have a right to complain loudly," Charlotte said. "But don't think that capable or not, you should be given a top job just because you are a woman — women's lib notwithstanding."

There's nothing militant about Charlotte Klein regardless of her success in business. She's attractive, feminine and realistic — and the ideal person to be giving a course on how without bitterness and with honest self-appraisal a woman can make it in a man's world.

Time To Check Air Conditioning

by DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — High on the homeowners' list of spring cleaning chores should be the air conditioning system. All of a sudden it will be that time again.

Winter can be hard on idle air conditioning equipment and a check of all systems, some routine preventive maintenance and any repairs or adjustments that may be called for will ensure trouble-free operation from the first of the warm spring days through the hottest summer weather, according to George E. Buchanan, an expert on air conditioning.

Buchanan, general service manager for the York Division of Borg-Warner

Corp., says routine maintenance can be handled by an adept do-it-yourselfer, but urges that repairs be left to the experts.

He offers some tips for the springtime checkup, starting with a thorough reading of the manufacturer's maintenance manual. Generally he suggests:

—WINDOW UNITS that have been stored all winter should be placed upright on a level surface for a period of 24 hours to allow oil in the sealed system to drain back into the compressor.

—Dust all exposed surfaces, paying special attention to air inlets and outlets; wipe down plastic surfaces with soap and water; and oil according to manufacturer's instructions.

—Rusting does not occur frequently but it can happen, especially if you live near the seashore. Buchanan suggests cleaning and painting any exposed parts that may have deteriorated over the winter months.

It is all wise, he says, to test-run the unit on the floor before installation. Choose a day when room temperature is in the 70s and outside temperature in the mid-60s and let the air conditioner run for five to 10 minutes. Note the cooling effectiveness and listen for unusual noises that may indicate the unit requires more extensive checking. If the unit runs but does not cool, it usually means it has lost its charge of refrigerant and an authorized dealer should be called.

AIR CONDITIONERS that have been left in the window over the winter also require attention. But if the unit has been operated all winter, Buchanan said, a change of filter and oiling may be all the maintenance required.

For homes with central air conditioning, Buchanan recommends the following:

—Reset dampers for air conditioning. Damper adjustment is required only when there are separate ducts for the cool air.

—See that air inlets and outlets, both indoors and out, are free from obstruction.

—Clean or replace filters.

—Lubricate where called for. This generally is limited to fan motors and bearings.

—Turn on power for at least one day before you start the compressor. Run the fan only, with the cooling thermostat set high. In the compressors of many makes of air conditioners, power is required to prewarm and improve the lubricating qualities of the compressor oil. Even where this is not a necessity, a 24-hour warmup can do no harm.

—IF THERE IS an auxiliary drain pan under the unit, as is the case in many attic installations, be sure the pan is cleaned out and the drain open. Flush with a pitcher of water to check runoff because insects sometimes block drains.

—Pick a day when the outside temperatures are in the mid-60s for a test run. Shift the thermostat from heat to cool and run equipment for five or 10 minutes by dropping the thermostat to below room temperature. Listen well for any unusual noises, either indoors or out. Any unusual noise that persists indicates the need for professional attention.

Some residential units, Buchanan said, are complete packages, but many others are "split systems." By this arrangement, the heat-discharging compressor-condenser section is located outdoors, while the cooling evaporator is in the house and connected with the ducts to various rooms.

Split systems require all the checks already listed, and a few others as well.

WHEN THERE IS piping going outside, check the condition of insulation, concrete foundations and exposed metal surfaces. Make sure concrete foundations have not been broken or tilted by frost action.

Be sure air intake and discharge vents are open and free of leaves and other garden debris.

Honor Mrs. Crane At Friday's Tea

"An Afternoon with Arlene" will be program Friday for a tea sponsored by the Regular Republican Woman's Club of Palatine Township. The tea, honoring the wife of 13th District Congressman Philip M. Crane, will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Inverness home of Mrs. Martin Keller, 223 N. Highland Ave.

With the November general election in mind, members have been asked to participate in an April shower to provide supplies for the Township GOP headquarters. Suggested items include paper clips, staples, stapler, stencils, mimeograph paper, foam hot cups, napkins and picture frames.

All area women are invited to the tea, and those wishing further information may call Mrs. Philippe J. Chouinard at 358-4958.

Seek 'Mother Of The Year'

A Mother of the Year from the northwest suburbs is being sought by Northwest Suburban Chapter of Zero Population Growth, and all area individuals and organizations are invited to submit nominations.

The Mother of the Year and her family will be honored at a dinner May 11 in Arlington Heights Elks Club. Gifts awarded will include a weekend at the Marriott Motor Hotel, a wig donated by Armand's Beauty Salon of Arlington Heights, and a $25 gift certificate from Marshall Field and Co.

Those submitting nominees must have the consent of the nominee and enclose their own name, address and phone number as well as the name, address and phone number of the nominee along with a reasons for her being suggested, to Mrs. Joan Brosseit, 1158 Warwick Lane, Elk Grove, 60007. Deadline for entries is April 28. Either Mrs. Brosseit, 439-5390, or Mrs. Jean Beal, 439-0055, can answer questions regarding the contest.

Judges will be State Rep. Eugenia Chapman of the Third District and Rev. Rupert Lovely, minister of Unitarian Universalist Church of Palatine.

Bookworms May Misunderstand

The article about Mary Mittler and the reading lab at Oakton Community College in last Tuesday's Des Plaines Herald unintentionally gave the impression that students at Oakton were encouraged to "steal" the college's books. This, of course, is not true.

Students in the reading lab only are invited to help themselves to one shelf of paperbacks, many of which were donated by the students themselves. No other materials or equipment are allowed out of the reading lab.

Subcommittee Urges Crib Death Research

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee approved Thursday a resolution directing the federal government to step up research and other efforts to combat "sudden crib deaths," a mysterious disease that kills at least 10,000 infants each year.

The resolution was introduced by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., after hearings on the disease last January showed it was the largest killer of children less than a year old.

The Mondale measure would direct the Health Education and Welfare Department to award research training grants to investigate crib deaths, and to develop and publish literature to inform the public about the disease.

Moser Here Thursday

Kurt Moser, internationally known artist from Munich, Germany, will be at the Art Gallery Inn in Evergreen Plaza, Arlington Heights, Thursday instead of Friday and Saturday as announced previously.

Moser will have his latest work with him and will discuss and demonstrate his painting style during his appearance at the Art Gallery Inn.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I think my windows are clean until the sun shines on them. Do you have a particular window cleaning formula that you think does a good job?

—Mrs. Ray A.

We've always been happiest using 1/2 cup ammonia and 1/8 cup vinegar in 1 quart water. However, we've tried some methods sent in by readers and these have done the job equally well — one part rubbing alcohol to three parts water, 1 tbsp. dishwasher detergent in two quarts warm water or a handful of the trisodium phosphate cleaner in a pail of warm water. The important thing is to never wash windows in direct sunlight and to use a lintless cloth for drying or a crumpled newspaper or paper toweling.

Dear Dorothy: What causes tomato catsup to darken at the top of the bottle? Is the catsup edible when this happens?

—Laura M.

It's a browning reaction similar to the changes that occur on the cut surfaces of fruits and vegetables. Dark catsup may even develop an off-flavor but it is still safe for use. When corn syrup is used instead of sugar there is much less darkening.

Dear Dorothy: I've got an idea for your many readers. A gift from a thoughtful friend has proved our most useful gadget. It's a portable cooler that includes a container with a cooling refrigerant. This container is kept in the freezer until we need it. We use it on picnics, confident that none of the food will spoil, but it is most appreciated in traveling. We take along lunch and don't have to stop at a restaurant. Sometimes those stops can be interminably long. This way we get just what we want when we want it.

Head Football Coaching Job Still Open At West

The announcement of a new head football coach at Maine West should be forthcoming in the next few days, according to the school's athletic director, Ken Olson.

"The committee which will select the new coach should make its decision any day now," Olson said. "As it stands right now, nothing official has been decided."

The committee which will select the head coach is made up of Ralph Frost, assistant superintendent of Maine Township high schools; Herman Rider, principal of Maine West; James Coburn, assistant principal of Maine West; and Olson.

The head coaching position was left vacant by the resignation of Al Carstens, who held the post for three years, in February.

"There have been from 35 to 40 applications from outside the district and eight or nine from within the district," Olson said. "We have interviewed all of them and the committee will have to review each applicant before making a decision."

Maine West has had two head football coaches since opening in 1960 — Olson and Carstens.

Perkins, Avalos Meet In Mill Run Feature

For blood thirsty fight fans, they might see exactly what they want in the Mill Run Theater fight card promoted by Irv Schoenwald and Ben Bentley April 17.

The main bout matches Chicago's Eddie Perkins and Jesse Avalos of Corpus Christi, Texas for 10 rounds, but it could end in less time. Perkins, a 35-year-old veteran, has knocked out 18 of his 80 rivals, while Avalos, who has had 20 fights, had knocked out 10 of his foes.

In the eight round semi-windup, Cleveland's George Elias, who has lost only one of 16 bouts, has knocked out 11 opponents and has won his last eight in a row. He will meet Billy Goodwin of Milwaukee, a rookie who has a 4-4 ring record. This middle-weight match will go eight rounds.

The six round professional opener matches Ringo Carrington of Cleveland against Rom Tarrino of Milwaukee in a lightweight bout.

Three amateur bouts of three rounds each will open the show.

Tickets, priced at $6 and $8, can be obtained at the Theater and all Ticketron outlets.

League Record Book, Track Book On Sale

There are two books currently for sale that deal with high school sports records.

The Mid-Suburban League record book, winter edition is available for $1.00 at the main office of Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights.

Compiled by Keith Reinhard of the Herald sports staff, the book features pictures and records at every level of competition for the winter sports season in the Mid-Suburban. There also are some books available that cover the fall sports program.

Merl Hamak of Glenbard East

High School has compiled a book for track and field enthusiasts in Illinois. It's called the "Illinois Top 100" and it details the top 100 marks in history for every event, indoors and outdoors.

Hamak put in many hours researching the project and welcomes additions or corrections. This is the first attempt at compiling the top Illinois track and field marks.

Track books at $1.00 each may be purchased by contacting Hamak at 520 Caryle Lane, Bolingbrook, Ill. 60439.

Hawthorne Sounds The Call To Colors

Thoroughbred racing will make its long-awaited return to the Chicagoland area this Saturday, April 15 when historic Hawthorne Race Course, the city's conveniently located one mile arena at Laramie and Cicero at 35th St., sounds the call to colors for an exciting 33-day spring meeting at 2 p.m. sharp.

The 2 p.m. first post will prevail throughout the earliest opening in Hawthorne history as America's fifth oldest track, in its 81st year dating back to 1891, makes history of all sorts with its '72 season.

A record total of 14 stakes worth $420,000 in added money — richest in the annals of spring racing in Illinois — already has served as lure for one of the most competitive lineups of stables, horses and jockeys for Chicago racing at this time of the year.

Grass racing till now unheard of for the season's opening spring meeting, also will spark Hawthorne's 6½ week session, which concludes on Tues., May 30, with the '72 renewal of the coveted $100,000 added Hawthorne Gold Cup at the classic 1¼ miles distance for three-year-olds and up.

Managing director Robert F. Carey reports all conditions "go" at the spacious west side oval. By Saturday's opener most all the 1,700 available stalls will have been filed by battle-eager horses bent on providing Chicagoans thrills that only the thoroughbreds can supply.

First week is for charity, under banner to Chicago Sun-Times-Daily News Charity Trust. Three stakes, including Saturday's inaugural, the $25,000 added Midwest Handicap at 6½ furlongs for three-year-olds and up, feature the charity session. The $15,000 added Display, a 6 panels dash for three-year-olds on Wed., and the $20,000 added Yo Tambien, at 6 furlongs but for distaffers on Fri., also will provide charity fireworks for thoroughbred buffs.

Hawthorne's regular 33-day meeting will be launched on Sat., April 22, with the $25,000 added Illinois Owners Handicap, a popular 1 1-16 miles test for horses owned by bona fide residents of the Prairie State.

Season highlights include, besides the closing day Gold Cup, the $35,000 added Hawthorne Derby for three-year-olds on Sat., May 20, and the $35,000 added Hawthorne Juvenile, a blue ribbon two-year old fare, on Sat., May 27.

Spring action over the turf course will be keyed to no less than four stakes — the $25,000 added Chicago Handicap, the $25,000 added Indian Maid for fillies and mares, the $30,000 added Sun Beau 'Cap and the $30,000 Oil Capitol Handicap. In addition, regular overnight races on the greensward will be offered, fickle spring climate permitting.

Racing secretary Fredrick G. "Pat" Farrell, who engineered Hawthorne's unprecedented stakes program, has been greeting arriving horsemen all week.

Trainers and their stock have been funneling into Hawthorne from three primary locales — Arkansas, Louisiana and Florida — and include such prominent mentors as Richard Hazelton, Joe Dornigac, John Meaux, William Hal Bishop, Clifford Scott, Bill Resseguet Jr. and Dave Vance, among others. And others, like T. W. Kelley and Lou Goldfine, will be checking in as the season unfolds.

There will be no shortage of top-level jockeys, what with Phil Rubbico, Carlos Marquez, Jeff Anderson, Ray Broussard, Craig Perret, Bobby Nono, Jimmy Nichols, Earle Fires, Lonie Ray, Louis Spindler, Dave Whited, Martinez Heath and Tony Rini virtually committed to full-time Hawthorne action.

Groomed for its 81st year, Hawthorne racing offers thoroughbred action over a full one mile course, replete with that famous quarter mile homestretch, one of the longest home straightaways in American racing. The inner turf oval measures 6 furlongs and includes a full quarter mile front chute for mile contests.

State Fish Contest Again

With the fishing season beginning for thousands of Illinois anglers, the Illinois Department of Conservation has announced that it will once again sponsor its Illinois Record Fish Contest.

The contest, sponsored for more than 10 years by the Department, runs on a calendar year basis — from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 — with the winners receiving pins and certificates.

"We conduct the contest as a two-part affair," said Al Lopinot, chief fisheries biologist for the Department. "We have a category for state record fish and also for the biggest fish of a particular species that is not a record."

The rules for the contest are simple, Lopinot said. The fish must be caught by pole and line from Illinois waters and cannot be taken from a fee fishing area. The fish must be weighed to the nearest ounce on scales legal for trade in the presence of two witnesses. Length must be measured to the nearest 1/16 of an inch.

State record fish must be identified by a Department fishery biologist, who can be reached through the conservation officers in each county. If there is a delay in reaching the biologist, Lopinot suggests that the fish be frozen.

A photograph of the fish is necessary and the Department of Conservation must have permission to publish the photograph.

There are 32 fish listed with state record status. Last year the Department had 41 entries in the contest which produced seven new state record fish and 11 winners in the big fish category.

Entry forms are available at most sporting goods stores, from county law enforcement officers, or by writing to the Department. A listing of the state record fish, the record holders and the year the fish established the record can be obtained from: Department of Conservation, Division of Fisheries, 400 S. Spring St., Springfield, Ill. 62706.

League Tryouts

The Central Little League of Des Plaines will hold tryouts on Saturday and Sunday, April 15 and 16, and the following weekend for boys nine through 12 years old.

Tryouts will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday and 1 p.m. on Sunday. Applications for the tryouts will be available at the Central Little League field, which is located on Thacker St., near Central School.
